Two other men, woman still being sought--FBI

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — FBI Director Clarence Kelley Saturday night announced the arrest of a 17-year-old Jersey City, N.J. girl as the fifth suspect in the Wednesday kidnaping of John Calzadilla on Long Island.

Kelley said Maria Margaret Merida, 17, was arrested at her 101 Garrison Ave. residence by Newark, N.J. FBI agents.

HACKENSACK, N.J. (UPI) — The alertness of a young kidnap victim and an informer's tip led to the arrests Saturday of four young Cuban men on abduction charges. Federal investigators said two other men and a young woman were still being sought.

The four suspects, arrested during the night by the FBI, were arraigned and ordered held on bail of between $250,000 and $300,000.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Richard Tanner had asked for bail to be denied, saying: "What concerns me are the rash of kidnapings. The court must give recognition and put on notice that kidnapings will not be dealt with lightly."

All four, who had been in the United States five years or less, were charged with conspiring to kidnap and hold for ramson John Calzadilla, the eight-year-old son of a Cuban-born immigrant of the New York suburb of Dix Hills. Authorities said there appeared to be no political motive behind the abduction.

The boy was kidnaped Wednesday while on his way home from school. He was released unharmed 33 hours later in Secaucus, N.J., after his father, Michael, 38, paid a $50,000 ransom he raised through loans from friends.

Investigators said the ransom had not been recovered.

Those charged with violation of federal kidnaping statutes are Eligio Fernandez, 19; his brother, Norberto, 17; Richard R. Tuero, 17; Wilfredo Alvarez, 18, all of Union City, N.J. The Fernandez brothers lived together and Tuero and Alvarez were roommates.

If convicted, they face up to life jail terms.

According to the complaints filed against them, Tuero and Alvarez admitted "participating in the kidnaping" to the FBI. An investigator said the Fernandez brothers appeared to be the ringleaders.

The FBI said the first real break in the case came from a "confidential source who has furnished reliable information in the past year that has led to approximately 15 arrests." The informant notified agents of a conversation he overheard concerning the abduction.

But the quickness of the arrests was credited to young Calzadilla, who apparently had remained as cool as his abductors throughout the ordeal.

Arrival greeted by jeering crowd

Watergate 'Big 7' plead innocent

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Seven former members of President Nixon's inner circle marched grimly through a jeering crowd outside U.S. District Court Saturday and pleaded innocent to criminal charges in the cover-up of the Watergate scandal.

Two of them, former White House aides John D. Ehrlichman and Charles W. Colson, also pleaded innocent to separate charges stemming from the 1971 Ellsberg break-in. In Ehrlichman's case, the combined charges carry a maximum penalty of 60 years in prison and $95,000 in fines.

Shouts of "sieg heil" and "I hope you get 30 years!" greeted former Attorney General John N. Mitchell as he arrived by taxi for the late-morning arraignment before U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica.

All seven defendants, indicted by the Watergate grand jury eight days ago, said nothing during the seven-minute ceremony except to respond "not guilty" in loud, clear voices when each of their names was read by the court clerk.

Sirica released the seven on personal bond and routinely ordered them to surrender their passports, ask his permission if they wish to leave the country and keep him informed of their whereabouts.

He set May 1 for hearing pretrial motions by any defendant who might seek another trial location, move to have the charges dropped or take any other legal steps before the cover-up trial begins Sept. 9.

Pleading innocent besides Ehrlichman, Colson and Mitchell were former White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman, former Assistant Attorney General Robert C. Mardian, former Haldeman aide Gordon C. Strachan and former Nixon campaign committee lawyer Kenneth W. Parkinson.

Special prosecutor Leon Jaworski, who arrived 15 minutes before the arraignment, went up to Mitchell and Parkinson to shake hands.

"John, how are you? Good to see you again," Jaworski told Mitchell, who is under trial with former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans in New York City in a separate obstruction of justice case.

"Are you in good health?" Mitchell asked Jaworski.

It was the first public reunion of the seven men who once ran the President's 1972 re-election campaign and served him as cabinet members, political advisers, fund raisers or White House aides until Watergate engulfed the administration.

After the arraignment, Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Colson and Strachan chatted quietly for about five minutes in the courtroom. When the group broke up, Haldeman and Ehrlichman —once the closest and most powerful aides to Nixon — sat down together at the defendants' table and held a long, friendly conversation.

Mitchell, pale and unsmiling, took no apparent notice of the crowd of 150 spectators outside the courthouse when he arrived. "Hey stone face!" one yelled. There were signs reading "Free Martha" and "Defend the Constitution —Jail the Traitors."

Police took into custody an unidentified young man wearing striped prison garb, a papier mache Nixon mask and crown of oil company and ITT trademarks when he stepped behind an American flag and began to undress.

All seven were charged with conspiracy in the cover-up and all but Mardian were indicted for obstruction of justice. In addition, Ehrlichman, Haldeman, Mitchell and Strachan were charged with lying to federal investigators.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Symbionese Liberation Army Saturday sent its fourth communique concerning kidnaped Patricia Heartst, saying she was safe but decrying the inadequacy of the $6 million food giveaway program.

The tape was delivered to FM radio station KSAN in San Francisco, which turned it over to a courier for Randolph A. Hearst, Patricia's father and president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner.

An FBI spokesman said the bureau had no comment and had not heard the tape. A voice on the tape demanded that it not be turned over to the FBI team investigating the kidnaping.

"I am a general in the SLA," said a woman's voice, beginning a lengthy statement that was almost inaudible because of noise on the tape.

The voice said the Hearst empire "aims to divide the people by being deceitful." She said that poor people were being given food intended for animals.

Whether Miss Hearst faces execution or freedom is "totally the responsibility of her family," the woman's voice said. Miss Hearst's voice came on the tape for about 11 minutes, but it too, was almost inaudible. However, she asked her family "not to aid the FBI in their investigation. Only the FBI and certain people can gain anything by my death."

The 20-year-old coed's father told reporters at his Hillsborough home that "I don't think there's any question about it being her voice." He said he wanted to read the tape's transcript before making any statements on its contents.

On the tape, the SLA claimed the FBI wanted to "set up" to be killed, two alleged members of the organization, Russell Little and Joseph Remiro. They are presently in jail charged with the assassination of Oakland school chief Marcus Foster.

Earlier Saturday, Gov. Ronald Reagan urged all Californians to join the Hearts in their long wait by making the weekend a special time of prayer for Patricia's safety.

Motorcyclist is injured in fiery crash with car

CLAREMONT — A 26-year-old Pomona man was seriously injured Saturday when his motorcycle collided with a car on Indian Hill Boulevard, at the onramp of the San Bernardino Freeway, and burst into flames.

Kerry Leslie Peterman of 1329 N. Indian Hill Blvd. was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital after the 3 p.m. accident. Hospital officials said he suffered multiple fractures and internal injuries, and was in the intensive care unit.

According to California Highway Patrol reports, an auto driven by Carlos David Lopez, 18, of Rosemead, came off the freeway westbound and struck Peterman's cycle, which was southbound on Indian Hill.

CHP Sgt. L.A. Irwin said the auto and cycle both stopped on the westbound onramp of the freeway. after the collision. Peterman was thrown from the cycle, and it traveled 100 feet before bursting into flames.

New diplomatic venture

Memory of Caracas visit doesn't worry Pat Nixon

By SARA FRITZ

WASHINGTON (UPI) — First Lady Pat Nixon says she has no fear about returning on an official visit Monday to Caracas, where 16 years ago she and her husband were mobbed, spat upon and stoned.

Caracas is the first stop on Mrs. Nixon's six-day, 9,195 mile trip to attend the inaugurations of the presidents of Venezuela and Brazil —her third solo diplomatic venture since her husband became President.

Her arrival Monday afternoon was bound to bring back vivid memories of the day in 1958 when she and then-Vice President Nixon were ambushed by angry leftist demonstrators who smashed the windows of their limousines, spat on them and chanted "Death to Nixon."

But Helen Smith, Mrs. Nixon's press secretary, said those memories do not frighten the First Lady.

"She feels that it was not against her," Mrs. Smith said, referring to the 1958 incident. "Relations have improved so much since that time."

Sources in Venezuela said authorities have established strict security measures for the arrival of Mrs. Nixon and dignitaries from 47 other nations, including armed escorts and constant bomb checks at the sites of all ceremonies.

The Secret Service, which will accompany Mrs. Nixon as it always does, said its agents were working with local authorities on security arrangements. But a spokesman added that the precautions would be no more than "the routine security that we utilize for any foreign trip of a First Lady."

After landing at Maiquetia International Airport outside of Caracas, Mrs. Nixon will be taken in a smaller craft to a smaller military base near the U.S. Embassy in Caracas where she will stay. Thus, she will avoid the motor route where she and her husband were mobbed 16 years ago.

In both Caracas and Brazilia, according to Mrs. Smith, the First Lady will issue official statements. But she plans to make no speechees.

But a group of some 50 persons also traveling with her will include Lt. Gen. Vernon A. Walters, deputy director of the CIA and a former military attache to Brazil; William R. Codus, assistant chief of protocol at the State Department, and Nicholas Morley, a Miami businessman with interests in Venezuela who is an acquaintance of the Nixons' closest friend, C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo.

LONDON (UPI) — The first airline streaker struck five miles above the north Atlantic Saturday on a Pan American 747 jumbo jet flight from New York to London, airline officials said.

Passengers on the jet gasped as a young Turk leaped naked from a rear toilet and ran the length of the aircraft and back Pan Am officials said.

The Turk, who wore only a beard and was in his early 30s was not identified by name.

"He was dared to streak through the aircraft by an Englishman who was sitting next to him" a Pan Am hostess on the plane said. "He dashed out of the toilet and ran stark naked the whole length of the aircraft."

"Everyone was flabbergasted and sat in their seats with mouths open. But some people laughed and others cheered."

When he was dressed again the Turk went around the jet with his British companion and collected $500 from passengers for an unnamed charity the airline officials said.

3 accused in kidnap plot against consul

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A convicted hijacker and two other persons were named Saturday as conspirators in a plot to kidnap a foreign consul general in Los Angeles, the FBI said.

Garrett Brock Trapnell, 36, serving a life sentence for his part in the Jan. 29, 1972 hijacking of a Los Angeles-to-New York jet, was allegedly among those involved in the plot to kidnap an official of "one of the following consulates in Los Angeles: Estonia, Paraguay, Uruguay, Canada, France, Germany, Switzerland or Haiti," the spokesman said.

Maria Theresa Alonzo, 22, was arrested by FBI agents at her Hollywood apartment Saturday. She was charged with conspiring with Trapnell and Robert Bernard Hedberg Jr., 36, to kidnap a consul general as a hostage for their release.

Hedberg and Trapnell are both in Los Angeles County Jail.

The FBI said the conspirators also planned to demand $250,000 and political asylum in Sweden.

Hedberg was arrested on Jan. 29 for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution on a charge of assaulting a police officer with a deadly weapon.

An FBI search of of Miss Alonzo's apartment yielded a tape recorder and a loaded .22 caliber revolver which the FBI said were to be used in the kidnaping.

On Nov. 2, 1971, Miss Alonzo and another woman were arrested for prostitution in Hollywood. At the time of her arrest she had an x-mark on her forehead to signify her sympathy with members of the Charles Manson family convicted of a series of murders in 1969.

Trapnell's hijacking attempt ended when he was shot by an FBI agent posing as a crew member. He demanded $308,000, and the release of Black revolutionary Angela Davis and a prisoner held in a Dallas jail.

Estonia and French consulate officials had "no comment" on the alleged plot.

Officials at the other consulates were not immediately available for comment.

Miss Alonzo, Trapnell and Hedberg are scheduled to be arraigned Monday before a U.S. magistrate on charges of violation of the federal kidnaping statutes. They could be sentenced to life imprisonment if convicted.

Sunny weather is predicted for California 500 today

Clearing skies and sunshine Saturday followed a two-day rainstorm which left well over two inches of rain in the valley and blanketed the mountains in snow.

If today's forecast prevails, the fifth annual California 500 at Ontario Motor Speedway will procede without interruption. A.J. Foyt, who captured the pole position a week ago by running 190.617 miles per hour for a two-lap average, and 176.873 miles per hour in the 40-lap event last Sunday is favored to win.

It seemed the weatherman this week contrived to keep both the racing fans and the winter sports fans happy.

The storm topped off 18 to 20 inches of snow at Mt. Baldy Village where beautiful, sunny weather was reported Saturday. At noon the temperature was 38 degrees and the snow lovers were crowding in.

The ski lifts were in operation and many visitors brought carloads of children to frolic in the snow.

Kennedy's son treated again to avert cancer

BOSTON (UPI) — The 12-year-old son of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy entered Boston's Children's Hospital late Friday for anti-cancer drug treatments in hopes of insuring that the bone cancer which caused amputation of his right leg will not recur.

Senator Kennedy brought his son to the hospital early Friday evening.

A spokesman in Kennedy's office in Washington said visits would be "routine and predictable" every third weekend for an indefinite period.

The hospital and the boy's doctors have found no evidence the cancer has recurred. The drug treatments are aimed at improving the odds of the boy escaping a recurrence.

Doctors were quoted as saying there was an 80 per cent chance for a complete cure.

Doctors said young Kennedy would be administered a dose of the anticancer drug methotrexate at a rate 2,000 times normal on each of his hospital visits. This will be followed by injections of a second drug to prevent poisonous side effects.

Series explores changing America in energy crisis

The energy crisis has arrived and is threatening to change the lifestyles of millions of Americans.

In a five-part series, starting Monday in The Progress-Bulletin, members of the UPI energy team based in Washington take a thorough look at the situation — how we got there, why, where are we headed and what are the sources America can tap to assure it won't happen again.

Mr. and Mrs. William Godfrey and two of their five children were killed in the March 2 crash. Godfrey, 41, a Houston bank executive, was the borther of Marie Weicker, the senator's wife.

Congressman calls for probe of oil antitrust violations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Jerome Waldie, D-Calif., said Saturday the country's five biggest petroleum companies are violating antitrust laws by holding back on gasoline production in order to drive prices up and he wants an investigation.

In a statement, Waldie said he will ask the House Judiciary Committee to begin investigating Exxon, Mobil, Texaco, Gulf Oil and Standard Oil of California.

He also asked California Attorney General Evelle Younger to file suits against the firms.

Waldie based his charges on statistics published in Oil and Gas Journal, an industry trade publication, which he said show that while oil imports into the United States are up from a year ago, gasoline production is actually less.

The figures, Waldie said, indicate 12.8 million barrels of crude oil were produced or imported in this country during the week of Feb. 8.

Other figures in the same publication show the industry only refined 6 million barrels of gasoline that week, Waldie said.

"If all that crude had been refined it would have produced 6.4 million barrels of gasoline ," he said.

"It is curious that the point-4 million-barrel difference is almost precisely the amount of our current shortfall in gasoline production claimed by the Federal Energy Office."

Fistfight ends in gun drawn, robbery of $30

POMONA — Police today were looking for a 23-year-old Pomona man who allegedly robbed another man of $30 after enticing him into a fight.

Samuel L. Wauls, 21, of 1317 Fremont St., told officers he was called early Saturday morning to a residence at 2117 W. Orange Grove Ave. by the suspect, Stills Williams.

Williams allegedly asked the victim to step outside, and they became embroiled in an argument, officers added. The suspect claimed Wauls had refused to give him a ride to another location.

Wauls, who suffered a cut lip during the altercation, said Williams picked up $30 in cash which the victim dropped by accident. Williams allegedly drew a gun, told the victim to stand back, then fled on foot.

175 attend Chino meeting

All-year school opposition forms

By MAE TATE
P-B Staff Writer

CHINO — A multitude of objections to the year-round school were debated and formal opposition was crystallaized by the 175 persons who attended a meeting at Newman School.

A citizens' committee consisting of Bob Miller, La Rae Scott, Frances Carlson, Coralee Knight, Barbara Ellsworth and two school district employes called the meeting. Although parents were in the majority, a spattering of teachers from Chino High School were also in the audience.

Petitions will soon begin to circulate throughout the school district boundaries as parents attempt to gain what they consider personal rights that have been denied by "hasty" extension of the year-round program to all district campuses except Chino High School and one undetermined kindergarten through eighth grade school.

All present, except possibly board member Al McCombs and his wife, Gretchen, protested the Feb. 8 action of the board to extend the program beginning July 8. It was noted that in the original board action of June 26, 1973, establishing the pilot programs at Walnut Elementary and Magnolia Junior high schools, the board stated year-round school would not be extended until a full year had passed for evaluation.

The pilot programs have operated for about seven months now.

In moderating the meeting, Mrs. Ellsworth asked that a three-minute limit and common coutesies be observed.

"We are not intent on rehashing. We're here to evaluate new information. We want to know the facts and get down to basics. And we intend to act," she stated.

Marsha Gans, a Marshall School parent, cited large class sizes at Walnut while other school classrooms sit vacant, the improper testing of children that makes comparision to other years' performance difficult, the "babysitting" quality of intersession classes and the difficulty in assessing level of achievement as reasons for her opposition.

Theresa Preciado reported she contacted Rowland school board member Louis Guzman to discover how that district had handled year-round schooling. Guzman, a proponent of the new program, said that each school and parent were polled and the board decided that if a 70 per cent opposition factor was determined, the plan would be shelved.

The Rowland district's poll revealed 65 per cent of parents against the plan and shelved it.

Grace Almadarez, an El Rancho School parent, said parents there were intimidated to support the plan. They were told to either select year-round program for El Rancho or become the only traditional school for the entire district with elementary and junior high students together.

Allen Christiansen, a teacher and scientist, labeled the plan "an abrupt departure in educational thought and tradition." He added "I am always alarmed when I see someone try to prove something from too few facts."

"The district never answers questions to the satisfaction of the public. Parents go away feeling frustrated. The administration has not done its homework. The program probably can work, but we need more homework before it is implemented," said Francis Carlson.

Fay Lamb, a parent of students at the pilot schools, mentioned the sporadic nature of the fourth attendance group. "They're in three weeks, out four weeks, in four weeks, out four weeks. They've never been in school for nine straight weeks," she said.

Miller stated that he had been a "proponent of year-round school since 1950 and am now somewhat embarrassed that the first time it comes along, I have to oppose it. There has not been sufficient planning or communication with the public."

Lynn Jessup said there had not been consideration of the students in the board's final decision. "Were the students created for the schools or were the schools created for the students?" he asked.

Following comments from the floor, Mrs. Ellsworth circulated explanations of the petition for opposition. Reasons presented included misrepresentation of community and district employes' feelings to the public; incomplete and misleading evaluation and presentation of pilot program results; unexplained and undocumented reversal of June 26, 1973, board decision; undue haste in forcing district families to choose between year-round school and the single traditional school; and inadequate presentation of alternatives.

Mrs. Ellsworth also reported that legal counsel is beginning a process of appeal through the courts and that recall could be considered if the public so desired.

"If we are to continue, you've got to help us. We need strength, time and effort. If you want to have your voices heard, get together," she concluded.

Most of those present took petitions to circulate throughout the community. Others signed up to do volunteer work for the committee in the areas of finance, telephoning and evaluation of comments and feedback.

Water district goes electronic

Walnut will get precise, swift readings on supply

WALNUT — Space-age science, with a $49,000 price tag, has come to the Walnut Valley Water District.

Installation and hook-up is nearly completed on the district's new telemetry equipment—electronic machines which make and record measurements from a distance. With the new units, according to Asst. Manager Jock Reid, the district has precise, head-office control over its five reservoirs and two pumping stations.

The equipment will not only end an era of "eyeball" measurements, says Reid, but will make it possible even for secretaries in the main office at 271 S. Brea Canyon Road to take readings when necessary. Reid said the new system will bolster the quality of the district's service and help save on already-minimal water losses.

Part of master plan

Part of a 10-year master plan followed by the district, the new system has been anticipated for several years. Actual work began in early 1973. Dover Industries of the City of Industry designed and built the equipment, at a cost of $37,000 for purchase and $12,000 for installation.

Dover used several new design techniques in manufacturing the district's unit and now brings customers to the office to show off the units.

Until the units were installed, the district had a field man who spent nearly a half-day every day visiting each of the reservoirs and pumping stations taking readings from charts and meters at each site. This data was relayed by radio or telephone to be placed on master charts at the head office.

When an emergency required new readings or adjustments to controls, field men were dispatched to the site. With telemetry, said Reid, both meters and controls are right at hand—and an alarm system automatically warns the staff, day or night, when something has gone awry. No jobs are lost to automation, he said.

19 Units

Nineteen different units, color-coded to identify the stations connected to them, handle such tasks as measuring the depth of water in the reservoirs, how fast the water is entering and leaving storage tanks, air temperature, water demand at various locations, and so forth. Ultimately the district can have 36 control "modules" in the three large banks of equipment at the head office.

At the reservoirs, similar controls and charts follow the workings of pumps and lines. A sonar device mounted in the top of the reservoirs replaces the previous floats used to measure the depth of water in storage.

With about 9,500 residences drawing water from the district, either directly or through wholesale delivery to contracting water companies, precise control over supply and storage is vital to the district, said Reid.

He pointed out the district has some 200 to 300 miles of water lines serving a capricious public. "When the day is hot," he said through a thick Scottish burr, "our usage will skyrocket—people water their lawns, wash their cars . . . Then the next day might be cold, or it could rain that night, and unless we compensate for a reduced demand we would have water running out our ears."

Water is delivered to the district from a Metropolitan Water District storage center in La Verne via a 48-inch main. To make sure there is a minimum amount of water in storage to meet normal demands, nearly 7 million gallons flows daily into the tanks, plus whatever over that is required. If 12,000 gallons per minute are coming into the tanks and only 6,000 gallons per minute are flowing out, the district has big problems.

Reid said he is required to give MWD 12 hours' notice whenever he plans to alter intake from the supplier by more than 10 per cent. Only in cases of extreme emergency—a large fire, for example—can he break this rule. So when demand is expected to drop off rapidly, the new equipment not only offers accurate, instant data, it also can be set to automatically operate valves on the mains. "I used to have to come down here at midnight to change the flows," he said, "but now I'll get to have my sleep."

Reid spoke proudly of the district's "phenomenal" record in matching supply with demand. He explained that there is always some loss of water in a system, and that costs to taxpayers of the district are affected by water used somehow but not paid for.

Using the old eyeball methods, the district has an average water loss of 4¼ per cent. Most systems consider a 10 per cent loss ratio very good, said Reid. With the new equipment he expects to continue and possibly improve the Walnut outfit's record.

Ultimately, Reid sees telemetry doing a task now performed by geologists using spotty data—measuring the flow of water into and out of underground channels. When that day comes, he said, the district will be able to follow precisely percolation of surface water to recharge underground supply, as well as follow the course of water flowing from the Chino Basin to the Puente Hills Basin and out into the San Gabriel Basin.

Support given landscape plan in Claremont

CLAREMONT — The city Parkway-Tree Commission has recommended to the City Council that the landscaping master plan for the new city yard-police complex be adopted, and that the street tree in front of the police station on the south side of Bonita Avenue be designated as Coast Redwood.

The commission vote was 5-1 with dissenting member Jere French claiming that the redwood and the Victorian box tree, the designated tree for Cornell Avenue, won't mix well.

The landscaping plan calls for redwood trees, prostrate and golden junipers with lily of the Nile and annuals to accent specific areas. Coast redwood will also be planted on Berkeley Avenue, next to the station.

The commission chose redwood because the architectural firm Criley-McDowell and Associates, has used earth-tone, split-face block for thecperimeter wall, and has designated earth-tone buildings accented by dark stained wood.

The commission also has recommended that the council deny a request by Mr. and Mrs. Howard Godlis, 630 Purdue Drive, that a Formose sweet gum not be planted in their front yard.

A purple leaf plum tree was uprooted in the Godlises' front yard during a windstorm last year, and the Godlises have requested that the missing tree be replaced with a similar tree or not at all.

The commission feels that deletion of the street tree could set a precedent and lead to more requests for other trees.

Bicycling club is organized

Cycling enthusiasts have a club of their own in the Pomona Valley, with the informal establishment of the Foothill Freewheelers.

Founding Freewheeler Phil Norton said an organizational meeting held in February ended with a decision not to impose much of a structure on the club.

Twice monthly the group will gather in the parking lot of Montclair Plaza, south of Farrell's Ice Cream Parlour, to take short and medium bike rides interrupted by a gathering for lunch along the way. Most short rides on the first and third Sundays of the month will cover about 10 miles, said Norton, while the medium rides will be 20 to 25 miles long.

Next ride by the club will be March 19. In April, said Norton, the club will hold its regular rides plus one on the second Sunday in conjunction with the Los Angeles Wheelmen.

Every other month the group will hold a "ride planning meeting." One such session will take place April 9 at Norton's home at 505 California Drive, Claremont. No time is set for the session.

Structure of credit union league revised

POMONA — Wilfred F. Broxterman, managing director of the California Credit Union League (CCUL), has announced a new management team which restructures CCUL into four major divisions.

The four divisions and their directors are government and public affairs, Jack Reidy; finance, Neal Coble; self-sustaining services, Jamieson Cook; and service and development, Kenyan Bixby.

The restructuring will allow a smooth work flow from the managing director through the staff and offer greater potential for services to credit unions within California, Broxterman said.

CCUL provides educational, promotional, research, legislative, accounting and data processing services to more than 1,400 member credit unions in California.

Reidy has been the CCUL legislative lobbyists in Sacramento since 1964 as assistant managing director of government affairs. In his new job he will direct legislative and public rfelations programs from Pomona offices.

Coble has been the CCUL since 1960. He started as an accountant and worked his way up to comptroller and assistant managing director of finance.

Cook was director of operations for League Data Processing Service, Inc., before his new assignment. Now he is responsible for the supervision of the California League Services Corp., a wholly-owned subsidiary of CCUL.

Bixby, former regional director of the National Credit Union Administration in Toledo, Ohio, is responsible for membership services, education and training, credit union consultants and stabilization and liquidation.

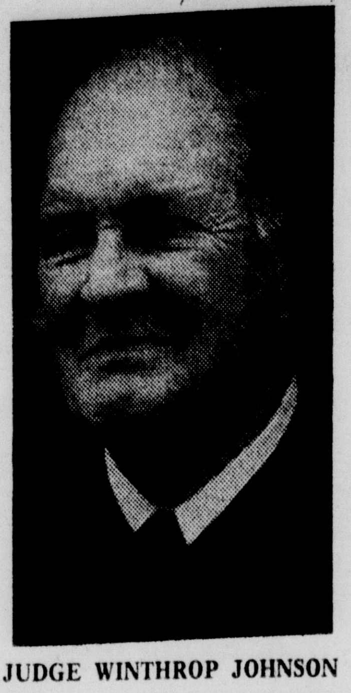
No turnstile justice' for him, says judge in Citrus court race

WEST COVINA — Stating that "turnstyle justice will never have a place in his courtroom," Judge Wintrop Johnson, presiding judge of the Citrus Munnicipal Court, says he will seek another term in office.

Judge Johnson has served the court for more than 14 years. He was elected by his fellow judges to a fourth term as presiding judge this year.

"Having resided in this valley continuously for 28 years, more than half of which I have served on the local bench, I am in close touch with the people of this judicial district and thoroughly aware of the various problems in its respective areas," the judge said.

"I feel strongly that each defendant who comes before me also presents an individual problem which deserves its own experienced consideration and supervision to prevent him from coming back again and enabling him to become a useful citizen."



JUDGE WINTHROP JOHNSON

The judge said he recognizes that "turnstyle justice" does exist but that it will never have a place in his courtroom.

He said his interest in tailoring justice to meet both the human and societal needs has made him instrumental in such innovations as the county work-furlough program which allows jailed offenders to be released from custody during work hours.

"This keeps their families off welfare rolls while serving out their sentences. The program provides that the defendants' paychecks be sent to the county and the cost of keeping the prisoner in custody is deducted before the balance is transmitted to his family."

Judge Johnson spearheaded a program for adequate expansion of the Citrus court facility that enabled the system to stay abreast with the district's growth.

On six different occasions he was selected by the Pomona Valley Bar Association to serve as a delegate to the Conference of State Bar Delegates.

He is a former president of the Pomona Valley Bar Association and initiated the first provision for legal aid service in this area.

Glen Campbell builds his $2 million dream house

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Country boy Glen Campbell has built a home atop a Hollywood mountain that is the grandest of them all.

Already it is being called San Simeon South, Taj Mahal West and Buckingham Americana. Four years abuilding, and still not quite complete, Campbell's home cost nearer $2 million than $1 million.

It is glass and wood and stone with sweeping vistas of Southern California. There is nothing about the place to remind Glen of Delight, Ark., where he was reared, the seventh son in a family of 12 children.

Glen sleepily led the way through his mansion, proud in his own quiet way, of the richness of the surroundings, the highly polished woods, the chandeliers imported from England and Italy.

"I really didn't have much to do with the house," he said. "My wife Billie worked with the architect for months. And then she and the decorator spent a couple of years planning and shopping and buying things.

"I didn't want to get mixed up with the details and wind up with an ulcer. But sure enough, Billie got an ulcer a few months ago and spent four days in the hospital."

Glen said there were 17,000 square feet in the house. He's not quite sure how many rooms there are. All are spacious and airy. The ceilings rise 12 feet high except in the living room and game rooms which soar 35 feet to four-foot beams of laminated oak.

"I like these floors," Glen said. They are parquet, carved oak squares individually laid by hand.

There is a projection room, wine cellar, fur coat storage area, an English country pub with hand-carved bar, and an atrium with a waterfall and exotic trees and plants.

"It keeps things light and bright and cheerful," said Glen.

The children's wing — for Kane, 5; Travis, 8; and Kelly, 12—includes a large game room. The carpet is woven of game boards for checkers, backgamon, Chinese checkers and the like. There is also a bumper pool table and other diversions.

Glen has his own gymnasium —with steam bath—just outside his bedroom filled with the latest in exercise equipment.

Billie's kitchen of red brick tile and richly accented woods is as distinctive as any ever built. It is enormous, and looks out on a swimming pool.

The pool is an immense freeform, rock-walled beauty fed by an elaborate waterfall. Swimmers have a panoramic view of the San Fernando Valley.

Near the pool is a putting green of astroturf. And Glen can drive golfballs into a deep, unoccupied canyon from a tee a few feet away. Flanking the pool is a barbecue area complete with gas grills, refrigerator and comfortable furniture.

On the other side of the house —which sits on seven acres—is a championship tennis court and a pavilion, the latter equipped with refreshment facilities.

A quarter-mile driveway leads to Glen's secluded home. The gates, imported from a castle outside London, weigh six tons. The cost to ship them here boggles the imagination.

But the gates seem only fitting when Billie drives her latest gift from her husband through the portals. It is the only Cadillac Eldorado station wagon in these parts.

If everything about the house has been done on a lavish scale, it also has been accomplished tastefully. Glen's house has enormous warmth and charm.

It has just one drawback. The neighborhood. The Campbell house looks down on Frank Sinatra's place.

Dr. Sabin cites cancer link with environment

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The developer of the oral polio vaccine said recently that since some types of cancer are more prevalent in certain parts of the world, "85 to 90 per cent" of all cancer cases might be prevented by making environmental changes.

"Environmental factors are of the greatest importance" in cancer, said Dr. Albert Sabin, who has been doing cancer research for the past 13 years. "Our way of life needs to be carefully studied.

"If we cut out cigarette smoking we could cut lung cancer dramatically. Smoking definitely causes cancer."

Sabin said development of the polio vaccine was "simple" compared with the problem presented by cancer.

"We must find out why cancer of the stomach is different in Japan, which has a very low incidence, and in the United States, where the incidence is high," he said.

Found new fame in 'Irene'

Jane Powell almost lost chance for second stardom

By DAVID DUGAS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jane Powell is the first to admit she was becoming a candidate for a "Whatever happened to?" story until she replaced Debbie Reynolds in the Broadway musical hit "Irene."

It's been 30 years since she left Portland, Ore., for Hollywood and her first movie, "Song Of the Open Road." She had hardly even heard of her costar, W.C. Fields.

"We had only one scene together and I don't remember what it was," she said with a laugh during a recent interview. "It wasn't on paper. My lines were, but his weren't. I was 14 and had never ad libbed in my life. I just said what I was supposed to say and hoped it came out all right."

Miss Powell went on to become one of Hollywood's most popular singing stars but quit the movies 15 years ago. "Nobody wanted me," she said.

"Irene," her Broadway debut, could change that.

Almost 45

"My agent just called me one day. Then Debbie called," Jane said. "My family talked me into it and I'm glad they did. If it weren't for them I'd still be at home."

Dressed for a winter's day in a bright red turtleneck and skirt with matching turban, she was as slim and trim as in those MGM days when Louis B. Mayer kept thinking she still was 14. There are lines around those blue eyes now but Jane Powell doesn't look as if she'll be 45 on April Fools Day.

Since quitting the movies she has raised three children. She has been married to her manager and third husband, Jim Fitzgerald, for eight years.

She's done night clubs and summer tours in stage musicals and made occasional appearances on television, including a dramatic role in a TV movie last year.

Youngest daughter Lindsey, an 18-year-old Los Angeles high school senior with business ambitions of her own, visited for her mother's opening night. And Fitzgerald's business brings him to New York periodically. Otherwise the actress has her two miniature poodles for company in her rented New York townhouse.

Both actresses began their careers in Hollywood musicals. In one of her first pictures, "Two Weeks With Love," Debbie played Jane's younger sister.

"In movies I always played the same girl," Miss Powell said. "At MGM they said 'Never change' and I didn't. I was exactly the same person every time. You know, 'Stay as sweet as you are.'

"I was just so sickening I couldn't stand it, but I didn't want to disappoint anybody so I always said 'Yes, sir' and 'No, sir.'"

Ugga-boo

At age 25, then a divorced mother of two, Miss Powell still was being cast in roles identical to those she'd played at 14. She quit her MGM contract and made a couple of movies elsewhere, her first nonsinging roles in 15 years of Hollywood stardom. In "Enchanted Island" she played a blue-eyed native girl with Dana Andrews.

"Ugga-boo, ugga-boo-boo-ugga. That sort of thing," she said. "I never did that again. I took the part because the script was good and I got to die in the end. But they wouldn't let me die. They said my fans wouldn't let me. I said—well, I won't tell you what I said. But I thought it was so corny." It was her last picture.

More love story

"Basically I think I make it more of a love story," Miss Powell said. "I don't sing the songs as fast as Debbie did. I'm not as much of a clown as Debbie. I play it straighter than she did."

Miss Powell's contract calls for her to stay with "Irene" until September. Then she expects to go home to California and the Spanish-style house she and her husband recently bought in Bel Air.

If there is one thing she doesn't love about being a Broadway star it's the hours.

"I'm not a night person," she said. "I get to bed fairly early. I know that's a bit different from most people in the theater but I don't function that way. I like the daytime too much.

"I talked to Debbie last night and she said, 'Thank heaven I'm not working.'"

From drug companies, say salesmen

Doctors' gifts told

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The medications your doctor prescribes may be influenced by gifts from drug company salesmen such as color television sets and home freezers, Congress was told this week.

The pharmaceutical manufacturers also shower down their blandishments at drug stores to assure that the prescribed drugs will be stocked, some former drug salesmen testified at a Senate Health subcommittee hearing.

The subcommittee chairman, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said he plans to hear testimony from eight company presidents next week.

"If the patents of this country were getting only the drugs they needed in the appropriate dosages, then this hearing would not be held," Kennedy said in a statement.

He said the situation described by the former salesmen is improper promotion that "smacks of payola."

Bennett Wasserman, 26, a senior at Hofstra Law School, told the subcommittee he had been a "detailman" for 27 months for Merck, Sharp & Dohme. He charged that the "evils of the pharmaceutical marketing system" lead to a greater emphasis on "selling" drugs to doctors and pharmacists than warning them of the drugs' side effects.

"His (the detailman's), misinformation to the customer —the physician —regarding his products may result in physical injury, pain, suffering, even death to the ultimate consumer —the patient," Wasserman testified.

Another witness said: "During the time period when you have very limited time to see the physician, we tried to emphasize the good effects of a particular drug, and there was a tendency not to have time to point out the adverse effects of the particular drug." The witness, Douglas J. Patton, 33, a former salesman for Eaton Laboratories, added:

"There are other ways ... to impress upon the doctor on using the drugs. Some of these methods were giving them gifts, gimmicks —tickets to sporting events, golf balls, golf tees, rain hats, etc."

The more purchases by a doctor, the better price he could pick in one sales promotion, according to Spencer King, 31, of Towson, Md., formerly of Pfizer, Inc. The prizes included home freezers, color television sets, tape recorders and physician bags, he said.

New Aerogramme for NATO birth

By GUSTAV DETJEN JR.

The U.S. Postal Service announced the design of a new aerogramme commemorating the 25th anniversary of the signing of the North Atlantic Treaty and establishment of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The 18-cent air letter is to be used for use when the new international postal rates become effective March 2.

The North Atlantic Treaty has been one of the U.S.'s most important alliances. It initiated a quarter of a century of peace and security in the Atlantic community through collective self-defense. It has also provided for continuing joint action among its members in the political, economic, social and environmental fields.

First day of issue ceremonies will be held in Washington on April 4, the 25th anniversary. Collectors who want first-day cancellations should send requests to "NATO Aerogramme, Postmaster, Washington, D.C. 20013," with payment of 18 cents for each aerogramme wanted. They will be sent under separate cover if you also send your own mailing labels.

"Nature and Environment" is the theme of three 25 cent stamps issued by the Netherlands on Feb. 19. The vertically arranged stamps are printed side-by-side (se-tenant) on the same sheet, a novel formal that emphasizes the interconnection between the different aspects of nature protection.

The center stamp features a tree and represents the Iseful work being done by the State Forestry Service which also observes its 75th anniversary this year. The Dutch legend reads: Staatsbosbeheer which means State Forestry.

The pattern of the tree branches is continued on the third stamp which also depicts the peacefulness of nature and underwater fauna by means of a fisherman and a froh. The text reads: Naturr an Milieu" which translates into Nature and Environment.

Colors of the stamps are deep ultramarine, blue, azure, sea-green, moss-green and black.

As the first of its Nature Conservation Series, Japan will issue a 20-yen stamp depicting an Iriomote Jungle Cat. The stamp will be issued March 25. Information on this issue and older and future ones from Philatelic Agency, Tokyo Central Post Office, Tokyo 100, Japan.

The Canada Post Office has come out with marked improvement the first day cover cancellations. Beginning with the Pacific Coast Indian stamp issue, special cancellation dies will complement the theme of each stamp. In the case of the Feb. 22 issue the cancellation features a stylized teepee. Canadian First Day Covers and information on new issues available from Philatelic Service, Canada Post Office, Ottawa, Ont. K1A OB5, Canada.

The Franklin D. Roosevelt Philatelic Society, devoted to the collecting of Roosevelt stamps, will hold its annual meeting in the Loire, American Hotel, 52nd St. and 7th Ave., New York City, on Sunday, March 24, 4 p.m. Information on the activities of this group from the FDRPS, Box 150, Clinton Corners, N.Y. 12514.

Three life times of research are represented in the newly published 1974 A.T.A. Handbook No. 82 "Birds of the World on Stamps." Under an original professionally designed cover based on the 5 cent U.S. Audubon "Jays" stamp, birds by order and family name (including English and Latin names), country, Scott catalog number, year of issue and value, provide easy identification with or without catalogs. The stamps are also listed alphabetically. Scott and Non-Scott stamps are listed. 236 bird stamps issuing entities are included and 1,063 species are shown. There are seven pages of representative stamps illustrated. 104 pages. Priced at $6, but introductory orders are filled at only $5. Order from American Topical Association, 3308-D North 50th St., Milwaukee, Wis. 53216.

LOSE A POUND A DAY AND MORE

Vitamin 'E' Discovery Offers Fast Weight Loss

HOLLYWOOD (Special) — New scientific discoveries have produced a Vitamin E diet that quickly works wonders on overweight people, and reportedly is gaining great popularity across the country with glowing reports of easy weight loss "while still eating almost as much as you want."

Those who follow the simple Vitamin E diet report an average loss of at least a pound a day and even more without exercise or starvation. Nutritionists' files are bulging with happy testimonials from formerly overweight people who are now trim and slim again. Best of all, you can still eat almost as much as you want of the "forbidden foods" like steak, chicken, fish, sauces, gravies, bacon & eggs and still lose weight.

Chewable (candy-like vitamin E tablets, as used in the diet plan, contain a new scientific combination of ingredients that guickly curbs and controls the appetite, while also giving the wonderous benefits of Vitamin E which is so essential to good health.

The use of the new Vitamin E Diet tablets and foods prescribed in the plan will, through natural action, act to help your body use up excess fat. According to recent clinical test, a person who is deficient in Vitamin E or Protein "will double the speed of fat utilization" with the use of Vitamin E.

Rx for overweight: a handcraft hobby

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Are you overweight? Try taking up a handcraft hobby to keep your hands and mind busy and away from food.

Dr. L. Melvin Elting, an osteopathic physician in Teaneck, N.J., said many "compulsive eaters" eat out of habit as a background to whatever they may be doing regardless of their interest in food. They don't really taste what they're eating or even realize what they are doing.

"To try to break this insidious pattern, I insist my patients take up a hobby or, rather, I insist that they change their unconscious hobby, food, to almost any other one they can do with their hands," Elting said in a report in the current issue of the journal, Obesity and Bariatric Medicine.

"Since hands must be actively involved, the handcrafts become the logical choice, and many of my formerly fat patients have become happily involved in macrame, mosaics, woodworking, stained glass and, my own choice, metalworking in brass or silver."

He said metal working appears to be specifically suited for persons with a weight problem because it keeps them moving and requires standing as well as sitting.

"While the overweight individual may scarcely appreciate this fact at first, it is a psychological first step toward getting him into a pattern of doing something other than eating while standing," Elting said. "While most fat people take their 'three squares' a day sitting down, they do a considerable amount of between meals eating standing up."

He said a handcraft for overweight people must be something that can be worked at continously for a few minutes or a few hours, but not something that must be completed immediately. Elting said if an obese person feels he must finish a project quickly, "he never will complete it. He'll eat instead."

To be successful, Elting said the hobby should not cost too much because, "no matter how much the obese person spends on food, he will be quick to notice any large amounts of money he has to spend on therapy."

"And a handcraft-hobby should be fun," he said. "That's the whole point of it. At best it can be a family affair with everyone joining in and relaxing together. If this is not possible, certainly it should provide for the obese individual not so much a therapy as a relaxation and pleasure far greater than food."

Elting said another advantage of metal working and many other handcrafts is that they keep the individual's hands dirty while he is working.

"Few individuals, no matter how unbounded their appetities, will care to handle food with grimy hands. Finger or snack foods are especially disqualified — and these, of course, are just the ones most conveniently at hand. Since most people become fat by convenience, that is the ability to have a piece of food at the slightest excuse with the least amount of effort, they are now faced with the necessity of providing an effort (washing their hands) before they can eat," he said.

Discrimination charged by 52 Chicano groups

The federal court suit charges that the agency is run by and for blacks and discriminates against Mexican-Americans. The suit alleges that the agency discriminates in its hiring and promotion policies as well as its distribution of funds.

52 Chinese paintings to be shown at museum

LOS ANGELES — An exhibition of 52 masterpieces of Chinese painting from the collection of scholar-collector James Cahill will open March 19 in the Ahmanson Gallery of the county Museum of Art.

The exhibition will be presented in two parts: "Chinese Paintings of the Yuan and Ming Dynasties" from March 19 to April 21 and "Chinese Paintings of the Ch'ing Dynasty" from April 27 to June 2.

The Cahill collection is particularly strong in paintings of the Ming (1368-1644) and Ch'ing (1644-1911) Dynasties, but also includes works from the Yuan Dynasty such as the landscape, "Wind and Snow in Pines and Firs," by Kuo Min. From the Ming and Ch'ing Dynasties are the Che School works of Wu Wei and Chang Lu, as well as orthodox paintings of the Wu School such as a mountain landscape by Wen Chia, drawn with delicate brush strokes and refined detail.

The breadth and scope of literati painting which exemplified Chinese humanistic ideals is revealed through works by such orthodox masters as Wang Chien and Wang Hui. In contrast to these artists are the eccentric works of individualists such as Shih-t'ao and the masters of Yang-Chou who, with bold and whimsical imagery and spontaneous use of brush and ink, shattered the conventions of academic art.

The exhibition presents a broad range of works including landcapes, figures, and bird-and-flower paintings executed with strong linear brush strokes, and subtle washes of ink on silk or paper.

Cahill, professor of Oriental art history at the UC Berkeley, has gradually acquired these works since his days as a young art history student. Equipped with a sensitive eye, vast knowledge and an adventurous spirit, he would seek unrecognized masterpieces and unique works by noted artists.

In conjunction with the exhibition, two free lectures will be offered in the Leo S. Bing Theater. The first will be given by Cahill who will speak on "Reflections of a Scholar-Collector of Chinese Painting" on March 31 at 2 p.m. and the second titled "Chinese Paintings from the Ch'ing Dynasty" will be given on April 28 at 2 p.m. by Professor Chu-tsing Li, professor of Oriental art history at the University of Kansas and research curator at the William Rockhill Nelson Gallery of Kansas City.

A free brochure prepared by George Kuwayama, senior curator of Far Eastern art is available, and guided tours are offered Thursdays at 12:30 p.m. The exhibition can be seen Tuesday through Friday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and weekends 10 a.m. to 6 pm. Admission is free.

Squid demand is on the rise

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The multitudinous squid, rubbery creatures that spawn by the billions at the bottom of the sea, may move from delicacy to protein source on America's menu.

Even though few Americans have developed a taste for the 10-armed mollusks, demand is rising fast, mostly for export.

Greeks, Italians, Portuguese, Chinese and Japanese regard squid as a favorite food, and restaurants offer it here. Otherwise, Americans have shown little interest in squid except as fish bait.

"But they will before long—they'll be an important source of protein one of these days," according the Forrest Zielke of Royal Pacific Seafood Co.

"The trouble with Americans is they'll eat squid in restaurants but not at home because they don't know how to prepare it," he said.

People who do eat squid pay about 50 cents a pound retail at San Diego's fish markets, and dealers speculate most of what they sell goes into Greek and Italian dishes.

Royal Pacific, one of three firms which pack squid here, freezes it for shipment and can process up to 20,000 pounds a day. Most of it goes to the Orient.

Zielke said daily catches run as high as 8,000 pounds, and the port has become a major west coast center for handling squid. Three years ago, the port did not report measurable squid landings.

In the past, the squid boats went into San Pedro and Monterey but there are a lot of boats operating here this year," John Barry, a fish and game department warden who checks incoming loads, said. "There must be at least seven to 10 different boats making landings here now."

Squid, related to abalone, clams and other shellfish, have only vestigal shells and can be regarded as being nearly all meat. They can be cooked several ways and often are used in soups.

The taste is pronounced but not fishy, something like abalone, and the texture is firm to tough.

Squid taken off the Southd ern California coast run about a foot long, counting the arms that surround the mouth, but a giant variety weighing up to 70 pounds apiece has been caught in tuna fishing areas off Central America.

"We're just setting up a monitoring program now," Ray Ally, marine biologist for the California Fish and Game Department at the research center at Long Beach, said. "Very little is known about what happens to them between spawning and hatching."

The department regards squid as an underfished natural resource, and the state is starting a research program to learn more about it as a possible major economic factor.

Fishing methods vary. Instead of bait, bright lights are dropped into the water during darkness to attract the squid.

On smaller boats, they are taken aboard with hand nets, but more sophisticated fishermen use a large hose that sucks the squid up like a vacuum cleaner.

One problem is season availability. Zielke said the habits of squid restrict fishing to a few months out of the year.

LORN HIGH ADMIRAL — Oregon State Atty. Gen. Lee Johnson holds spyglass as he made an appearance at Dorchester Conference recently in Seaside, Ore., in uniform of Lord High Admiral of the Oregon Navy. Johnson wore the uniform, his old Navy outfit, to show that he was prepared to enforce law recently passed in Oregon placing a 50-mile limit for fishing off the Oregon coast.

McCall in spotlight over action program

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — When faced with a problem, Oregon's Gov. Tom McCall says the best policy "is to do something, almost anything."

In the process of doing things, McCall has attracted a degree of national attention unusual for the governor of a small state tucked away in the shadow of California.

Republican McCall, 60, has even managed to turn his lame duck administration into a slightly serious campaign for the U. S. presidency as the candidate of a "third force."

Most recently, McCall's doings have put Oregon on a voluntary but fairly effective gas purchase plan that has been adopted by several other states and which is seen by federal energy officials as a means of averting coupon-type national gas rationing.

McCall put Oregon in the forefront of the energy conservation effort last fall by first asking, then ordering, businesses to turn off their advertising lights. He was on shaky legal ground but reasoned he could not "stand around waiting for all the answers" while Oregon's industry closed down for lack of power.

The advertising lights used only a small amount of electricity, but McCall's ban gave a psychological boost to the average citizen who was asked to turn off lights in his home, turn down the thermostat and drive at 55 miles per hour. Oregonians saw that McCall was doing something and they responded with an impressive conservation effort.

In 1970, violence threatened as antiwar factions planned demonstrations during the national American Legion convention in Portland. Rather than risk street confrontations, McCall gambled his re-election chances and opened a nearby state park for the young demonstrators. The Woodstockstyle gathering released much of the pressure and the antiwar demonstrations were reduced to tolerable dimensions.

In recent years Oregon has come up with several major innovations. Not all the ideas came from McCall, but they were clearly helped along by him and the "Oregon attitude" he so diligently cultivates.

In this category are laws banning nonreturnable beverage containers, setting aside highway funds for bicycle trails, minimizing the penalty for marijuana possession, opening state and local government meetings to the public protecting reporters from being forced to reveal confidential sources of information.

The dominant theme of McCall's two-term administration has been environmental protection. His recurring nightmare has been that Oregon would suffer the scourge of uncontrolled development that struck California.

That fear led McCall to issue a warning to out-of-state residents.

At first he said it would be tolerable for people to visit Oregon if they just would not stay. Lateer he said even tourism, a major Oregon industry, was threatening the state's well being.

McCall has not fared well in his efforts to revise the state's tax system. In 1969 he proposed a sales tax. "The voters buried me in a thundering avalanche," he recalls.

In 1973 McCall offered a plan for school financing at the state level but the voters rejected that, too. McCall was deeply disappointed and says he "was ready to quit."

Still popular

But Oregonians held no grudge against their still popular governor. Many took time to write him and say they were sorry they had to vote against the complex plan.

A minor misfire occurred last month when the governor, again trying to lead the charge on the energy front, ordered a German-built Audi to replace his gas-guzzling American limousine.

It was difficult enough for McCall to fold his six-foot-five-inch frame into the small import, but the howl from domestic auto dealers did not help. McCall decided the Audi, even with its good gas mileage, would not be an adequate traveling office and it has not been seen since.

McCall began his career as a newspaper reporter. He later switched to radio news and then became a television commentator. He still regards the job of the news reporter "as one of the most delicate tasks in the civilized world."

Wide open administration

That attitude has resulted in a wide-open administration in which even the governor's daily staff meetings are open to reporters.

She's her own best friend

By ERMA BOMBECK

For the last nine months, a book called "How To Be Your Own Best Friend" has led the list of best sellers.

I have purposely ignored the book because the last time I tried to be a friend to myself I took me to lunch, gained three pounds and have been suspicious of me ever since.

My resistance to thinking highly of myself goes back to my childhood when I was taught to take a chicken back and pass the rest on, hold the door open until the entire city filed in-out, always vote for my opponent for row monitor, and run to the end of every line. How could I have respect for the loser like that?

Ironically, my best friend, Mayva, talked me into reading the book. "You are always putting yourself down," she said, "and you've got a lot going for you."

"If I had any more going for me, I'd tell my life story in an Ayds ad."

"There you go again," she said, "making fun of yourself. Just read the book. You'll see on the jacket that Berry Berenson and Nora Ephron loved it."

"No kidding," I gasped, snatching it from her hand.

I sat there holding the book for a full hour trying to figure out who Berry Bernson and Nora Ephron were. Then I began to read.

The next morning when Mayva popped in she said, "You wanta go to Revco? They've got a sale on vitamins."

"I am in command of my own destiny, Mayva. No one tells me what to do anymore. I'm my own woman."

"Terrific," she said. "Have you got gas?"

"You have never appreciated my potential, have you, Mayva? I think it would surprise you to know that I have talents worth dwelling on."

"Yes, but do you have a tank full of gas?"

"There's a child in me, Mayva . . . "

"My God."

"Not THAT kind of child. Let me finish. There's a child in me that is like being born again. I am opening my eyes to my own wonderfulness. From here on in, I am going to listen to my own voice."

El Teatro Campesino

POMONA — El Teatro Campesino, que principio en 1965 entre los huelguistas en Delano, presentara la obra, "La Carpa de los Rasquachis," el Martes proximo, principindo a las 8 p.m. en el auditorio de Pomona Unified School District. Esta presentacion sera gratis.

La representacion de el Teatro Campesino habia sido planeada para presentarla en el Mark Taper Forum en Los Angeles cuando el grupo accedio a dar una presentacion especial en Cal Poly.

Debido a circunstancias imprevistas, el acuerdo con el Forum tuvo que cancelarse y el teatro en la universidad no pudo conseguirse en virtud de un compromiso anterior.

El Teatro fue el punto de interes durante las reuniones de cada noche, a traves de la marcha de 300-millas que recorrieron por 24-dias hasta llegar a la ciudad de Sacramento durante la primavera de 1966.

El Teatro principio a viajar, presentando su mensaje y al mismo tiempo recaudando fondos para la union, con el tiempo viajaron por todo el pais. La cualidad unica del drama y mensaje del Teatro fueron reconocidas nacionalmente y en 1968 el Teatro recibio el Obie Award por sus representaciones.

Desde 1971, el Teatro ha trabajado fuera del area de San Jose, Calif., y su repertorio incluye titeres, dramas, peliculas, literatura dramatica, un conjunto de calaveras, actos y su mas reciente produccion, "La Carpa."

La historia es original de Jesus Rasquachis, un agricultor Chicano y sus hijos que siguen la cosecha como la pobreza los sigue a ellos. El jefe, dueno del terreno, es el explotador, pero solo la nonviolencia resultando de un despertar espirittual parece efectual un cambio duradero. dero.

La comedia no ataca a su audiencia pero se encuentra con ellos, antes, durante y despues de la representacion. Hace una demostracion conmovedora de lo que puede hacerse cuando la gente trabaja junta por una causa comun.

La presentacion del Teatro en Pomona sera la unica en el sur de California por este ano, e iniciara una gira a traves de todo el pais.

The valley's all aquiver over belly dancing

By JON MORRIS
P-B Staff Writer

"Gyrate that belly."

"Yes," Paula English said, "Move every muscle. Make your body work for you."

Miss English, a teacher of Middle Eastern belly dancing, was barking out orders to her class at Ganesha Park Community Center in Pomona.

She is an active participant in the revival of an ancient dance that has caught on in the Pomona Valley, she claims, "like wildfire."

Many valley women are taking up a dance that Miss English says was pioneered in 4,000 B.C. by Mesopotamian love goddess Ishtar.

They may not be moving their frames exactly like Ishtar did, but for most of the women, excellence in belly dancing is not their main purpose. They have found it to be a great form of exercise, and useful in shedding excess weight.

Housewives and other women of all ages are joining city parks and recreation department classes in Pomona, Claremont, Upland and Chino in increasing numbers. Aside from their yearning to be physically fit, many seek to develop their "sensuousness," recreation leaders say.

"They want to turn their husbands on," said one recreation official. "Through this dance, women can make themselves more alluring, and add spark to their marriage."

Belly dancing can be an excellent conversation item at parties also, says Fred Taunton, Upland's recreation director. And if dancers end up giving a command performance, that's fun and "certainly not risque," he added.

Other women find the dance "different" and "exciting," and some even entertain hopes of becoming professional belly dancers.

Contrary to some people's beliefs, the dance definitely is not vulgar and has been elevated from the old "hoochie coo," as it once was called, Taunton says.

"Older women have complained to me, and asked if it could be called something other than belly dancing. But I don't feel it's vulgar, and I don't know anyone taking the class in order to be "vulgar."

Taunton admitted he's received one phone call and two letters complaining about the fact ladies were "showing their navels." He added that when he responded to the letters, they turned out to be false addresses.

"We've had the class for a year and a half," he said, "and have taught about 800 students. We've enjoyed such a great response that we were running seven classes of 20 persons each for a while."

Recreation leaders in Chino, Claremont and Pomona, where classes currently are being held, also indicated they strongly support the program. Only a minor amount of protest has been heard, they say.

"It's been well accepted by the community," stated Sherri Schmid, Pomona recreation supervisor. "We had 70 participants the first time we offered it last December."

Claremont has been holding belly dancing classes for more than a year, and Chino started one last summer. Response to the classes has been overwhelming.

"We get women who continue to sign up," noted Jack Anderson, Chino's recreation director. "They get a kick out of it; it's something to take home to their husbands."

Other valley communities such as Montclair and San Dimas have offered belly dancing in the past, but don't have it now. Recreation officials in both cities expect to offer it again in the future.

Typical class fees, ranging from $9 in Pomona to $20 in Montclair for an eight or nine-week class, are inexpensive. Teachers, such as Miss English, are competent and some have had experience as professional dancers.

Miss English, 21, favors the Turkish form of belly dancing, whereas Charlene Nownam, who teaches in Upland, emphasizes the Arabic.

Both dancers are knowledgeable in history of the dance, and Mrs. Newman has danced professionally at the Seventh Veil in Hollywood and Arabian Nights in Upland.

Interesting perhaps to her students, Mrs. Newnam throws in a little Gestalt (awareness) therapy and certain yoga techniques with the belly dance. "All this makes women more aware of their

Unknown pest control firm could eat away $$

I was visited by some representatives of a pest control company who said they found termites in my house after a short inspection.

They said they could offer what I have figured as a 25 per cent reduction of their usual charge. They said they could save by doing my house at the same time as a group of others in the same neighborhood.

Also, how can I find out where the firm is located since it isn't in the Pomona telephone directory? — R.M., Pomona.

You gave us the name of the firm. Although we looked in several directories, we couldn't find it.

Our advice is to pick out two or three firms with a local reputation to protect and compare prices, even if you have to pay a small amount for an inspection.

Some people we know have been told their homes were infected with termites only to find out later that this wasn't true.

Only their bank accounts were in danger of being eaten away.

My daughter has been separated from her husband. She is going to school to learn a profession so she can support herself.

She has tried to get on welfare for medical aid but was turned down.

Her father and I have been trying to help out with as many of her bills as we can but we also have our own bills to take care of.

She does need to be under a doctor's care so we were wondering: Is she or is she not eligible for medical aid?—Mrs. P.G., Montclair.

Factors which enter into welfare eligibility can be very complex and each case differs. If your daughter was found to be ineligible, we must assume that she was.

When you talked to us about her problems, you said that she is making payments on a 1972 car. This seems to us to be pretty expensive transportation for anyone asking for welfare funds.

Perhaps you can help me with the following — and it may be a bit of a change of pace from landlords and credit problems:

I am trying to locate a travel club named Freelandia. It is supposedly a low cost club with a flexible schedule and itinerary based on members' desires.

Each time I heard the name I tried to locate the address but thus far have not been successful. — M.Y., Claremont.

FOLLOW-UP:

Robert Olin of Olin Construction Co. called to bring us up to date on the proposal for a senior citizen apartment on the old Emerson Junior High School site.

Mrs. P. M. of Pomona wrote to Action Line to find out what she should do to voice approval of housing for senior citizens. We advised her to write to the mayor.

She had read that the project was turned down by the Planning Commission but the decision was appealed to the City Council.

Balconies and patios were among the issues debated by the city planning staff and Olin representatives.

Olin now tells us that his firm has agreed to provide balconies and patios for approximately 50 per cent of the units in the proposed complex.

The hearing date for the appeal is March 18.

Abandoned cars never die but they're now starting to fade away

By L. T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

CLAREMONT — Gradually those abandoned vehicles are being removed from vacant lots, hillsides and front yards.

Since a local abatement program began last August, 63 have been delivered to dismantlers, put out of sight or restored to service.

The California Highway Patrol has been assigned the task of removing vehicles which become eyesores. Officers are being aided in their task by street sweepers, mailmen and citizens who spot and report them.

An estimated 500 to 600 such vehicles are believed to be located in the Pomona Valley, said Capt. W. C. Jones, area CHP commander. These not only include cars and station wagons but also trailers and even motorcycles.

Officer assigned full-time

The Claremont CHP office, geared to process up to 125 vehicles a month, has one full-time officer assigned to the task. He is assisted, however, by other patrolmen who see these cars on their beats.

"Most vehicles are being removed from the La Puente and Hacienda Heights areas," said Jones. "And most are found on vacant lots, backyards or open fields."

The legal process of getting the vehicles removed can be long, tedious and sometimes frustrating.

The officer must locate the owner to determine if the vehicle has really been abandoned. This may involve only a knock on a door or a check of the license number or registration plate.

Letters are sent to some owners asking for waivers of ownership so the vehicles can be removed. Waiting for a reply takes both time and patience.

Once the red tape is cut, local wrecking yards tow these away for the parts and metal they contain.

A case of frustration

The owner contacted the Claremont office to report that a number of cars had been left by tenants on the parking lots, in driveways and under carports.

"He assured us that all 11 cars had been left there for over one year," said Jones. "We then attempted to find the owners through vehicle registrations. Some we couldn't find."

After the mandatory 19-day wait, the cars were towed away. But several hours after the tow trucks had left, West Covina police began getting stolen car reports, he noted. "We had the tow truck hook up four of these vehicles and return them to the apartment complex."

The episode did have a happy ending, declared Jones. It caused the owners to either restore the vehicles to running condition or move them into enclosed buildings.

At present, the abatement program is limited locally to only Los Angeles County. The Claremont office is assigned a service area extending from the San Gabriel River Freeway to the San Bernardino and Riverside county lines.

This excludes the cities of Pomona and La Verne which have their own abatement programs. It does include the communities of Claremont, San Dimas, Covina, West Covina, La Puente, Hacienda Heights, Industry, Baldwin Park, Duarte, Irwindale and Walnut.

Some in canyons

Once the program is extended into San Bernardino County, Jones has already spotted several vehicles in the Mt. Baldy area to be removed. He observed several at the bottoms of canyons while making a recent helicopter rescue of a family whose truck became stuck in the snow. "We can't do anything about them now, but they are at the top of my list when the program is expanded."

Jones believes his office is making headway in removing these vehicles. "We are processing about 12 per month, which is higher than the estimated six to eight abandoned every month."

Vehicle owners have been very cooperative in the abatement program, he reported. "Once they realize their cars may be an eyesore, they will let the highway patrol haul them away or will take care of these themselves."

Some owners may want to restore the autos and will move them into garages.

"Our contact sometimes jogs them into action," he added.

Most vehicles abated are late 1950 or early 1960 models. "Anything older than that might be considered antiques."

Of the 63 vehicles abated so far, 34 were hauled to dismantlers, 23 were enclosed by owners in buildings, and six were restored to service.

Storage firm to build site for residents' use

POMONA — Residents will soon have a mini-warehouse to store those extra odds and ends.

The buildings, with 47,250 square feet of space, are valued at $343,000.

The permits topped Pomona building activity during February, in which the 182 permits issued represented a combined valuation of $840,251. This brought the city's two month total to 301 permits and a $1.1 million valuation.

For the second month, no permits were issued for any residential dwellings.

Residents, however, showed great willingness to repair and expand their present homes. Officials reported issuing 141 permits for dwelling alterations and additions, having a $204,880 valuation.

One permit was also given for construction of a residential garage. The project is valued at $500.

In addition, an apartment house owner received a permit to rehabilitate apartment buildings and garages at 805-819 S. Buena Vista Ave. The cost is estimated at $30,000.

Other major projects last month included:

—Completion of work started in 1970 for a 264 bed convalescent hospital at 250 W. Artesia St., $90,000.

—One-story structure for Sunday school classrooms at First Assembly of God, 305 E. Arrow Highway, $50,000.

—Alterations of a city recreation building, 865 E. Grand Ave., $11,000.

Permits were also issued for these building categories:

—Swimming pools, one, $2,115; additions and alterations to non residential buildings, eight, $125,235; all other permits, eight, $73,306; signs, 10, $21,900; residential buildings demolished or moved out, six, $2,750; and non residential buildings demolished, three, $6,565.

Colleges relent on cuts in black studies budget

CLAREMONT — Faced with strong opposition from black students, staff, faculty and community members, Claremont Colleges officials have relented in a proposed belt-tightening 9 per cent cut in next year's budget for the Black Studies Center.

E. Howard Brooks, provost of the colleges, said "the colleges have listended to the complaints and have proposed some compromises" which James Garrett, director of the center, is currently considering.

Specifically, Brooks said, the colleges have agreed to fully restore a summer tutorial program for up to 20 entering freshman students and to reduce a proposed $2,850 increase in the cost of maintenance of the center's offices by $1,500.

Brooks mentioned no exact figures on the compromise offer, but said that the colleges "remain in a pretty flexible position" on the amount.

Officials had originally decided to trim the current budget of $216,000 down to $195,000.

In order to meet that figure, Brooks also suggested some possible faculty staff and program cuts. The cuts prompted black students and center supporters to circulate public letters asserting that the actions "may result in the Black Studies Center either closing down or operating on a minimum staff load, beginning in July, 1974."

Center Director Garrett, commenting in an interview earlier this week, said the cuts would make it "difficult to carry on a serious, substantive program." The program would be crippled, he said, precipitating other cutbacks due to lack of student interest.

In addition to the cuts, the students, in their letter, expressed concern over the drop in black admissions and charged individual college administrations with harassing black students in classrooms and dormitories.

A spokesman at the center said cases of harassment were currently being documented and could not relate any specific incidents. The spokesman added, however, that some students had reported being advised not to take black studies courses if they intended to enroll in graduate study.

Brooks said that he had no documentation of black student harassment and that he had "never been able to run down a case of discriminatory advice."

He noted that college presidents have been cautioned to insure students receive nonprejudicial advice on their campuses.

He added that "we are terribly concerned about the decline in minority enrollments." The problem is largely caused by increasing educational costs, he said. The colleges are maintaining their minority recruitment and admissions services and are making efforts to find additional sources of student aid money, he said.

Danger of old fire extinguishers cited

POMONA — The fire department is cautioning residents against the use of the carbon tetrachloride fire extinguisher that often releases deadly gas fumes.

Chief John Fowlkes said the use of the old-fashioned, hand-pumped extinguishers is outlawed because of its hazards to the user.

History's guide to impeachment

The House of Representatives can impeach President Nixon for almost any reason it chooses. In early American impeachements, in fact, the articles were not prepared until after impeachment had been voted on.

But political reality being what it is in this 1974 election year, when all members of the House must face gravely concerned voters and explain their actions, Congress most certainly must decide some thorny constitutional questions before a majority will likely be willing to vote yea or nay on indicting the President of the United States.

These are the problems:

Can a president be charged for the actions of his subordinates?

James Madison argues yes. It would, Madison said "... subject him to impeachment himself if he suffers them to perpetuate with impunity high crimes or misdemeanors against the United States, or neglects to superintend their conduct, so as to check their excesses."

But Elbridge Gerry, another framer of the Constitution, disagreed, arguing subordinate officers should bear their own responsibility.

Can a president be removed from office because he has, in the minds of the majority of the House and two-thirds of the Senate, exhibited such habitual disregard of the public interest that his actions have cost him the confidence of the nation to such a degree he can no longer govern effectively?

Time and again, in the 13 instances in which U.S. officials have been impeached, this charge has been made and strongly argued. However, the fact that only four of the 13 were convicted does not speak strongly for the practical effectiveness of this charge.

Can a president legitimately be removed for defying the will of Congress and, if he can, how serious must that defiance be?

President Andrew Johnson was charged with having failed to respect the prerogatives of Congress in removing Edwin M. Stanton as secretary of war; the issue was whether the President or Congress should have the constitutional and military power to make and enforce Reconstruction policy in the South.

In British history, where the impeachment article in the U.S. constitution has its roots, impeachment was used regularly to increase the power of Parliament and to clip the power of the King. That is, Parliament regularly removed those ministers who most effectively advanced the King's will.

Can a president be held liable for impeachment for evading taxes and did Mr. Nixon in fact willfully evade his proper share?

Can a president properly be removed on such difficult-to-define but important charges as subverting the democratic process? If he can, how can such actions be defined. Are the individual charges of great import, or is it rather, as has been held in the number of previous U.S. impeachments, the entire course of his conduct in office.

These constitutional points will be of little importance, of course, if the House determines that Mr. Nixon has been guilty of criminal acts, or has participated in the obstruction of justice.

It should be noted that actual crime will be exceedingly difficult to prove. The constitutional points outlined above are, in the main, so subjective that Congressman, whichever way he votes, will find his actions almost impossible to explain to many of his constituents. It is therefore easy to understand how both Mr. Nixon and former Attorney-General Elliot Richardson can both be convinced that in the end there will be no impeachment.

Light and liability

Americans have responded well to the call to cut back on their use of energy — in some cases too well.

The owners of commercial and residential properties who use the energy crisis as an excuse to reduce lighting excessively "can jeopardize the safety of tenants and visitors and subject themselves to liability suits," warns Leonard M. Ring, president of the Association of Trial Lawyers of America, the nation's largest trial bar association.

The association, says Ring, has received scores of reports from state trial bar associations and individual members telling of a significant increase in injuries and assaults that can be traced directly to insufficient lighting.

Public hallways, stairwells, basements, fire escape exits, corridors, garages and approaches to vending machines and laundry rooms are among the areas that should be properly illuminated, he says.

"Failure to provide adequate lighting in these public facilities can lead to serious personal injuries and be an open invitation to muggers and thieves to lurk in a darkened corner, waiting to prey on unsuspecting citizens."

Noting that there is ample precedence which holds a property owner liable for injuries sustained by tenants because of faulty lighting or a landlord's carelessness, Ring stresses that the meager amount of money that could be saved by cutting back on lighting is far outweighed by the time and funds that can be consumed in a lengthy liability suit.

In other words, a penny saved by landlords on the light bill could means pounds of legal grief.

Probe Legion for White House ties

WASHINGTON — The Watergate prosecutors have been investigating, of all groups, the American Legion on suspicion that the White House used legionnaires to stand up to left-wing demonstrators.

To the bewilderment of National Adjutant William Hauck, who has been a determinedly nonpartisan friend of presidents since 1952, he was called in for interrogation by the prosecutors.

Hauck duly appeared before a stern, young lawyer named Nick Ackerman who, ironically, won the American Legion "Voice of Democracy" award at high school in 1965. Ackerman wanted to know whether the White House had tried to get the legion to bus in members for the funeral of J. Edgar Hoover.

The prosecutors apparently thought the White House tried to recruit legionnaires to square off with left-wing demonstrators at the funeral, thereby stirring up sentiment against President Nixon's enemies on the left. It's known that the Cuban Watergate burglary team was sent to squabble with the demonstrators.

The long-suffering Hauck was also interrogated about the legion's history and its stand on the Pentagon Papers case. He was even questioned, astonishingly, about the White House tapes.

Hauck confided to us that he was "dumfounded" at the questioning. Nevertheless, he patiently denied that the White House had contacted the legion about the Hoover funeral or meddled in legion policies.

He also checked with other top legionnaires and wrote a private letter to Ackerman, stating they also had received no call "urging the influx of busloads of American legionnaires to attend Mr. Hoover's funeral."

At the Watergate Special Prosecutor's office, a spokesman said it was "absolutely wrong" to say the legion was under investigation. "We have asked many patriotic Americans to cooperate with us and regret very much that anyone would assume this meant we were investigating them," said the spokesman.

The spokesman's definition of investigation differs with the dictionary definition and the impression left on the legion.

As described by intelligence reports from the battle zone, the Chinese are led by officers in close touch with Peking.

Their thrusts into the hills and towns of northern Burma threaten not only Burma but Thailand, which has close military ties with the United States. There are no reports, however, that American special forces in Thailand have intervened in the spreading conflict.

The transcript of an unusual Morse radio transmission from the northern Shan states of Burma tells of powerful Communist action against Shan opium armies and troops of the "KMT (Taiwan)," a Chinese Kuomintang force in Burma.

Relayed by Shan rebel army transmitters, the message says: "CPB (Communist Party, Burma) attack KMT (Taiwan) in Mong Sang on Jan. 21, 1974, 0500 hours ... 15 KMT killed and many wounded." The message claims many weapons were seized by the Communists.

A second message reports: "CPB occupied Mong Sang ... Shan United Army (a rebel anti-Communist group) and KMT (Taiwan) retreated." More clashes between the Communists and the Shan armies have been reported in the wireless transmissions of Hpa Heing. Chiang Lain, Om Tung, Kat Lof and Wan Ho Nar.

From other intelligence sources, we have learned that the Communists now threaten the Burmese district capital of Keng Tung and may control the only road connecting it with the rest of Burma.

Another message claims that the Chinese guerrillas probably hold "most of the area between the Nam Pang river and the Salween area" — a huge tract of misty mountains and deep gorges in northern Burma.

Rep. Lester Wolff, D-N.Y., chairman of the House International Narcotics subcommittee, has established contacts with the Shan army to keep abreast of the opium trade. He has learned that the Chinese military moves may jeopardize his efforts to free two Russian doctors, who were kidnaped by Shan rebels from a Soviet mercy mission to Burma.

The Russians have secretly asked Wolff's help in getting the doctors back. To Wolff's astonishment, he was called from a sick bed to meet with a soviet diplomat on the matter. Wolff promised to do what he could.

The congressman has used his contacts to seek the doctors' relief. The intermediaries, as a gesture, tried to smuggle two bottles of vodka to them via caravan routes into northern Burma. The vodka, Wolff has learned, was intercepted. But he has received unconfirmed reports that one of the doctors has now been sent southward in a jade caravan to freedom.

The other, as far as can be determined, remains in Shan rebel hands without his vodka. He is being held hostage as part of a bizarre scheme to get talks going on Shan independence from Burma.

FOOTNOTE: A Socal spokesman told my associate Jack Cloherty that the memos are "obviously accurate" but that Socal still contends its wells are "geologically independent." He called the preliminary injunction an effort to "stand in place for awhile" so the judge could study the complex case.

His bodyguard was bolstered and special precautions were taken at ringside, all unknown to the sell-out Madison Square Garden crowd.

The threat was made after New Year's Day while Frazier was training in a Philadelphia gym. The pay phone rang and trainer William Neil answered. What followed, as Frazier's lawyer Bruce Wright recounted it to us, was a vicious diatribe against Frazier.

The caller, who said he represented an organization of ghetto blacks, castigated Frazier in gutter terms. "We're going to kill you!" he snarled.

Neill immediately informed the ex-champion who shrugged and said with a sigh: "Here we go again." He was referring to similar calls, which preceded his 1971 triumph over Ali. At that time, a tight security cordon was thrown around both Frazier and his family.

Although Frazier affected a stoic shrug, he took the new threat seriously. Attorney Wright said the threat had not caused Frazier to lose the 12-round fight. But he suggested that the steady drumfire of unfair "Uncle Tom" charges had a negative psychological effect on Frazier.

Wright discounted rumors that the Black Muslims, of which Ali is a member, have been behind the "Uncle Tom" talk. As for the death threat, Wright figured it came from "some lunatic fringe group" of blacks.

Gossip for today

If nothing else, these trying times have definitely demonstrated that it isn't political know-how but rather man's inhumanity to man that makes it possible for us to exist in today's troubled world. First it was the truckers who banded together and made the government say uncle.

Then the gasoline dealers said: "To heck with our political masterminds! We'll just sell all our gasoline and then shut down if government doesn't give in."

Not to be outdone, the coal miners claim they can turn America's lights out on a moment's notice if Congress doesn't meet their demands.

The dairy interests are planning to raise the price of milk and will revise their slogan to read, "Every body pays."

The politicians urge American motorists to cut down on the amount of gasoline they use and then they allow the oil companies to raise their prices because sales have fallen off.

And now the Fertilizer Institute has decided to get into the act and is threatening us with a fertilizer shortage.

So it is not surprising that these days more and more ordinary citizens are wistfully asking: "Who is running this country anyway?" —Well, it's easy to see it isn't the folks we elected to do the job. They're far too busy proposing to spend half a million dollars in an attempt to define litter; setting up a commission to determine what has happened to the mercury in fish or, as has already happened in Louisiana, declaring anti-prostitution laws unconstitutional on the grounds that they discriminate against women.

OUR MAN IN WASHINGTON

Uncle Sam still largest employer

By RICK GOTCHER
P-B Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The federal government receives almost 2 million job applications each year. Of those, 175,000 are hired. And of those, roughly 3.5 percent are part-time or "flexible-hour" employes.

In the Senate, a bill has been introduced by Sen. John Tunney (D-Calif.) that would increase civil service part time employment to 10 per cent over a five-year period.

Tunney says his legislation would "expand part-time employment opportunities ... for the millions unable to work a standard forty-hour week."

The senator also contends that many women, educated and talented but tied to housework, would be able to enter the federal work force.

Also, civil servants and others approaching retirement would find it possible to ease out of work by moving to a comparable part-time position with the government. Handicapped and those in need of work therapy would be able to find additional jobs.

And the government would realize increased efficiency and could choose more able employes from an enlarged work force.

Discounting the military, the federal government is still the nation's largest employer. More than 2.4 million people work full-time for Uncle Sam.

The Postl Service hires the biggest number. And it employs more than two-thirds of the total part-time help.

Raymond Jacobsen, Civil Service director of Policies and Standards, says making available part-time opportunities will vary with different jobs and requirements.

Jacobson notes present part-time employment practices within the government work well, and the people involved contribute greatly to the federal effort. But Jacobson does not want a quota system.

"The establishment of the kind of requirements that this law would seem to lay on the Federal agencies, to put a uniform requirement on all agencies at all levels, to have certain fixed numbers of part-time positions available, is simply unrealistic," he said.

Jacobson is right. A quota system probably would not work. Examples of quota systems have shown them to be quite often counter productive. Civil rights legislation, which requires set percentages of minority workers has caused instances which show that many times fully qualified people are passed over in favor of filling the quotas.

In some cases, students, applying for government loans or scholarships, find themselves rejected solely because the quota must be served.

It is impossible to guess what effect a part-time employment quota system would have on the federal job market. But the past performances of comparable situations indicate the effect would not be in the best interest of everyon concerned.

With some reworking, Tunney's bill could become workable. The government certainly is capable of more active use of the part-time labor market. It cannot be estimated if government employment costs would go up or down. But with 1974 costs figured to be $22.5 billion, any chance to cut back should be fully explored.

It appears logical that if the government holds its hiring quotas — which should be the only quota adhered to — to the numbers it says, then an increased percentage of part-time help would have to make the total cost go down. And it would help eliminate a certain number of full-time people who only work part-time, anyway.

SAY IT SLOWLY

Albert Ochoa, Ronnie Perry, and Darla Baggett, students at Danbury School in Claremont have fun learning with volunteer aide Mrs. Jean Toepfer. The aides have patience in helping students at the orthopedically-handicapped school, where volunteers are greatly appreciated for their hours and interest.

Claremont's secret weapon

500 school volunteers

By GEORGE MacLAREN
P-B Staff Writer

CLAREMONT — Operations run more smoothly in the Claremont Unified School District's 11 schools because of its more than 500 volunteers who donate well over 700 hours a week.

What do the volunteers do? Everything. They are involved in every facet of school operations.

They include housewives and mothers, college students, retired persons, career women and professionals, businessmen and business women who take time off from their regular jobs to help children.

At Claremont High, the nurse's office is manned two days a week by registered nurses who volunteer their time.

Volunteer clerical aides at Claremont High have become employed as substitute clerks and some as fulltime clerks. Some have gone on to other jobs in the community and used the volunteer aide work as an experience factor.

The tremendous job of mass mailing at the high school of 2,200 students is done by volunteer aides, who also assist as clerks, in the library, homemaking lab, or as foreign language tutors, nurses, in the business lab, resource center, attendance office, and tutor in the reading clinic.

Mrs. Leone Norris and Mrs. Virginia Nimmons are co-chairmen of the Claremont High volunteers.

Mrs. Norris who does such jobs as answering the telephone in Principal Alex Hughes' office has been a volunteer for eight years, and when asked if she would help next year, she answered, "Yes, if they need me."

Mrs. Jan Phares has volunteered her time in the attendance office for five years.

Mrs. Phares' only complaint is that it is difficult to see the A's for absences in the weekly reporting cards students return to school Monday mornings. Mrs. Phares would like the district to print "scarlet A's" on the cards.

In December, a group of volunteer mothers took over Mrs. Dori Hart's primary class for a day. They handled all lessons, all details, and all problems. Mrs. Hart sat as an observer. This was a special "gift" from the mothers.

Vista School has attracted volunteers who have aided in teaching probability and statistics, carpentry, motorcycling riding, judo, skin-diving, gymnastics, investments, soccer, horsemanship, wrestling and aircraft.

At Danbury all volunteers are working because they want to be involved. They have no children enrolled at the school. They supervise play, help to prepare for arts and crafts, painting, and the clean-up afterward. They read stories and tutor children at the school for the orthopedically handicapped.

Condit School has an extremely devoted volunteer in Mrs. Ruth White of Pilgrim Place, now in her 70s. She has assisted kindergarten teacher Frances Scott since 1970.

At Sumner School, volunteers type, put up bulletin boards, take groups to the library, run the ditto machine, and accompany students on field trips.

School district teachers and officials are thankful for their volunteers from Pilgrim Place, Webb School, La Verne College, Citrus College, Cal Poly, as well as a large number of senior citizens and Claremont High students.

Tree removal issue before council

POMONA — The City Council Monday night will continue its deliberations on whether to permit the removal of two mature camphor trees from a parkway in front of a residence at 358 E. Pasadena St.

Officlas at Mel Bunnell Chevrolet, 363 E. Holt Ave., located one block south of Pasadena, have requested permission to remove the two trees as part of a plan to demolish an existing residence and expand parking facilities for the firm's body department.

The Parks and Recreation Commission held a hearing on the proposed removal Feb. 14 without hearing public opposition and recommended approval.

At its meeting Feb. 25, the council discussed the recommendation but decided not to take action until more information was known about the condition of the trees and whether removal was necessary.

Since the council meeting, Miss Diana D. Smith, 415 E. Pasadena St., representing the Pasadena Street Camphor Tree Association, has written City Hall protesting the proposed removal.

Also on the agenda for the council's 8 p.m. meeting are matters:

—Resolution appointing election officers and designating polling places for the special municipal election April 16.

—Resolution adopting plans and specifications for storm drain and sewer improvements in the vicinity of the Pomona Financial Center under construction.

—Resolution authorizing an agreement with the City of Ontario for mutual aid and the protection of police officers.

—Two resolutions confirming summary abatement taken at 896 Collingwood Drive and 2268 Concord Ave.

—A resolution stating the council's preference in the establishment of a priority list of expenditures and the distribution of funds from a state beach, park, historical and recreational facilities bond proposal which will appear on the ballot in June.

—Report of Mayor Ray J. Lepire on his trip to Washington, D.C.

—Request of the National Little League to hold rummage or yard sale at Montvue Park March 23 and 24.

—Recommendation of City Administrator Jerrold Gonce for placement of an "interim community facility" at Kennedy Park.

—Proposal to provide residences in the vicinity of Ganesha High School with city sewer services provided property owners agree to annex to the city. The residences lie within an "island" of unincorporated county territory.

—Request of Cal Poly University for city participation in the installation of signals, turning lanes and signing on Temple Avenue near the campus.

—Recommendation for purchase of seven subcompact automobiles for various departments.

body so they can manipulate it," she said.

The dance is not easy, and there are several steps students must learn, says Harriet Lisak, another teacher who handles Chino classes. Basically, she notes, there is an opening and closing, dancing with and without veils and dancing with small cymbals.

"It's a definite art form," declared Mrs. Lisak. "It has also the style and grace of the ballet, even though there are more torso movements."

Every muscle is exercised in the belly dance, she adds, and this perhaps is the main reason women show up in droves for classes.

Marla Vander Meer, a 19-year-old housewife and one of Mrs. Lisak's pupils, says she enjoys the dance "for exercise and to learn something new. I also like to shock people."

Rosemarie Benrock, 35, another Chino student, said her husband told her to take the class because "he thought I'd become more sensuous."

One of Miss English's pupils, Tori Hall, 18, said she was interested in possibly becoming a professional belly dancer. And Dorothy Roy, another housewife taking the class, said she signed up "as an excuse to get out of the house."

"I took it for exercise and fun," said Charlene Jackson, 26. "It's better than sitting home watching TV."

One middle-aged student best summed up the situation: "The exercise from dancing has improved my figure, and developed femininity. And my husband likes my new shape."

Walnut High needs pianist

WALNUT — Wanted: One accomplished pianist to help make music at Walnut High School.

Once a salary schedule is determined, the Walnut School District will be advertising for a part-time accompanist to play for choral classes, rehearsals and public engagements. Specifications of the job were approved this week by the district Board of Trustees.

Not only must the selected person be a capable sight reader that is, be able to pick up a piece of music and play it well the first time through—but also a musician capable of memorizing selections, interpreting them, reducing recorded music to piano reproduction, and following a conductor or soloist.

Although minimum educational requirement is high school graduation, the accompanist must have "extensive study in piano." Use of a gifted Walnut High student was ruled out because scheduling would be too restricted.

District officials estimate the accompanist will have about two to three hours' daily employment.

The doctor comments

Nasal decongestants are habit-forming

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am hooked. For the past five or six years I have had to keep a bottle of nasal spray in my possession 24 hours a day.

I have talked with other people who have the same problem. Someone suggested taking large quantities of vitamin C, but this was to no avail. If I don't have the nasal spray 'nasal passages stay clogged.

I have also heard that the long-term use of antihistamines was detrimental. Help, please.

Dear Reader — Yes, you'll need more than vitamin C for that problem.

Your case is a good illustration of the dangers of using nasal decongestant sprays too often. They work because the midicine in the sprays constricts tha small blood vessels and causes the nasal membranes to shrink.

The problem is that these medicines wear off and then a rebound reaction occurs and the membranes swell more than they were swollen in the first place.

If you use these medicines for just a few days during swelling from a cold they are all right, in limited amounts. But, you should never continue these medicines on your own for more than a few days.

They cause a chemical reaction to the nasal membranes, and then you have a new and more persistent problem. It usually requires the help of a specialist in ear, nose and throat problems to help you get off the habit or you can get help from your family doctor.

No doubt you will have to tough it out with a stuffed nose until your membranes can recover, and that may take a while.

For the rest of my readers, I would say take heed, and don't let this happen to you.

A word about sprays, if you must spray use a squeeze bottle or a squeeze bulb. The aerosol sprays into the nose and back of the throat can be dangerous in my opinion, and I don't think you should use any aerosol sprays into the throat.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a girl, 16. Lately several people have noticed that I've been breathing heavily. I never used to. It could be due to my weight. I'm five feet four and weigh 130 pounds.

It might also have to do with the fact that I just had a nose job a few months ago.

I'm a bit worried. Could you please tell me what causes this?

Dear Reader — Most likely it is from the nose job. In reducing the size of the nose the air passages are usually narrowed. The result is that the breathing through the nose is often not as easy. Forcing the air through the smaller passages results in more noise, just as water running rapidly through a narrow channel makes more noise. I'd ignore it unless you feel uncomfortable. If you have too much breathing difficulty, you may need to have the nasal passages enlarged. Some small noses are more of a decoration than a functional organ.

Sen your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of The Progress-Bulletin P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on losing weight, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Losing Weight"'booklet.

IT'S TOO HOT — With temperatures reaching an unseasonable high 84 degrees last week, two polar bears at the St. Louis Zoo find plenty to complain about as they think back on cooler days.

Road atlas tips of '26 up to date

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Share your gas with the man who is stranded far from a filling station."

This advice is being given to motorists today as an untold number of car owners find themselves out of gas on a busy street or highway, unable to make it to a service station.

And it also was given to motorists almost half a century ago when gasoline was plentiful but fuel gauges on the autos of those days were not always accurate.

The share-the-gas appeal appeared in the "Courtesy of the Road" section of the 1926 edition of Rand McNally's Auto Road Atlas of the United States.

Rand McNally has reprinted a facsimile edition of the 1926 edition in observance of its 50th anniversary in road map making. The company was unable to find the first edition, which appeared in 1924, and settled for the earliest obtainable in a nation-wide search.

In 1926, Rand McNally mapped 184,000 miles of national highways. The 1974 edition shows about four million miles of U.S. and Interstate routes.

The facsimile 1926 atlas, which can be purchased wherever road maps are sold, shows that some states, especially in the south and west, had few paved roads —even between such large cities as Birmingham and Atlanta, indicating more than a day of travel would be needed to complete such a journey.

"Women drivers of motor vehicles should be given special consideration —and watching";

"Most cities this is required by ordinance rigidly enforced";

Pure vinegar will clean celluloid in the curtains of your car";

"It takes gas to propel a vehicle. Profanity won't do it";

"The most obnoxious animal in the world is the road hog. He is as objectionable as any other hog and you can't eat him."

Protection ordered for Flournoy, Brown

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State policemen in street clothes have been assigned to protect two gubernatorial candidates because of threats to their safety, sources reported.

The agents were assigned to Republican State Controller Houston I. Flournoy and Democratic Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. Official spokesman for both candidates refused to comment.

A UPI survey of other major gubernatorial contenders disclosed that none of them are receiving such protection.

30th ceramics exhibit on agenda at Scripps

CLAREMONT — The 30th annual ceramics exhibit at Lang Gallery, Scripps College, will open with a public reception at 8 p.m. March 19. The Scripps Fine Arts Foundation will be host.

The exhibit will be open to the public without charge, 1 to 5 p.m. daily through April 26, except April 6-15, when it will be closed for spring vacation.

The exhibition will feature the first public showing of the Fred and Mary Marer collection of more than 200 ceramic pieces of American, European and Japanese artists.

The Fine Arts Foundation is sponsoring the show's catalog which will have eight color reproductions and over 50 black and white photographs of the ceramics.

Marer, professor of mathematics at Los Angeles City College, began the collection in 1954 when he first met Peter Voulkos, then teaching at the Otis Art Institute. Marer was so intrigued with Voulkos' work that he became a frequent visitor to the studio, meeting many of Voulkos' students and colleagues. He began purchasing ceramic pieces and through the years has continued acquiring work from unknown artists whose names are now prominent in art circles.

Voulkos, now a professor at UC Berkeley, is represented in the collection by 22 pieces, ranging from sculpture to platter and bowls. Credited with revolutionizing the use of clay as a medium, Voulkos and his group were caught up in the excitement of abstract expressionist painting with its emphasis on action.

A number of Voukos' students have works in the collection. John Mason, professor of art at Irvine, is represented with vases, sculptures and bowls, as is Kenneth Price, who now has a studio in Taos, Nim.

Scripps professor of art Paul Soldner, another of Voulkos' students and one of the first to use raku as an art medium in the United States, is included with four works. Jerry Rothman, head of the ceramics department at Cal State Fullerton, has four platters and two sculptures in the exhibit.

Six European potters, including Bernard Leach, are also represented.

The works of 15 Japanese ceramists are also included. Two—Shoji Hamada and Toyo Kaneshige—were designated living national treasures of Japan. Hamada is director of the Japanese Folk Arts Museum. Kaneshige died in 1967. Mutsuo Yanagihara, who taught at Scripps College in the fall of 1973 and now teaches at Osaka University, has a sculptural vase in the

Puppet show planned at Holmes Hall

CLAREMONT — The Claremont Community School of Music will present a scholarship benefit performance of the puppet show, "Hungry People," in Holmes Hall, Pomona College, at 8 p.m. March 29 and 30 and at 3 p.m. March 31.

The production was written and directed by Debby Paul.

A Pomona College theater major, Miss Paul directed "Theater with Children" in Los Angeles last summer under a grant from the city's department of parks and recreation and has a wide variety of theater and film credits. In addition to directing the production for the CCSM, she will also be a guest instructor for the children's theater classes.

The cast will be made up of students from school, college actors and community members. The acting company will perform various roles, operate the puppets and provide sound background.

Work has already begun on the construction of the puppets which range in size from small hand-operated stick puppets to 12-foot marionettes that will be operated from the ceiling.

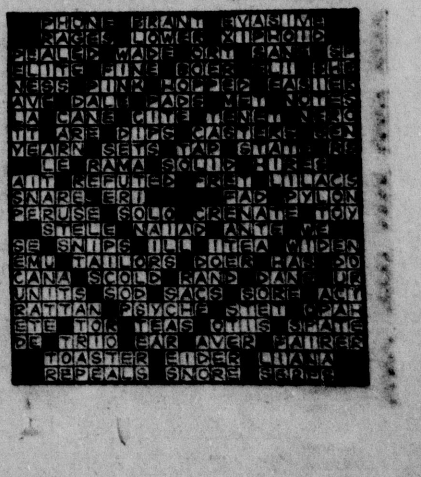
"The visual elements of the production such as the gigantic size of the puppets and special lighting effects will add an exciting theatrical dimension to the production," Miss Paul said.

Proceeds from the event will go to the school's scholarship fund which will give more students an opportunity to become involved in music, dance and children's theater. Tickets for the production will be on sale at the Claremont Community School of Music, 624-3012, and at the door.

Closed station has tanks full; they'll reopen

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (UPI) — Clarence K. Scott, a service station operator, discovered Tuesday he has 45,000 gallons of gasoline he didn't know about.

Scott's station is in Lake Lindero, Calif., but he leases a station here which was closed three months ago, when he took over the lease, and he never reopened it.



Lady lawyer challenges Texas governor once again

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Frances Tarlton Farenthold, 47, a lady lawyer affectionately known among Texas liberals as "Sissy," is tackling the political strongman of the state in a second attempt to become governor.

Just as they did two years ago, political experts say she doesn't have a chance, and attribute her candidacy to a Kamikaze instinct she developed fighting for reform in a scandal plagued 1971 legislative session.

She defeated some of the state's most promising young Democrats in 1972, and lost to Gov. Dolph Briscoe in a runoff for the party nomination for governor. A few months later, she was runnerup to Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., in the Democratic nomination for vice president.

This year, Mrs. Farenthold waited until six hours before filing deadline to announce she'll once again challenge Briscoe, a millionaire rancher-banker who raised $600,000 in a single appreciation dinner last year —something even Lyndon B. Johnson never matched in Texas.

"It came down to this," she said. "If I didn't challenge the governor, no one would, and we would have four more years of this no-record, donothing caretaker government in the midst of the most complex national crisis of our lifetime."

Files suit

Within hours of announcing for office, Mrs. Farenthold filed a $2.5 million suit against Briscoe, accusing him of illegally raising campaign funds before he designated a campaign manager.

A hearing on that suit is set for April 8—less than a month before the May 4 party primary.

Briscoe called the action "political mudslinging in the courts," and said if Mrs. Farenthold understood the campaign law she'd know he did nothing illegal.

Two other candidates in the race—a former bareback bronc rider who wants to legalize marijuana and prostitution, and a Harris County undertaker— stand little chance.

Texas Republicans, who normally handpick a candidate to challenge the Democratic nominee, also face a contested race this year. Former State Sen. Henry Grover of Houston, a party maverick who won the 1972 nomination, is opposed by former Lubbock Mayor Jim Granberry.

Gathering funds

Most party notables have already endorsed Granberry, but Grover still is considered the favorite.

No other state races even threaten to share the spotlight with the Farenthold-Briscoe rematch.

For the past year, Mrs. Farenthold has headed the National Women's Political Caucus and taught at the Texas Southern University law school.

Now, she's gathering what funds she can to take on Briscoe's well financed organization.

Paper tiger

"I challenge Dolph Briscoe in the conviction that he is the paper tiger of Texas politics— that the people are more knowing than the politicians who say he can't be beaten— and that this is the year for the big change in Texas," Mrs. Farenthold said.

Briscoe backers said the governor has done nothing on which a challenger can fault him. Mrs. Farenthold says he has done nothing at all.

The primary issue in 1972 was reform. This year it appears to be Briscoe's record. But in any event, Sissy Farenthold has made it clear she'll fight to the end to prove the political experts wrong and become the second woman to govern the Lone Star State.

Lurleen in Hall of fame

Gov Lurleen B. Wallace has been inducted posthumously into the Alabama Women's Hall of Fame. She served as Alabama's only woman governor from 1967 to her death in May, 1968.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Recent actions against cigarette smoking, according to The World Almanac, includes a Civil Aeronautics Board decree that U.S. airlines institute compulsory non-smoking sections on all flights. The Arizona legislature banned smoking in all public buildings. A motel chain is testing the idea of a ban on smoking on some floors. Also, several car insurance companies have begun to offer lower rates to non-smokers.

Tomcat may resist new living pattern

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: How can I safely move a healthy, aggressive five-year-old tomcat from a ground floor, woodsy apartment into a second floor apartment where he won't be free to roam? He loves the woods behind the apartment where we are now, chasing squirrels and rabbits and vice versa. (One time I observed a terribly agitated rabbit chasing him!)

Dear G.S.: Your tomcat's transition to strictly indoor living will be a strain, undoubtedly. First on the list of aids to accommodation is surgery. Neutering him, even at this age, will help. Keep his nails trimmed and provide him with a scratching post and show him how to use it. Give you cat as much freedom to roam within the apartment as possible. Provide plenty of supervised playtime to help relieve boredom.

If you can't provide enough — and that is possible — a new (female) kitten, carefully introduced and their playtime supervised initially, could help him to keep his thoughts at home (even a platonic playmate can help considerablyl. Feed him frequently but don't overfeed him. Several small meals during the day help break it up. Finally, for those first few difficult days, a comparatively safe tranquilizer, prescribed by your veterinarian may be helpful.

DEAR DR. MILLER: We finally gave Mike to my brother though we hated to part with him. Pat and Mike are brothers themselves, Irish terriers, who grew up together here and started to fight when they got older and kept it up. Several times they had to have many stitches costing great vet bills because of the fights. They almost killed each other. My sister said we should have just let them fight it out because they are just like children who get into fights and then it is over. Were we wrong to separate them? — D.M.

Dear D.M.: Terriers tend to be among the most determined fighters and among the most aggressive of dogs with each other. Usually one dog will dominate the other after a fight or two and future contests, if any, will tend to be mock battles in which the submissive male will quickly yield. Your two were apparently equally matched and equally determined. If you had continued to leave them together the issue might have been determined only by one actually doing away with his brother. You found a practical means of concluding a conflict that could have ended fatally.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You will get a sudden urge to get in touch with one you haven't seen lately. Do so. It will prove exciting.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Doing for others will give you the greatest pleasure today. Be willing to serve. There's a surprise in store.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Someone interesting and unusual is likely to cross your path. There will be very good vibes between the two of you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Though you may be spending today around the house it won't be dull or uninteresting. A "fun" friend will pop in.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It will regenerate you if you can find some time today to work on your favorite hobby or something of a creative nature.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Continue to keep your eyes peeled for situations where you can turn a profit. They're available. Keep looking.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Someone will be telling of a good thing they have some inside information on in advance of others. Hear them out.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll get a bright insight today regarding an improvement you can make for the home. It should please your mate as well.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A person you care a great deal for would be very pleased to be surprised today with a little remembrance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Benefits will come to you now from a task you find rewarding mentally. It appears difficult to others, but not you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Kind words from you have a much greater effort on one who admires you than you realize. This person treasures your praise.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be prepared for a change in your schedule today. You won't do what you planned. You'll have more fun if you make the switch.

your birthday
March 10

Unexpected, sudden changes will occur this year, much to your liking. A wonderful new friendship will be established with one who will inspire fresh interests.

For Monday, March 11

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be selective as to whom you tell your good news to today. A certain friend isn't all that happy for you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A close companion is putting himself out today to do you a favor. Be sure you acknowledge his help in front of others.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be satisified at this time with your present status. Don't jump from something successful to something uproven.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) One you take for granted would be upset if he knew you are doing something on the sly for another who takes YOU for granted.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll make a promise to your mate and have every intention of keeping it. Later, something will change your mind.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It's not like you to be lazy and neglect your responsibilities, yet that's exactly what you'll be doing today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This can be a profitable day if you keep your mind on business. Put off the pursuit of pleasure till another time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're lucky today with speculative situations provided your moves are based on sound judgement. Don't exceed your limits.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It will somehow take the edge off things if you toot your horn about how you belped another. Let her do the boasting.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A friend is going to profit from something she learns of from you, but you won't appreciate the way it's done.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) An opportunity of a material nature is now available. However, it looks like you won't develop it as well as you should.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Rely solely on your judgment today. Do things as you feel they should be done, rather than try to guess what would please another.

Your birthday March 11

More opportunity than usual will come your way this year. It should not be taken for granted. This is the time to build for the future.

Getty takes lumps from the champ

LONDON (UPI) — Billionaire oil man J. Paul Getty wanted to be a professional boxer as a young man and asked Jack Dempsey for his opinion.

Dempsey put his thoughts into a couple of rights and lefts that dumped Getty on the canvas. Getty changed his mind and went on to become one of the richest men in the world.

That incident of nearly 60 years ago was recalled by Getty as host of a luncheon to "my old buddy" Dempsey at his stately home outsine London. The former heavyweight champ was in Britain as guest of the Ladbroke and Hertford Clubs.

Getty told the guests who included Mrs. Dempsey, her daughter Barbara and some Japanese oil men, how he had gone to Dempsey's training camp.

"Jack", I told him, "we're friends but I want to be a professional fighter. So I want to put on the gloves with you and try to knock you out. In turn I want your promise that you'll do your best to knock me out. This will be the test of whether I've got enough to make it in the ring."

After getting up for the third or fourth time Getty said he thought he would look elsewhere for fame and fortune.

"So you see," Getty said, "how much I owe Jack."

Jack said after the lunch that "I hit him hard enough to convince him he didn't have much chance as a professional fighter but not hard enough to really hurt him."

And as the party broke up Dempsey told his old friend:

"The oil business hasn't done too badly for you, has it?"

The South American llama is a distant relative of the camel. The llama has been used as a pack animal for centuries and, like the camel, has a mean and ugly disposition.

Jail escapee convicted of killing financier

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A jail escapee was convicted Thursday of killing financier Leon Simmons in his Hollywood Hills home last year.

Pals caught by parents

By JEAN ADAMS

CAUGHT: (Q.) My best friend's parents went on a trip to Arizona. They were planning to be gone three days. The second day we were not in a mood for school so we stayed home—at my friend's house. Her parents came home unexpectedly and found us cutting school.

They told me I didn't have to tell my parents what happened, but I did anyway. Now I am grounded for a week. I can't go anywhere but school.

My friend and I are also afraid our parents may tell us we must end our friendship. What should we do? — Afraid in Pennsylvania

(A.) If parents are going to impose a penalty they usually do it immediately. A penalty has been imposed upon you and I have a feeling that will be the extent of it.

Your friend's parents probably see that they made a mistake in leaving her unsupervised, and your parents probably do too. In the future try to be more trustworthy.

LEFT DANGLING: (Q.) I met Bernie last summer. He seemed to like me and I gave him my telphone number. But he didn't call me until last Thursday night. He said he wanted to take me out Friday night and I said yes.

We talked a long time, then he said his mother had to use the phone and he would call back later to make plans. But he didn't call me that night or Friday or Friday night either.

Should I call him to find out what happened? I want to ask him to take me to our sophomore hop.—Puzzled in Pennsylvania

(A.) No, don't call him or invite him any place. He doesn't sound as if he has learned responsibility or good manners.

Secretary of State Kissinger

What makes Henry run?

By JOHN BARTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Anyone hoping to make a fortune by discovering and marketing the source of the incredible energy of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger may as well forget it. There are no secrets and no gimmicks, according to the people who know him best.

"There are no special foods or diets or exercises," said a high-ranking confidant of the Secretary. "The only physical exercise he does that I know of is coming to work.

"He is simply a man of extraordinary energy. He has the greatest built-in energy system I have ever seen. He's a dynamo."

Kissinger never ceases to amaze his colleagues, whether he is hopscotching around the world seeking solutions to such complex problems as peace in the Mideast, detente with the Soviet Union and China, or simply receiving an endless stream of foreign and U.S. leaders at his White House or State Department office.

He works 18 to 20 hours a day, seven days a week. If anything, his pace speeds up on weekends, sometimes to the dismay of foreign service officers who complain they almost never see their families anymore, except perhaps for a quick meal before rushing back to the office.

Compulsive need

One associate ascribes Kissinger's drive to a compulsive need to get things done.

"You know, if you really want to get ahead in this world, you have to move faster and work longer than others," the associate said. "Henry moves faster and works longer than anyone else.

"He doesn't even suffer from jet lag. In fact, he doesn't seem to suffer from any kind of lag. He's more than just a self-starter. He just never seems to run down."

But occasionally even Kissinger gets the message that not everyone has as unlimited a supply of energy as he does. A case in point was the recent visit to Washington of Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmi and Saudi Arabian Foreign Minister Omar Sakkaf.

The weekend in question, Kissinger made a 24-hour roundtrip to Key Biscayne, Fla., to discuss the energy crisis with President Nixon before returning for the Fahmi-Sakkaf meetings. On impulse, he included a four-hour meeting with Chairman J. William Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in Little Rock, Ark., hardly on a direct line between Washington and Florida.

Wears out Arab

On his return, the Secretary ordered the presidential jet he was using to land at nearby Dulles Airport instead of Andrews Air Force base, the usual practice, and rushed to meet the arriving Arab diplomats and inform them he had planned a working dinner within the hour.

Fahmi and Sakkaf thanked him for his hospitality but told him it was the equivalent of 2 a.m. EDT when they began their day. They said they were exhausted from their transatlantic flight and would see him the following morning.

Kissinger, who is not used to be being stood up, took it well. Instead, he invited several senior State Department officials to join him at dinner, which was just being removed from the ovens in the department's kitchen. The result was an unceremonious exodus.

"I mean no disrespect, sir," said one of the departing foreign service officers, "but this is the first night in several months I will be able to spend at home with my wife and in time to see my children."

No rancor

While Kissinger's seven-day work week has inconvenienced top aides, it has produced surprisingly little rancor.

"You can't criticize a man who is more demanding of himself than he is of others," one official said. "He is hard on us, but he is harder on himself."

Some critics contend Kissinger works so fast he is disorganized. "That simply is not true," a confidant said. "He is well organized and he knows how to tell people what to do."

Occasionally as he zips across the time zones trying to solve a rainbow of the world's problems on an itinerary that wolld be a travel agent's nightmare, Kissinger will catnap in the bed on his big jet.

"But only after instructing his staff what reports he wants when he awakens," the official said. "He might sleep then, but rarely. His staff never does. And he has instantaneous pickup. He will wake up and ask immediately for the reports, digest them and bound out of the plane ready for fullscale negotiations wherever he is."

Watches weight

Kissinger does have to watch his weight. "When I get into difficult negotiations, I tend to overeat," the Secretary told reporters on a recent Middle East trip, patting a rotund stomach to underscore his remark. He said he also consumes a lot of soft drinks under such circumstances.

When he is not traveling, Kissinger's normal day begins with breakfast at the State Department, never later than 8 a.m. An official said it invariably is "a working breakfast, either with some visiting official or with some senior staff members."

Then he is off to the White House, where Kissinger says he has daily meetings with the President. Later he returns to the State Department where he either has lunch on a tray in his office or presides over a working lunch for visiting dignitaries. Dinner is held in late evening under similar circumstances.

"Most of us eat our meals in order to refuel our bodies and give us time to ponder over the events of the day and our lives," an aide said. "Not him. Henry doesn't need a diversionary meal."

Endodontic implant is new dental possibility

NEW YORK (UPI) — False teeth may be about to go the way of the five cent beer.

Probably not within the immediate future, but some day artificial roots routinely may be implanted. That would eliminate the need for false teeth.

When it will happen for everyone without teeth is a matter of conjecture at this time. But undoubtedly, the development will be a reality for all who want it some day.

Giro told his fellow dentists that the endodontic implant — or stabilizer —has been employed successfully for more than 20 years in South America, and slightly less in Europe.

"It has been used with ever increasing satisfaction by a small group of dentists in the United States for the past 11 years," he said.

Some of the disciples of oral implantology remain controversial. But Giro described procedures for the endodontic implant, a rigid inert nonelectrolytic rod. He considers the implant methodology simple and practical.

Here's how it is done: a rod is inserted through the root canal of a periodontally weakened tooth into the adjacent bone. The tooth is wobbly in a way due to the breaking down of support provided by failing gums.

The purpose of the rod is to fixate or stabilize the tooth by artificially increasing the length of its root.

Giro paid tribute to pioneers of this discipline of implantation, saying he believed the dental profession at large should be aware of its possibilities.

"Indeed," he said, "the prescription for removal of teeth can and should be changed to that of the insertion of endodontic stabilizers in many of the following situations: advanced cases of root resorbtion; accidental horizontal fracture of roots; cases where certain orthodox treatments would result in inadequate bone support for affected teeth.

"There are many pertinent oral, systemic and emotional conditions that would preclude the safe use of the procedure," he said.

However, in cases where it has been practical it has proved most rewarding to the discriminating dentist and his grateful patients who were relieved of the threat of the dreaded "full dentures."

Pediatrician offers suggestions for new freedom in child-raising

By PJATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Make way for a book that allows a little freedom in child-raising. For the parents—and child.

"New Wives' Tales" (Prentice-Hall) by Dr. Lendon H. Smith, a pediatrician, even entertains and tickles ribs. It also fills you full of common sense, solutions to problems — be they in the area of the potty, playpen or sandbox.

Dr. Smith has been in pediatrics since 1951 in Portland, Ore. He is professor of pediatrics at University of Oregon Medical School and has written other books for parents.

He says there is a need for new wives' tales for a simple reason. The old ones don't apply to present-day situations.

There are some ground rules when you take the child to the doctor. To wit:

—Ask for the doctor's help. Appeal to the Albert Schweitzer humanitarian sometimes latent under the scientist.

—Never state the diagnosis; that is his job and the main reason he stays in business.

—Try to list the problems separately and in their order of appearance.

—Let the doctor decide if the patient needs to be examined.

Some of the new wives' tales:

—"When all else fails, treat the doctor as a sane, intelligent human being who may be saddled with a few old wives' tales himself."

—"Take pictures of the baby; he'll never be that cute again." (The old wives' tale about this was that bright lights from a flashbulb will damage a baby's eyes.)

—"Eyes cross if they are going to cross." (The old wives' tale was that a baby gets crosseyed if objects are placed too close to his face.)

—"There are about 20 causes of colic. Cold hands and feet may be one cause, but usually they are but a sign that colic is present." (The old wives' tale held that colic is due to cold feet and hands.)

—"Babies may have sore gums when they are teething, but most fevers are due to viruses." (The old wives' tale was that babies have a fever when they are teething.)

—"If the floor is fairly clean, your toddler does not need to wear shoes." (Old wives' tale held that babies must have stiff shoes when they first walk or they will become flat-footed.)

—"Beating a child for poor school performance is like scolding him for getting the mumps." (Old wives' tale—use the hickory stick.)

—"If Edison had not been thrown out of school, we might still be using candles." (Old wives' tale—if you want to learn anything, you must sit still, keep your mouth shut and listen.)

—"The only light to worry about is the strong rays from direct viewing of the sun." (Old wives' tale held that a child with measles should be kept in a dark room.)

—"If your child grows up to be happier than you, he may also be smarter." (This replaces the old wives' tale holding that if a child does not go to college he will be a failure.)

— "Children should learn when it is appropriate to laugh and when it is appropriate to cry." (This takes over for the old wives' tale saying you should never let your child see you cry.)

Spare the rod and spoil the child is another old wives' tale nixed by Dr. Smith. The new wives' tale goes like this:

"Do spoil. But call it programming for mutual trust."

"A man with a short attention span may not be able to remain married very long."

Religious Education is topic

"Religious Education for Today's Youth" is the topic for the meeting of the Women's Fellowship of the Claremont United Church of Christ, Congregational, Tuesday morning.

The religious education staff of the church will answer questions from parents and others interested in discovering what is being taught, and whether children are getting an adequate background in religious history and its modern application.

Mrs. Henry Refo, chairman of the Women's Fellowship board of Christian education, has invited the following members of the staff to participate: Mary Jane Merrill, Chris Blay, Jennie Moe, Jackie Hartouni, Chris Hilbig and Reiss Potterveld, assistant minister at the church.

The 11 a.m. meeting will be followed by luncheon at noon. Both are open to all interested persons, but reservations for luncheon should be made in advance by calling the church office, 626-1201.

Creative design class set

Home furnishing ideas based on the newest look in interiors for the creative homemaker will be presented at a UCLA Extension course in San Marino.

"Contemporary Structures and Interiors" will meet Fridays from March 29 to June 7, 9:30 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. in Room 218 of the San Marino Community Church, 1750 Virginia Road.

Choosing and buying from showrooms and using new products samples for carpeting, wallpapering, painting and upholstering will be discussed in the three-unit course.

Information is available by writing the Department of Daytime Programs, UCLA Extension, P.O. Box 24902, Los Angeles, 90024, or by calling (213) 825-4411.

Investment fund unit meeting set

The first annual meeting of the Student Investment Fund of Scripps College is scheduled at 3 p.m. Thursday in Wilbur Hall on the campus.

A financial statement will be presented by the directors and a check for five per cent of the fund's average quarterly evaluation will be presented to Elizabeth Johnson, Scripps director of financial aid, to be used for student aid.

Directors will be installed during the afternoon.

Mrs. J. Stanley Johnson of Altadena, who established the fund in February, 1973, with a gift of $50,000 to be invested by Scripps students in the stock market, will attend the meeting.

Ehler-Miller rites vows are exchanged

The Little Chapel of Flowers in West Covina was the setting for the marriage of Margie Lynn Miller and Delbert L. Ehler.

MRS. DELBERT L. EHLER

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Whittaker of El Monte. Parents of the groom are Mrs. and Mrs. Herbert Ehler of Pomona.

The bride wore a floor-length gown of candlelight satin with a bodice of imported lace and pearls. The chapel-length train was enhanced with lace. A pearl and lace headpiece held the bride's silk illusion veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of glamellias and ribbons.

Mrs. Ann Myers was matron of honor and Sandra Hill was bridesmaid.

Susie and Becky Myers handled the guest book during the reception at the chapel's Magnolia Room. One hundred guests attended the wedding and reception.

The newlyweds will reside in El Monte.

Mrs. Ehler is a graduate of Arroyo High School and Mr. Ehler graduated from Damien High School.

Make your own bean bags out of old terry towels or wool material, blanket stitch the edges together except for a small opening, and fill with dried beans, then close opening.

Past matrons set luncheon

The past matrons of Star of the West Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, will meet Tuesday for a 12:30 p.m. luncheon.

Those attending the meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Frater, 639 E. Columbia Ave., are asked to bring their own table service.

Auxiliary schedules project

The Montclair Central Little League Auxiliary has scheduled its main fund-raising project for the year, a candy sale, to begin March 20.

The 15 top candy sellers will win a free trip to Montclair's Dodger Night.

"Western Round-Up" is the theme for the dance to be held April 13 at the Elks Club in Ontario. Tickets may be obtained from any league parent, according to Mrs. Bill Hickman or by calling Mr. Hickman, 624-9423.

Meetings are held every third Monday at the Montclair Fire Department. The next meeting will be held March 18 and is open to all Montclair Central Little League mothers.

Ask Dr. Brothers

Ducking the blame

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband used to blame me for everything that went wrong in his and our life and now my grown son is doing the same thing. Whatever goes wrong is either my fault or his wife's fault, according to him. My son has had many educational advantages and because of these, he has gone to the top of his profession. He has two loving children, a good wife, and a very good salary yet it is never enough. He is never happy and because he is so driven he makes everyone else's life miserable. I realize it may seem unmotherly to say this, but it's true.

Sometimes when my son intimates that something is really my fault, it worries me so much that I'm unable to sleep. When I do sleep I have nightmares. I inherited some money from my husband who died several years ago and I'd like to get away from this family strain for a while, but whenever I mention it, my son behaves as though I'm deserting him at some special time of need or crisis. There are no crises other than those he creates, but I don't know how to convince him of this. — B.K.

Dear B.K.: Usually, the habit of blaming others begins early in childhood and it is possible that your son learned this from observing his father's behavior. He probably also observed that because you seemed to accept the blame, the game seemed to work successfully.

The blamer, disappointed that his expectations are not met, feels angry and decides to blame someone else rather than accept or reevaluate his own weaknesses or the unreality of his own expectations.

Dr. Martin Shepard has pointed out that many people use blame to avoid self-examination. All criticism may be countered by blaming the person who is criticizing. Blaming reactions tend to run in families, for they are imitated just like other behavior patterns. The thing for you and your daughter-in-law to realize is that it takes two to play the game. If you and she refuse to accept the blame when it is not warranted, your son will gradually look about for some other scapegoat.

A good way to start refusing to accept the blame is to follow through on your desire to get away. The more outside interests you have, the harder it will be for your son to use you as you describe. You will also probably be doing his wife a favor, for she may learn from your example.

If you get away from the pressures you feel with your son and if you leave your anxieties behind you, you would begin to sleep much better. Sleep patterns vary and everyone needs a different amount of sleep but there's no question that problems such as you seem to be having will affect your sleep. Usually as people grow older they need somewhat less sleep.

If you find that nightmares continue to destroy your sleep, then you might try daytime naps. Studies reveal afternoon naps bring much sweeter dreams that night sleep.

Make a belated New Year's resolution to break the habit of allowing yourself to appear to accept blame that doesn't belong on your shoulders. Since you don't enjoy being a martyr, let your son know it and stop playing the role.

Well Baby Clinic opened

Through the cooperation of the Pomona Health Center and Walnut Junior Women's Club, Walnut now has its own Well Baby Clinic.

The clinic will operate on the second Monday of each month from 8:30 to 11 a.m. at the Optimist Club building, 19813 Camino De Rose.

All babies must be registered and charted at the Pomona Health Center before an appointment can be made. This may be done by calling 623-6811, extension 508. Records already at the Pomona center may be transferred to Walnut by calling the same phone number.

First woman on exchange no libber

CHICAGO (UPI) — The first woman to trade on the floor of the Midwest Stock Exchange and invade a 91-year-old men-only bastion says she is there "to do business", not to further the cause of women's liberation.

"I don't mind sticking my neck out for a cause. But if I played woman's libber, I'd be out of business," L. Kim Brown said.

"I'm here to do business. Use your foxiness. Use your brain. There are certain times your femininity can help."

The 22-year-old representative of Kenneth J. Brown and Co., Muncie, Ind. (she's Kenneth Brown's daughter), was the third woman admitted to membership on the exchange. but on Jan. 14 became the first woman to actually trade on the exchange floor.

Miss Brown, standing in front of her exchange cubicle, told how she's been received in a men's world. Trading was over for the day and the cavernous hall was emptying out. Several brokers stopped by to chat and joke.

Like a fraternity

"Everyone's really great. It's like a fraternity or a football team.

"I think most of them were happy I had this opportunity, but I think they wonder if I'll use this to the fullest advantage.

"Some kind of expect me to fail," she said.

"I have not been concerned with woman's liberation," Miss Brown said.

The attention her membership in the exchange has received prompted her to delve into the issue and articulate her viewpoint. She said it was somewhere "in the middle of the road."

Felt hemmed in

"I think a lot of women in women's liberation are trying to take it without earning it. They won't have the respect of the people they're working with," she said.

"When you look back in time, women haven't been out long. If you're good at what you're doing, this will come out in the wash."

But the Indiana native said she personally felt hemmed in by her hometown where "if you weren't going steady or engaged, you were out of it socially."

About two years ago she came to Chicago. "I started waking up to the fact there was more to life than a little house and babies. And then I found taking care of myself wasn't that hard."

All in the family

Miss Brown more or less grew up in the stock brokerage business and has worked in the field at least during school vacations since she was 15. When her father needed a floor broker on the exchange, he chose his daughter.

"I was a logical choice, keeping it (the exchange membership) in the family. Someday it (the business) may be mine."

She said she originally chose her career because "someday if I was needed, I would be able to take over if necessary."

Hatfield bill aims at mail list abuses

Hatfield said Wednesday he introduced the bill, similar to one he proposed in 1971, because he believed the "indiscriminate use" of mailing lists was "a serious invasion of privacy."

Half of today's business growth tied to inflation

BUSINESS NEWS

Financial

NEW YORK (UPI) — How much of the current American business affluence is mythical— due entirely to inflation?

A study made for United Press International by Bernard Gelb, an official of the Conference Board, an independent New York business research bureau, shows about half the growth results from inflation if the reported profits and sales of a large group of major corporations in their domestic operations are restated in the 1957 dollar. That dollar is the constant dollar used by the federal government in making economic measurements.

Gelb found the $62.5 billion in earnings reported by these companies for 1973 shrank to $40.9 billion when stated in 1957 dollars and the 159 per amounted to only 70 per cent in constant dollars.

UPI also asked Gelb to restate in 1957 dollars the earnings and sales of some representative companies who have reported 1973 earnings. The results were similar.

The measurement of inflation of earnings is not as reliable as that of sales because many changes in the operations of individual companies have occurred and some costs have gone up for reasons other than inflation.

Most cost increases are due to inflation. Neverthless, the inflation of volume of earnings may or may not affect profits when stated as return on capital or yield on sales. And it may or may not affect profit margins on goods. This should be borne in mind.

Labor spokesmen and economists have pointed out for years that large portions of annual wage increases are offset by inflation.

Comparison of corporate sales and profits in current and constant dollars is relevant because of agitation in Wall Street to get companies to report results in both kinds of dollars.

In a recent article in the Wall Street Journal, Prof. Irving Kristol said the reporting of earnings only in current dollars saddles business with a credibility gap.

Even sovhisticated persons, Kristol said, are confused and angered when a company boasts it has just had the most profitable year in its history and, in the same report, says it isn't earning enough to insure survival. He said this is dangerous, and he warned that companies should consider the political effects. The blunt fact, Kristol said, is that 1973 was not a very profitable year for American business in spite of the big numbers in the sales and earnings reports and the public ought to be advised of it.

Al Russell, controller of Indiana Telephone Corp., of Indianapolis, agreed. He told UPI his company has been reporting earnings and revenues in both current and constant dollars since 1954. Since 1957 it has used the 1957 dollar as the constant dollar just as federal agencies do. "We only have about 250 stockholders, so the great value of constant dollar records is to our own management," Russell said. "It keeps us from selfdeception about how fat we are growing and prevents us from making a lot of mistakes we might make if we relied solely on keeping our records in inflated current dollars."

The proposal to report corporate results in constant dollars has drawn adverse comment. A Notre Dame University professor said union leaders might be unhappy about it because revelation that profits have not gone up as fast as the current dollar reports indicate might force unions to scale down some of their demands. Other critics said taxing must be based on current dollar reports because taxation on the basis of constant dollar reports would be so complicated Congress might have to redraft all tax schedules.

Among specific examples, Gelb included only one oil company, Conoco, and only its earnings for comparison since at the time of the study Conoco's sales had not been reported. It since has reported sales of $4.5 billion.

Conoco reported earnings of $242.7 million in 1973. Restated in 1957 dollars that shrank to $158.2 million and compared with $47.465 million reported by Conoco for 1958, still a substantial growth.

Armco Steel Corp. reported earnings of $107.5 million for 1973 on sales of $2.39 billion. In 1957 dollars that amounted to sales of $1.514 billion and earnings of $70.35 million. For 1958 Armco reported earnings of $57.512 million on sales of $867.39 million.

Eagle Picher Co. had sales of $312.9 million and earnings of $14.766 million for last year. But in 1957 dollars, that amounted to sales of $195.1 million and earnings of $9.63 million. In 1958 Eagle Picher earned $2.09 million with sales of $98.132 million.

General Motors' reported 1973 earnings of $2.398 billion shrank by almost $800 million to $1.569 billion when converted to constant dollars, and the sales of $35.8 billion were reduced to $22.686 billion. Back in 1958 GM earned $633.63 million on sales of $9.522 billion. Incidentally, 1958 was not an especially good year for GM.

Gulf & Western Industries' $89.216 million 1973 earnings and $1.927 billion sales amounted to only $58.385 million on sales of $1.22 billion expressed in constant dollars. In 1958, Gulf & Western was a pigmy that lost $730,000 on sales of only $8.4 million.

United Air Lines reported $51.128 million in net income last year on sales of $2.06 billion. Put into 1957 dollars that shrank to a net of $33.46 million on revenues of $1.305 billion. But it still was a big growth from 1958 when the airline had revenues of only $320 million and earned $14.2 million.

PPG Industries, Inc., had earnings of $104.4 million last year on sales of $1.53 billion. In constant 1975 dollars that amounted to $68.385 million in earnings on sales of $969.6 million. But PPG had sales of only $513.65 million and earnings of $32.07 million in 1958.

Pacific Gas & Electirc earned $243.6 million last year on sales of $1.49 billion. In constant dollars that amounted to a net of $159.4 million on sales of $944.2 million compared with 1958's $85.07 million net on revenues of $534.8 million.

Richardson-Merrill's 1973 net of $41.4 million on sales of $505.4 million slimmed down to $27.09 million in constant dollars and the sales thinned to $320.3 million. In 1958 Richardson-Merrill, then known as Vicq Chemical Co., earned $26 million on only $115 million in sales.

Optimism hits Exchange; prices show real upswing

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stock prices rallied in stepped up trading on the New York Stock Exchange this week as Wall Street expressed optimism that the Arab oil embargo is nearly over.

With motor tourism, glamor and oil stocks leading the upswing, the Dow Jones industrial average rose 26.13 to 878.05. The gain was highlighted by a 19.24-point advance on Tuesday when the Saudi Arabian oil minister said the oil embargo had served its purpose and should be lifted. It was the biggest single gain by the Dow in two months.

Although the rest of the week produced baffling contradictions on when, where and if Arab oil ministers would meet to discuss the ending of the oil stoppage, investors maintained their high hopes.

On Thursday, however, those hopes seemingly were dealt a blow by reports the Arabs might not necessarily agree on a joint resolution to lift the embargo. Further, Arab sources differed as to the time and place of a planned meeting to discuss the lifting of the embargo. The Dow suffered its only loss of the week that day, tumbling 10.79 points.

The latest reports, coming after the close Friday, indicated the meeting of Arab oil ministers, originally set for Sunday, will begin next Wednesday in Tripoli, rather than Cairo. And there were signs of strong opposition in some Arab quarters to lifting the embargo at this time.

Since the beginning of the year, the Arab oil embargo has been Wall Street's most sensitive issue.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index climbed 2.39 to 97.78. The NYSE index added 1.38 to 52.38.

There were 1,238 gainers, 562 losers, among the 1,992 issues traded.

QUINTESSENCE

by
Florence Minto

Just returned Sunday, March 3, from a delightful cruise on the "SPIRIT OF LONDON" from Acapulco. We were invited along with a few other travel agents and travel writers to discover firsthand that P & O's newest offspring meets the demands of the discerning and travel-wise American public.

Menus have been revised and daily one can choose between Roast Cornish Game Hen, Prime Roast Loin of Beef Au Jus, or Grilled Pork Chops Hawaiian. Yet they retain the "very British" dishes of Honeycomb Tripe and Onions, Poached Rainbow Trout garnished with Shrimp and Truffles, plus some Goanese Indian Specialties, Kofta Curry and Rice, and Mulligatawny Curry Soup . . . as options for those who wish to experiment. A special order of English Fish & Chips, Green Salad, and Cold Beer can be ordered. Hip! Hip! Extensive surveys revealed to them what we all know from childhood that Californians like Green salads as a separate course and Easterners want salads as a side dish served with the main course but all Americans like salads. So a variety of tossed greens, or fresh vegetable or fresh fruit salads are offered every day. An assortment of at least 8 cheeses with fruit are offered and it's amazing how many guests partake after having eaten a six course meal. Midnight arrives so early that if you are not careful you will miss the buffet. Nightly entertainment is divided between professional acts and an English Comedy Revue which has some hilarious moments featuring members of the crew.

The ship was ordered to be the sister ship to the "SOUTHWARD" on the Caribbean but when it became available, P & O bought it. So it is truly just two years old, not rehulled, not refurbished, not renamed, just Brand NEW. Maintenance is good and decor is warm and pleasant. Another innovation is the Double-bedded room although all twin-beds can be converted.

Dining Room and Cabin Stewards are all Portugese speaking Catholics from Goa, India, whereas Deck crews are Muslim Indians and Engine Room crews are Muslim Pakhistanian. Crews of a feather working together maintain a harmonious family under the precise management of the English officers and staff. It adds spice to be on a "foreign" english-speaking ship with an international (and friendly) crew.

Rates start at $535.00 per person for the 10-day cruise and $375.00 per person for the 7-day cruise.

We brought back actual daily menus and copies of the program of activities and news sheets. Just "Ask and ye shall receive" a copy. Pomona Travel Agency, 623 6474.

ROCK GROUP?—Country Britches may sound like a new rock group but it's really a sportswear division of an old established firm. Here is a "Mini-Bal" jacket that reverses to donegal. Worn with cavalry twill jodhpur pants with boots, it's the perfect answer for the active sportsman.

Saville Row aghast at young newcomer

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Savile Row, that bastion of expensive English hand-tailored clothing, is expanding its horizons in the United States. The latest entry is Tommy Nutter whose shop at 35a turned that staid and sometimes stuffy thoroughfare upside down.

Nutter, now 30, was the first newcomer to Savile Row in decades and the old line shops that lined the street were aghast at his audacity. They also were aghast at some of his modern style innovations but he soon became known as one of the smartest tailors in London.

Movie stars and world celebrities flocked to 35a not just for what the British refer to as gentlemanly "bespoke" tailoring but to seize upon some of the innovations —wild and weird mixtures of fabrics in a single suit, for example. Most are seeking the dash that has put Nutter on most of the world's best-dressed lists.

His emissary in America is Edward Sexton, also 30, a partner from the start and the original cutter when the firm was founded in 1969. The cutter is the key man and on his handling of the scissors depends whether a firm will be just another tailoring shop.

In coming to the United States Sexton will be following the time-honored traditions of Savile Row —an expensive hotel suite in some first rate hotel and then extensive fittings before the finished garment is airmailed from London.

Anthony Sinclair has done it in the past. So have most of the other famous of Savile Row. The most recent arrival is Michael Skinner whose claim to fame is to have made the wedding dress uniform worn by Capt. Mark Phillips on the occasion of his marriage to Princess Anne.

You hear a lot about men designing men's wear. Now there are a couple of women doing it —Pinky Wolman and Dianne Beaudry of a firm called Flo Toronto, Ltd, and winner of a Coty award in 1972. They have picked chintz for men's spring fashions.

Chintz shows up in a solid double-breasted suit and a bird and leaf print jacket available with solid chintz pants. They use a gauzy fabric in a tweed effect for a short jacket and make up some drawstring pants to match. Another spring number is a safari style suit in shantung, but perhaps the most successful is a white cotton pique blazer.

An odd thing about boutique type operations is that names of firms sometimes sound like rock groups. The distinguished clothing firm of Joseph and Feiss Co., looked around and selected "Country Britches" for its new designer collection.

You might think that meant britches to be worn in the country, but no, designer Salvatore Cesarani uses it for suits, sportscoats, outerwear, and, of course, trousers. One outstanding design was an Alpine coat in loden cloth with a great pleat down the back to give it a lot of swing. A hooded windbreaker was in poplin but reverses to donegal, and there is a removable catch-all pocket that goes clear across the front.

Most outstanding in the collection was a Mini-bal jacket that also reverses to donegal. It has bellows pockets and is cinched at the waist with D-rings. But what made it spectacular was that it was shown with cavalry twill jodhpur pants to be worn in or out of the boots —the first time jodhpurs have been seen around Manhattan in years.

One of the important trends to emerge from the spring men's wear collections is towards cool clothing in preparation for a energy-conscious summer when there might be trouble keeping the old air conditioner humming at full speed.

Clubman, possibly the largest privately owned clothing company in the world, showed several cool-looking items in its spring and summer collection. One was an airy double-knit blazer in navy accented by white stitching and pocket trim and worn with trousers carrying a nautical motif.

A multi-colored plaid sportcoat was in lightweight texturized woven polyester for coolness and with a three-dimensional effect in the weave. A white blazer suit was in a woven polyester that permits air to move in and out, and a very informal suit was in a brash tartan pattern on a woven polyester with the feel of linen.

Involvement in Indian affairs urged on church

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For 15 years, Dr. Paul Boe was a church bureaucrat toiling in the national office of the 2.3 million member American Lutheran Church. Wounded Knee changed all that.

Now Boe, 59, divides his time between attending the trial of Indian activists who occupied the South Dakota hamlet of Wounded Knee for 71 days, and pleading on the church lecture circuit for more involvement by the nation's churches in Indian problems.

"I'm not going around as the great white fixer," Boe said in an interview, "but I can use the Wounded Knee event to draw attention to Indian problems."

For Boe, Wounded Knee—where he spent 10 days as a confidante of the occupying Indians—was something like the Apostle Paul's conversion experience on the road to Damascus.

"It was a profound and moving thing for me," Boe said. "It changed my life in so many ways that I'll never be the same.

Brush with jail

"At Wounded Knee, I had an opportunity to be with a group of people who were willing to die—not eager to die, but willing to die—so that their aims might be achieved.

"You can't go away from that without being changed, without be profoundly changed."

Boe's 10 days at Wounded Knee and his refusal to tell a grand jury what he had seen there, transformed a genial, moderate man into a militant on the Indian issue.

He concedes it was his own brush with jail and the raising of the issue of "clergy confidentiality" that has given him his platform across the country.

The issue arose because of the nature of Boe's stay in Wounded Knee. He has been associated with the American Indian Movement (AIM) for five years and helped channel church money into AIM programs.

Refused to testify

In the spring of 1973, leaders of AIM "invited me to come to Wounded Knee on the second day of the occupation to see for myself."

One AIM leader said "the church has been with us all these years" and that it was important for it to be present at Wounded Knee.

After the occupation, Boe was subpoenaed to testify before a federal grand jury. He refused on the grounds that what he saw and heard at Wounded Knee was privileged.

Boe was cited for contempt and ordered jailed for the duration of the grand jury's deliberations, but an appeals court overturned the citation but left the legal issue of confidentiality unresolved.

He concedes his involvement with AIM at Wounded Knee "made the church realize that it can be involved in controversial issues without threatening its survival."

Church stance

"I'm quite encouraged about the stance of the church," he said. "The strong endorsement of the church bureaucracy concerning the rightness of my being in Wounded Knee is encouraging. The bureaucracy of the church has usually been quite timid about facing controversy."

"People have become more thoughtful about the issue," Boe said. "People are beginning to take a harder look at the systems of society."

It is the "systems," Boe says, that Wounded Knee was all about — the treaty system, where promises continue to be "bent and broken"; the tribal government system, which he likened to "a high school student council where you elect leaders who have no power"; and the system of justice where Indians "are picked up and jailed for things for which we would be given a polite warning."

Boe said Indians perceive the church as one of the most oppressive systems in society, as "the handmaiden of the government."

And he criticizes contemporary Indian concerns programs of the church—even some he in the past has been involved in— as "remedial" and "still in the missionary framework."

"The church ought to be involved in changing the systems that hurt people," he said. "But very little is being done to bring about change in those systems as they affect Indians—mostly, I think, because the aggressive tactics of the Indians who want change put people off."

"White people and Indians must sit down and listen to each other. When it comes to action, contact the Indians and see what they want you to do."

Coast is clear for Cal 500 today

By KEVIN CLOE
P-B Staff Writer

ONTARIO — After a week of hassling with the rain, it finally looks like Ontario Motor Speedway gets a break.

With perfect weather predicted, OMS will present the fifth running of the California 500 today, beginning at 11:30 a.m.

Last Saturday, rain postponed time trials for five hours. Then Sunday, the Twin 100 qualifying races were delayed for two hours because of early morning drizzles.

Thursday was set aside for carburetion tests, but a driving rain forced United States Auto Club officials to run the tests two days later than scheduled.

The pre-race tests were finally held Saturday afternoon, with all 33 entrants making an appearance.

The rain was a big factor this week, but it didn't overshadow the performance of the great A.J. Foyt.

Foyt, who will be sitting on the pole this morning when the green flag is waved to start the 500-mile ordeal, did almost everything one driver could do in preparation for the USAC championship car opener for 1974.

First he was the "speed leader" for three of the four practice days prior to the time trials last Saturday. His fastest lap in those three days finally ended up at 190.904 miles an hour.

Then Saturday afternoon in the two-lap qualifying run, bidding for the pole position, Foyt shocked everybody by running faster than his practice speed even with a manifold pressure restrictor on the car.

His two-lap average of 190.617 miles per hour was five miles an hour faster than any other driver's speed. With that he obviously won the pole position.

A.J. Foyt

And then Sunday, Foyt piloted his No. 14 orange Coyote-Foyt to a convincing victory in the first of the two Twin 100 qualifying races. His finished 17.6 seconds ahead of second-place finisher Bobby Unser and averaged 176.873 miles per hour for the 40 laps.

Saturday afternoon in the final day of practice, A.J. was again the fastest. In an official clocking by USAC officials, the winningest driver in USAC history flew with a 185.950 mark.

Needless to say, Foyt is the heavy favorite to win the fifth Cal 500 and become the first driver ever to win races in all three of USAC's 500-mile championship car events.

He has won the Indianapolis 500 three times, and he claimed the Pocono 500 title last year.

Joining A.J. in the front row this morning will be Johnny Rutherford in the No. 3 bright orange Team McLaren Offenhauser and Bobby Unser in the No. 48 Olsonite Eagle Offy.

Unofficially, he was clocked at over 188 miles per hour during the final day of practice Saturday.

While Foyt won the pole with an average speed of over 190 miles per hour, Rutherford could only come up with an average of 185.989 and Bobby Unser managed only a 185.797 average.

The second row will consist of Carruthers in the No. 21 Cobre Eagle-Offy, Steve Krisiloff in the American Kids Racer Eagle-Offy No. 18, and Lloyd Ruby in the No. 9 Unlimited Racing Eagle-Offy.

The big question this year in the Cal 500 is whether the cars can complete the 500 miles before using up their 280 gallon limit of methanol fuel: The amount of fuel restricted to each competitor was trimmed by 60 gallons this year, forcing the cars to slow down while also creating a token gesture during the so-called energy crisis.

Johnny Rutherford

It's been figured out by most of the drivers that the cars will have to average about 1.8 miles per gallon in order to finish the race. The average speed projected for the race considering the fuel situation has been somewhere between 180 to 185 miles per hour.

That would be the average if the yellow lights and the pit stops were not included — in other words, running average.

Foyt has pointed out early last week that he thought there was a possibility that a driver might go all-out for 400 or 450 miles, pick up lap money, and deliberately use up his fuel alloment early.

But most of the drivers said it was a far-fetched idea, that a driver would rather finish than just lead the race and then run out of fuel.

It should be interesting today anyway to see if there will be a driver who figures he doesn't have a chance to win. He might then deliberately put too much "boost" into his engine, try to lead as many laps as he can, and run out of fuel.

After Sunday's qualifying races, OMS officials found out it didn't have a full 33-car field to start the race. There were two spots still left open, so they extended invitations to Al Loquasto and Johnny Parsons Jr. to fill the field. Obviously, both accepted.

Loquasto had been practicing for two days prior to last Saturday's time trials, but blew an engine on the last day of practice and couldn't find a new one by the qualifying deadline.

There was another big announcement made Saturday.

Mike Hiss, who finished second in the 1972 Cal 500 after replacing the injured Mark Donohue in the No. 66 Sunoco Special McLaren-Offy, might take the place of Lee Brayton in the No. 28 Eagle-Offy.

Brayton was scheduled to start the race on the inside of Row 10, but if Hiss replaces him the car will be moved to the back of the field.

Brayton's crew didn't have to make the final decision until this morning, just before the race.

It's the Bruins in a rout— Trojans die quickly, 82-52

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — UCLA should be going into the National Basketball Association playoffs rather than the NCAA Tournament.

The Bruins would probably find more competition in the pro ranks than they will face in the annual UCLA Invitational.

Only the rankings say the Bruins aren't No. 1 entering the collegiate cage championship classic.

Don't you believe it.

UCLA simply destroyed cross-town rival USC, 82-52, here Saturday night in what was advertised as the showdown of the Pacific-8 Conference crown.

USC, which entered the game tied with the Bruins in Pac-8 play and for the season, must have felt as if it was a victim at a mass execution.

UCLA, obviously highly emotional, simply tore the Trojans apart in rolling up an incredible 47-13 halftime margin thanks to a pair of consecutive points streaks of 12 and 14.

Premature reports of UCLA's death because of three losses this season didn't take into account how the Bruins play in pressure games.

Nobody in the country could have beaten the Bruins Saturday night and that might include the pros.

Mr. Basketball, Bill Walton, is especially hard to stop in big games.

Walton, playing his final collegiate game in Los Angeles, was as awesome as ever and clearly displayed why he was named College Basketball Player of the Year for the third time earlier Saturday.

When Walton is fired up, he is the greatest of all times.

The 6-9 senior from La Mesa made 9 out of 10 shots and two of three free throws for 20 and grabbed 16 rebounds in UCLA's devastating first half.

The big redhead ended up with 26 points in making 12 of 14 plus 20 rebounds.

UCLA (23-3) will open its defense of its many national championships Thursday night against Dayton in the NCAA West Regionals at the Unversity of Arizona in Tucson.

USC (22-4) will probably accept a bid to the new Collegiate Commissioners' Association Tournament in St. Louis for second place teams.

"Our first half was outstanding," UCLA coach John Wooden said. "All of our player played well and when Walton is doing well, he is an inspiration to the rest of the team. We were in an excellent mental, physical and emotional state for this game."

UCLA did a remarkable job on defense against SC's new offense. "Our defense played away from the ball," Wooden explained. "When you do that, it makes it easier when you man gets the ball. I can't remember a better defensive half. We didn't give them time to get set up for their shots."

We didn't play our kind of ball," USC coach Bob Boyd said. "I can't emphasize that enough even though I don't want to be taking anything away from the Bruins. You put their alert play with our poor execution, you get a mismatch."

It's hard to believe that USC once led, but it's true. Gus Williams stole a UCLA pass and drove the length of the court for an easy layup (2-0) to send Trojan fans into ecstasy. USC supporters were noticeably quiet after that.

UCLA scored its next 12 points to take early command of the game. Its later 14-point spurt made 43-10 to bury any Trojan hopes.

Flyers, Lobos win openers

By P-B Wire Dispatches

Dayton and New Mexico scored victories in the NCAA Western Regionals at Pocatello, Idaho Saturday and will advance to the Western finals at Tucson, Arizona Thursday.

New Mexico will face WAC champion University of San Francisco while Dayton has the unenviable task of meeting Pac-8 titlist UCLA.

Tommie Lipsey was high for the Diablos with 22 points. Billy Mallory, who fouled out accounted for 14. Farmer Chino High and Chaffey College player Darcy Bailey had four points for CSLA in a sub-role.

Fourteenth-ranked New Mexico beat Idaho State 73-65 in the second game at Pocatello. Lobo Bernard Hardin led all scorers with 19 points.

Idaho State refused to yield to New Mexico in the second half, coming within two points of the lead several times. But the Lobos stayed ahead to clinch the NCAA playoff win.

Mark Saiers had 18 for the Lobos, while former Mt. San Antonio College star Dan Spindler and Kevin Hoyt each had 14 points to pace State.

GREENSBORO N.C. (UPI) — Seven-foot-four Tommy Burleson scored 38 points Saturday night to lead top-ranked North Carolina State to a 103-100 overtime win over fifth-ranked Maryland for the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball championship and a berth in the NCAA playoffs.

Burleson scored 24 of his points in the second half as North Carolina State, down by as many as 13 points in the first half, and 55-50 at the intermission, rallied for a 97-97 tie in regulation time.

All-America David Thompson added 29 for the Wolfpack.

State led briefly in the first half by one point and twice in the second half but never by more than three points until they went out front 97-93 with 2-12 left in regulation play.

Tom Roy pulled the Terrapins to within two with 1:43 remaining and the Terps tied the score with 1:12 remaining on a shot by Len Elmore.

The Terrapins got possession after Roy's basket when John Lucas tied up Moe Rivers and tipped the tossup to Elmore.

The Terps played for the last shot and Lucas tried a 25 footer with one second to go and it missed.

Maryland moved out front in the five minute overtime period when Elmore sank a foul shot 1:10 into the period. Burleson put the Wolfpack back out front 15 seconds later. Maryland's final points came on a pair of free throws by Moe Howard who was fouled by Thompson with 2:45 left.

Phil Spence gave N.C. State all the points it needed with a basket with 2:04 to go, and Monte Towe sealed the victory by connecting on two free throws when Maryland's Billy Hahn made a desperation foul with six seconds remaining. Towe, with 17 points, was the only member of the Wolfpack besides Burleson and Thompson in double figures.

UPI Player of Year? -- One guess

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bill Walton of UCLA, the introspective "Giant of Westwood" who has been the most dominating force in college basketball for the last three years, Saturday was named winner of the James A. Naismith Trophy as the United Press International's Player of the Year for the third consecutive season.

The 6-foot-11 center from La Mesa, Calif., who has led UCLA to 82 victories in 85 games over the past three seasons, joins Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati (1958-60) as the only men in the 20-year history of the UPI Player of the Year voting to win the award three times.

The Naismith Trophy, given annually since 1969 by the Atlanta Tipoff Club to the nation's outstanding college player as selected by UPI, will be presented to Walton at a dinner in Atlanta on March 31.

Walton, like he has been the past two seasons, was a runaway winner in a balloting conducted of 241 sports writers and sportscasters from across the nation. The redheaded senior collected 168 votes and beat out junior David Thompson, who had 54 votes, for the second year in a row.

The only other players to receive at least two votes were All-Americans Marvin Barnes of Providence (4) and John Shumate of Notre Dame (3).

Even though UCLA was not quite the awesome power it was in the two previous seasons, Walton was still the most devastating big man in college basketball. Although suffering a back injury in an early season game which forced him to miss three contests, he still managed to average 14.7 rebounds and 18.9 points per game while connecting on 67 per cent of his field goal attempts.

As usual Walton was at his best in the so-called "big" games. In an early season showdown with North Carolina State at St. Louis, Walton, plagued with foul trouble early in the contest, came off the bench in the second half and almost singlehandedly ended the Wolfpack's visions of an upset.

Perhaps his best effort, however, came against Notre Dame at Los Angeles only one week after the Irish had snapped the Bruins' 88-game winning streak. In the rematch, won by the Bruins, Walton scored 32 points to avenge the only loss he had suffered in 139 games dating back to his junior year in high school.

Thompson, a 6-4 junior, was the Atlantic Coast Conference's Player of the Year for the second successive season. The two-time All-American from Shelby, N.C., averaged 25.7 ppg in leading the Wolfpack to a 241 regular season record. Thompson was at his best against ACC-rival Maryland, averaging 39.5 ppg for the two games.

Barnes, a 6-9 senior from Providence, R.I., led the nation in rebounding with an 18.8 per game mark while Shumate, a 69 junior from Elizabeth, N.J., scored 23.5 ppg in leading Notre Dame to a 24-2 regular season record.

Weiskopf, Devlin tied for lead in Doral Eastern Open Tourney

MIAMI (UPI) — Tom Weiskopf and Bruce Devlin, both fighting back from slow starts this year, grabbed the lead at 13 under par Saturday in the $150,000 Doral Eastern Open Golf Tournament.

Weiskopf had a 69 and Devlin shot a 67.

The two veteran pros held a two-shot lead over Jerry Heard, who fired a 72 for an 11-under-par 205, and Buddy Allin, who shot a 68.

Weiskopf, who had been plagued by a mysterious thumb ailment earlier this year, said he did not play quite as well as he did in the first two rounds of the tournament.

"I hit the water twice," he said. "But I guess overall I'm playing as well now as I did last summer."

Weiskopf was a seven-time winner last year, and at one time won five tournaments over an eight-week stretch.

But in just three outings this year he has missed the cut twice and finished 32nd once. He said he somehow hurt his thumb at the Phoenix Open, and the pain finally subsided after cortisone treatments two weeks ago.

Weiskopf had the lead for much of the day, overtaking Heard, the leader after the first two rounds, on the ninth hole. Weiskopf hit an eight-foot putt for a birdie on the 14th and a 35-footer for a bird on the 17th.

He also saved par on the 18th after hitting his drive off to the right and putting his second shot into a sand trap. But he blasted to within 10 feet and sank the putt for par.

Meanwhile, Devlin was charging down the back nine with birdies on the 10th, 11th, 14th and 16th holes. He had two birdies and a bogey on the front nine.

It was Devlin's fifth tournament since last Labor Day and he said that earlier the lack of competition had hurt him. But he said Saturday he felt he was getting his competitive edge back.

Jack Nicklaus had one of the hottest rounds of the day, a 66 that included six birdies and no bogeys. He was still back in the pack with a seven-under-par 209, but said he was playing well.

"I just have to get off to a little better start in these tournaments," he said. Nicklaus' only win this year was at the Hawaiian Open.

Bruce Crampton, who shot a 67 to join a logjam at 10 under par, shot a hole-in-one on the 225-yard fourth hole with a five iron.

"I think it went in on the second bounce," he said of his seventh ace. "I was saying 'bite' and it disappeared."

The ace came as a surprise to tournament official Wade Cagle, who set the pin placements for the third round. "There's no way anyone can make a hole in one where the flag is today," he said when he heard of Crampton's shot.

Evans' homer downs L.A.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Darrell Evans, who hit a career-high of 41 home runs last seasons, connected for a game-winning shot in the 10th inning Saturday as the Atlanta Braves won their Grapefruit League opener by defeating the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3.

Evans broke up the game by hitting a 2-1 pitch from Dodger rookie Rex Hudson over the right field fence with one out in the 10th.

Braves first baseman Mike Lum slugged a two-run homer in the the three-run Atlanta seventh inning, while Bill Buckner and Willie Crawford produced run-scoring singles for the Dodgers and Steve Garvey homered in the eighth to tie the game 3-3 and sent the game into extra innings.

'Hen Spikers rout Tech

POMONA — Hurdler Steve Smith and weightman Ray Fogg posted double wins Saturday in pacing Pomona-Pitzer's track team to a 98-47 victory over Caltech in the Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference opener.

Smith captured the 120 high hurdles with a 15.1-second clocking, and also won the 440 intermediate hurdles in 55.5 seconds.

Fogg copped the shot put with a heave of 55 feet, and hurled the discus to a winning 140 feet-10 inch distance.

In Pomona-Pitzer's winning mile relay team, anchormen Bill Taylor and Dave Wiggins came up with 48.9 and 49.1 splits, respectively.

Fogg's winning shot put effort set a meet record, along with Randy Luce's 3-mile winning performance in 14.40.7.

UCLA races to tri-meet track win

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Seven lifetime bests by UCLA, highlighted by Clarence Taylor's 53-11 ¼ triple jump, enabled the defending NCAA track champion Bruins to whip Arizona and San Diego State Saturday in a triangular meet.

UCLA rolled up 90 points to 57 for Arizona and 32 for San Diego State.

The powerful Bruins defeated Arizona 87-53 and San Diego State 106-38 for their 18th and 19th straight dual meet victories.

Steve Williams of San Diego State, co-holder of the 100-yard dash world record at 9.1 seconds, breezed to easy victories in the 100 and 220 with 9.3 and 20.7 clockings.

The Aztec speedster ran his typical races. He was last off the blocks in the 100, but cut loose with a burst of speed at the halfway mark to win going away. He ran the 220 in almost the same fashion.

Rory Kotinek registered a triple for UCLA by winning the javelin at 225-7, the high jump at 7-0, and placing second in the long jump at 24-6 ¼.

Roger Freberg helped the Bruins by winning the shot put at 60-7 and the discus at 180-8. His shot put mark was a personal best.

Ed Arriola of Arizona also turned in a pair of victories winning the mile in 4:05.4 and the 880 in 1:51.2. Both times were personal bests and meet records.

Arriola caught teammate Ed Mendoza 70 yards from the tape with a blazing kick that carried him to an eight-yard victory.

Bruin freshman Jerry Herndon won the long jump with a personal best of 25-7 ¼, while another UCLA freshman, Jim Neidhart improved his best in the shot put with a 50-11¼ heave, finishing third.

Other lifetime bests by Bruins were Gary Nitti, with a 4:08.9 mile for fourth place; Rich Gunther, a 167-3 for second place in the discus; and Sam Albanese, a 16-0 for second in the pole vault.

Valentine, Rivers lead Halos to Cactus loop win over A's

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Bobby Valentine was a perfect 3-for-3, and Mickey Rivers chipped in with two doubles, to lead the California Angels to 5-1 Cactus League victory over the Oakland A's Saturday.

Oakland led briefly 1-0 in the first inning when Bill North walked, stole second, was sacrificed to third and scored on a single by Reggie Jackson.

The Angels tied the game 1-1 in the bottom of the first on Rivers' first double, a sacrifice by Denny Doyle and Valentine's single.

California broke the tie in the fourth by scoring two runs on a leadoff walk to Mike Epstein, a single by Ollie Brown, a run-scoring double by Richie Scheinblum and a sacrifice fly by Ellie Rodriguez.

The Angels iced the game with two more runs in the eighth. An error by Oakland reliever Darold Knowles was followed by Lee Stanton's single, Oakland's third error, by Ted Kubiak, and consecutive fly balls by Rick Stelmazsek and Rudy Meoli.

California pitchers Bill Singer, Rudy May, Skip Lockwood, Dick Lange and Dave Sells limited the defending world champions to four hits. May was the winner, while the loss was charged to John Odom.

The win was the first for the Angels in two spring games while Oakland's record fell to 11.

Rosenbloom won't match $500,000

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Los Angeles Rams' owner Carroll Rosenbloom said Friday he has told Heisman Trophy winner John Cappelletti to accept a reported $500,000 offer by the Philadelphia franchise of the new World Football League because "he won't get it here."

Rosenbloom and Rams' General Manager Don Klosterman met Friday with Cappelletti, the Rams' No. 1 draft choice from Penn State. Earlier in the week, the Philadelphia team said it had offered the star running back a $500,000 multi-year contract.

"I am advising him that if he has a bonafide $500,000 offer from that club, he should take it," Rosenbloom said. "My feeling is that any rookie who can sign such a contract should run to take it. He won't get it here."

Cappelletti arrived here Thursday night, went through a physical exam Friday and worked out at the Rams' practice field before meeting with Rosenbloom and Klosterman. Cappelletti was accompanied by his attorney.

"My preference is with the established league," said Cappelletti, a native of Upper Darby, a Philadelphia suburb, "but if it can't compete in dollars and cents, I'd prefer to stay where I grew up."

Commenting on statements by officials of the Philadelphia franchise that the Rams won't offer Cappelletti as substantial an offer, Rosenbloom said, "I'm not going to destroy our football team by giving an inflated contract to an unproved rookie. In the Ram budget, most of the money goes to the players who have proved they can win for us—not to youngsters who may win for us some day.

"Our first obligation is to our veterans."

UOP garners PCAA Swim title

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Powerful University of Pacific surged toward its second straight Pacific Coast Athletic Association swimming and diving title Friday by capturing four of six events in the second day of the three-day competition.

The Tigers piled up 409.5 points in two days, well ahead of second-place Cal State Long Beach, which had 221.5.

Notre Dame, Marquette win openers

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (UPI) — Second ranked Notre Dame, behind the hot first half shooting of guard Gary Brokaw, outclassed Tennesse's Austin Peay 108-66 Saturday to move into the Mideast NCAA semifinals and set up a showdown with the Big Ten champion.

In the first game of the regionals here at Indiana State, ninth-ranked Marquette threw a full court press at Ohio University and scored an 85-59 win to gain a spot in the other semifinals bracket. The semifinals will be held next week in Alabama.

Brokaw scored 10 of the Irish's first 14 points to stake Notre Dame to an early 14-6 lead. He finished the first half with 21 points. The Irish, now 25-2, led 54-34 at halftime.

All-America John Shumate and freshman forward Adrian Dantley took over the scoring in the second half as the Irish coasted to victory. Brokaw finished with 25 points, Dantley with 22, 14 of them in the second half, and Shumate with 20.

Austin Peay's big man, James "Fly" Williams, was the game's high point man with 26 points—18 coming in the first half. Most of Fly's 13 baskets came on long jumpers as Dantley and Shumate blocked the middle.

Indiana and Michigan, the Big Ten co-champions will play Monday night to see who will face Notre Dame in Thursday night's semifinals in Tuscaloosa.

Notre Dame scored on 50 of 83 shots from the floor for a 60.2 percentage while Austin Peay connected on only 25 of 70 shots for 35.7 per cent.

Austin Peay, the Ohio Valley co-champion, finished the season at 17-10.

In the first game, the Marquette Warriors, led by All-America Maurice Lucas with 19 points and 15 rebounds, hit on an even 50 per cent of their shots from the floor to extend their season record to 23-4. Ohio, the Mid-American conference champion, shot a cool 40.4 per cent from the field and finished the season 16-11.

Marquette coach Al McGuire ordered a full court press midway through the first half after the the two teams traded leads for the first 10 minutes. The press helped force Ohio into 14 turnovers for the game.

The Warriors held a 37-28 halftime lead and extended their lead to as much as 34 points with 3:45 to play before coasting home.

In the second half, it was Lucas, the 6-foot-9 junior, and his two front line teammates, Earl Tatum, a 6-5 sophomore, and Bo Ellis, the 6-9 freshman, who dominated the scoring and the boards.

Lucas got 12 of his game high 19 in the second half. Tatum and Ellis both scored 16 points for the game, each hitting on eight field goals.

Marquette, which has had its troubles in post season play in the past, now goes to Tuscaloosa, Ala. for the mideast semifinals and will play Vanderbilt on March 14.

Wolverines, Hoosiers win

By P-B Wire Dispatches

Charged-up Michigan dumped arch rival Michigan State 103-87 at East Lansing Saturday, while Indiana squeaked by Purdue 80-79 at Bloomington, thus setting up a playoff showdown Monday night for the Big 10 crown and a berth in the NCAA playoffs.

Michigan's rout of the Spartans was spearheaded by Campy Russell, who scored 36 points. Indiana needed two free throws by John Laskowski in the final eight seconds to best stubborn Purdue.

The wins by the Big 10 schools give each a 12-2 conference mark. The Big 10 title will be decided Monday night in a special playoff game between the Wolverines and the Hoosiers to be held at Illinois.

The winner of that clash will advance to the NCAA mideast regionals against Notre Dame at the University of Alabama.

Pomona Valley baseball:

Broncos, Stags, Owls win

Despite gray skies, local college baseball teams still had a chance to shine Saturday.

Cal Poly Pomona snapped a six-game losing string in big fashion at San Luis Obispo, as Vic Bernal's no-hitter and Steve Herter's two home runs led a 4-3 and 4-0 sweep of Cal Poly SLO. Claremont-Mudd also chaulked up a twinbill sweep in league action, thundering to a 18-1 win over Cal Tech in their opener and receiving a 9-0 forfeit victory in the nightcap over the beleaguered Beavers.

In Cal Poly's opener, Mike Heinen survived a three-run homer by SLO's Dave Hardin to spin a five-hit victory. Herter tied the game up at 3-3 with an eighth inning homer, while Steve Ludewig got home Dave Chapman with a suicide squeeze bunt to win the game for the Broncos in the 11th.

After Poly had put together a three-run rally highlighted by Herter's second homer of the day in the first inning of the nightcap, it was all Bernal.

The junior righthander blanked the rugged Mustangs on no hits, the only SLO runners reaching via three walks Bernal allowed.

It was the first win of the year for Bernal, who fanned seven in the seven-inning contest. Ludewig saved the no-hitter with a diving catch at third base in the fifth inning.

The two wins evened Poly's CCAA league mark at 2-2, the same as SLO. Overall, the Broncos are now 6-9 on the season.

Claremont-Mudd had it easy gainst Cal Tech. The Stags won the opener 18-1 with a 12 hit, 12 walk attack against Beaver hurler Ed Rea, who went all the way.

Ed Matta picked up the win by fanning 11 in five innings, while reliever Scott Baker had four more K's in two scoreless frames.

Gary Burger led the hit parade for the Stags with four hits, including a double and triple. Gary Rattel had three RBI's and three runs scored, while Bob Turek had three hits.

The shell-shocked Beavers then forfeited the nightcap to the Stags due to a lack of pitchers. The two wins give Claremont-Mudd a 3-0 SCIAC league mark, and advance their season log to 7-1.

Citrus dumped SBVC behind four-hit performances by Jerry Waters and Phil Doktor. John Freedman had four RBI's for the Owls, as Citrus totaled 18 hits on the afternoon.

Quack, Ancient Title vie for richest purse

ARCADIA, Calif. (UPI) — Quack, Ancient Title, Tri Jet and Prince Dantan battle it out for Santa Anita's richest prize of the meeting today—the $170,000 Santa Anita Handicap.

Quack, assigned the highweight of 126 pounds, is co-holder of the world record for the mile and one-quarter of 1.58 1-5. Last season Quack scored a victory in the San Bernardino Handicap here and followed up with three impressive efforts at Hollywood Park.

Quack has only raced once this season, finishing third in a one-mile allowance event two weeks ago. Don Pierce, gunning for his fourth win in the Santa Anita Handicap, will be aboard Quack.

Ancient Title, who became the first horse in 15 years to sweep Santa Anita's Strub stakes this year, has been given a 125-pound impost. Only three others—Mark-Ye-Hell in 1953, Round Table in 1958, and Prove It in 1961—have captured both the Strub Stakes and the Santa Anita Handicap in the same year. Laffit Pincay will ride Ancient Title.

Tri Jet, in at 123 pounds, won the mile and one-quarter Hawthorne Gold Cup last summer and captured the San Pasqual Handicap this season. Braulio Baeza will be aboard.

Prince Dantan, which will be ridden by Ron Turcotte, finished third in the Strub Stakes but captured the San Antionio Stakes for his third victory of the year.

Rounding out the field are the combined entry of Forage and Astray, with Jacinto Vasquez named as the jockey; Crusading, ridden by Howard Grant; Dancing Papa, Steve Valdez; Kentuckian, Bill Mahorney; El Extrano, Alvaro Pineda; and Linda's Chief,

Tee to cup

Once around the green:

Three big high school golf tournaments are on tap next month, including the Chaffey High Invitational which will be played at Ontario National.

Others including the Inglewood Tournament at Griffith Park, April 6, 7, and 8, which is open to boys and girls 14-17. The Burbank Tournament, April 11, will be played at DeBell Golf Course in beautiful downtown . . . you guessed it.

Don Nelson is running the Chaffey event which will be played at Ontario National April 8.

Speaking of Ontario National . . . the Cal 500 celebrity tourney there Friday was played in the rain . . . Jack Garner, brother of actor and tournament chairman James, won the trip to Hawaii by dropping his tee shot three-feet from the pin on the 185-yard, par-3 17th hole . . .

NEW OFFICERS have been elected in the Los Serranos Women's Golf Club, reports publicist Jeanne Schlick, who by the way, tipped us off on Tommie Wood's hole-in-one, which appeared in last week's Tee to Cup . . . Mrs. Wood called to thank us for mentioning it . . . she was welcome.

New officers include President Loreen Stone, 1st Vice President Helen Sprague, 2nd Vice President Mary Takanabe, Secretary Janet Kaufman and Treasurer Alice Hudson.

THE TWO-YEAR-OLD, four-team National Professional Golf League announced plans this week to go international with as many as 16 teams competing in the United States and overseas by next year.

George Palmerton of Seattle Wash., chairman of the league's expansion committee, headed the first meeting of the newly-organized World Professional Golf League here this weekend in Las Vegas.

He said the WPGL plans to field teams from eight to 10 cities in the United States during a 12-week season beginning in June and to have 16 teams in action by next year, including several from foreign countries.

Palmerton said the WPGL players committee, headed by Billy Casper, has reached working agreements with the Professional Golf Association's Tournament Players Division.

The WPGL format calls for one-day matches each week between six-man teams with Nassau-point scoring in singles and best-ball match play competition.

Each team will have a roster of 15 players from which to draw, he said.

THE RED HILL Thursday Team, under the leadership of captain Vern Murray, clinched the group XI title in S.C.G.A match team play and will move into the first round of playoffs. Opponent and site were unknown at press time.

Playing home and home matches against teams from Big Canyon, Santa Ana and Hacienda, the Red Hill wrapped up its second consecutive title without playing its final match.

Big guns for the local team were Bill LeGrand who averaged 2.6 points per match (3 points possible); Lou Catalano, 2.5; Dick Carr 2.4; Loe Mangiagli, 2.25; Vern Murray 2.25; Claude Ellena, 2.2; and Chuck Jenkins, 2.0.

MARSHALL CANYON Women's Golf Club recently held a two-day home and home best-ball-foursome tournament.

The winning foursome was Kay Liscom, Kay Wilson, Nancy Bobier and Jean Van Way. Two foursomes led by Ruth Erickson and Marion McGrath tied for second place. Mrs. Erickson won the prize for driving closest to the pin on the par 3 No. 6 green, placing her ball 16 inches from the cup.

MSAC Relays

Al Fuerbach returning

WALNUT — On a cold, overcast Saturday afternoon late in April of last year, burly Al Feuerbach stepped into the Mt. San Antonio Relays shot put circle for his first attempt of the day,. He then proceeded to arch the 16 lb. steel ball 70 feet 9 inches for the second best throw ever in the history of the sport.

Feuerbach predicted then that better efforts were yet to come. Just a week later he achieved his prediction with a 71-7 world record that eliminated the oldest field standard in the books, Randy Matson's 71-5 set in 1967.

Now Feuerbach is preparing for the 1974 Mt. Sac Relays, set for Friday, Saturday and Sunday, April 26, 27 and 28, and already his record is in jeopardy by George Woods, the 290 lb. muscle man who was second in the Relays shot put last year.

Woods has already bettered Feuerbach's outdoor mark with a 72-2¾ indoor world record recently in Los Angeles.

The anticipated match-up between the two giants of shot putting is just one of many exciting events on top for this year's Relays, according to its founder and director, Hilmer Lodge.

"We are expecing a great field of individuals again in '74 at the Relays, and this year, the collegiate entries represent most of the major universities on the West Coast," boasts Lodge.

Following tradition, the Relays will open Friday morning with College events. The high schools and junior colleges share the billing in the afternoon and Friday night.

Saturday is the big day with university and open competition along with invitational events in all categories.

The first day of the two-day decathlon competition also is set for Saturday.

On Sunday, the women take over with a full day of age-group and open events. The conclusion of the decathlon is also on Sunday.

Tickets for th Relays are now on sale at Mt. San Antonio College, 1100 North Grand, Walnut, 91789. Ticket information can be obtained by calling (213) 339-7331 or (714) 595-2211, Ext. 288.

Poly now looking for cage recruits

POMONA — His first season as head basketball coach is over but for Cal Poly mentor Don Hogan the recruiting season has just begun.

Armed with a seven-foot long list of seven footers, Hogan and his assistant, Allen Van Winkle, who has done a large part of the Bronco scouting this year, will now attempt to convince junior college and high school cage flashes that they should continue their basketball careers at Cal Poly.

Van Winkle, unlike his ancient relative of Catskill Mountain fame, has not been sleeping this season and has a glowing report of prospective players who might be enticed to become future Broncos.

Hogan's heroes of 1974 finished the season with victories in three of their last five CCAA conference games and nearly pulled off a major upset before losing to conference champion, Cal Poly San Luis Obispo, in an exciting overtime tussle to wind up the season.

Four Broncos — Lee Roy Williams, Alphonso Adair, Richard Reid and John Carrillo — are departing seniors from the squad which finished with a 9-17 record and a fourth place spot in the final conference standings.

But a host of others who saw considerable action will return and hopefully they'll be supported by the newcomers Hogan and Van Winkle plan to recuirt.

Included among the returnees are Horace Aubrey, Cal Poly's top scorer, and Paul Newton, second leading rebounder. Both are sophomores as are Malcom Kennedy, David Kennedy and Brian Thomas. Juniors Art Williams, Bill Bunker and Arlis Garner along with freshman Frank Prince also will be returning.

"We'll try to get immediate hlep from junior college players and we'll shoot for high school players to help in the long range program," Hogan says, explaining his recruiting plans.

"I'm proud of the way the team finished. We made many adjustments during the season and I'm gratified with the growth we displayed. We had a good bunch of kids and I feel that while the season was not a winning one the team presented a good image for Cal Poly and that is important."

Olympic shows Foreman fight

LOS ANGELES — The March 26 world heavyweight championship fight between George Foreman and Ken Norton will be shown in color at the Olympic Auditorium, promoter Mrs. Aileen Eaton has announced.

Foreman will be making his second defense in Caracas, Venezuela. He won the title a year ago by knocking out Joe Frazier in two rounds and has successfully defending once.

All seats at the Olympic will be reserved and are priced at $10.00 and $7.50. They are now on sale.

Boys trying to liberate girls' teams

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Mich. (UPI) — Two high school boys in this Detroit suburb are fighting to liberate the volleyball courts.

In a reversal of recent cases in which girls have played on male interscholastic teams, Jeff Waalkes, 18, and Steve Thomas, 17, joined the previously all-female varsity volleyball team at Andover High School.

The girls think the addition of two boys is great, but opposing teams aren't of the same opinion.

The boys were forced to warm the bench at a game against Clarenceville High School when coach Tom Teeter refused to play unless they sat out. The coach at Bloomfield High School says her team will not play Andover next week unless the boys are removed.

Besides facing antagonism from other teams, Waalkes and Thomas say they feel pressure from their own teammates.

"We get razzed twice as much if we miss a shot," Thomas said.

Rival coaches claim the boys have an unfair advantage in the female league, because regulations are more rigid for male teams.

"I believe in equal rights for men and women," said coach Linda Denstaedt of Clarkston High School, "but at the same time it is not equal for a man to play a sport and have an advantage."

The directors of the Wayne-Oakland League decided Wednesday that the boys will be allowed to complete the season, but if the league's coaches have their way, women-only teams will prevail again next year.

February 19, 1974: In a 387 mile test through Arizona and California, supervised by General Environments Corporation, a Comet and a Capri with standard engines and transmissions delivered the kind of gas mileage you'd like to get. Each car was broken in the equivalent of 6,000 miles and driven by non-professional drivers, never exceeding 50 mph. You yourself might actually average less, or for that matter more! Because mileage varies according to maintainance, equipment, total weight, driving habits and road conditions. And no two drivers, or even cars, are exactly the same. Not concerned about 20 wins

Sutton just like Ford

VERO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — If they ask Don Sutton the same question again this year, maybe he can have a new answer for them.

Maybe he can tell them about Whitey Ford.

Don Sutton, after all, has become baseball's most celebrated non-20 game winner since Ford, and if you are as good as he is and don't win 20, people begin to wonder.

Sutton always has an answer.

"Pure and simple," he says, "winning is out of a pitcher's hands. You can go nothing-nothing for 27 innings and not win."

That has been known to happen to the Los Angeles Dodgers, but it still doesn't satisfy everyone who looks at the "W" column, and there Sutton has another answer.

"I'm being paid very well for making it tough on the other team to score runs," he says. He insists he never has been concerned about that seemingly magic number of 20 which consumes most pitchers.

Ford, elected to the Hall of Fame in January, toiled 18 seasons for the New York Yankees and while he usually won 17 or 18 games, he never hit 20 until his 12th season. By then he was 32 year old.

Sutton, who won't be 29 until next month, will earn $114,000 from the Dodgers this season, the most ever paid to a pitcher who never has won 20 games, but he's still rankled by anyone who criticizes his won-lost record.

"How many of those games did you see?" Sutton pointedly asks a questioner who refers to his 18-10 recorn in 1973. He points to the fact the Dodgers won 21 of the 33 games he started last year, expects to start more games in 1974 and says, "I'll guarantee if I don't win 25, the club will win 25 I start."

"Alston (Manager Walt) has faith in me because he knows he can count on me for a good job every time out," says the Dodgers' righthander. "I just want to be remembered for being one of the most dependable pitchers this club has produced."

A 21-year-old rookie when Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale pitched Los Angeles to its last pennant in 1966, Sutton has matured to become the No. 1 man on the National League's best pitching staff. In the last three seasons he has totalled 54 victories with earned run averages never above 2-55.

Never before this season, however, has Sutton set himself up with a target victory goal but this time around he's shooting for 25 and believes he can get it.

"You're just kind of wandering around aimlessly if you don't set some goals," he said while getting his arm worked on in the Dodgers' spanking new spring training clubhouse.

"And I think you have to set your goals high enough so that without the help of others, or divine intervention, you can't possibly make it. I'd rather set a high goal and fall short than accomplish a little one."

A 25-victory year also would propel Sutton toward recognition of another sort he seeks.

"We are all realistic enough to know Tom Seaver is head-and-shoulders above every other pitcher in the league," Sutton says. "I don't think there's another pitcher in our league who can dominate a game like Tom.

"My ambition is to be known as the second best pitcher in the National League."

Doyle uses simple system: Action, reaction. repetition

Denny Doyle is a spirited little fellow: 5-10, 165 pounds with a coat on. Veteran observers have described him as one of the top second basemen in the majors; perhaps the best at turning the double play.

The Doyle system is simple: action and reaction, repetition and unity.

"Repetition is the best instructor," says Doyle who will battle Sandy Alomar for the Angels second base job. "You have to be willing to work and work on a play until it becomes a matter of reflex. A player has to know subconsciously how he will make a play before he gets the ball. Sometimes there's isn't time to think. It has to be an action-reaction response."

Toiling in the warm desert sun in Holtville, an hour after the rest of the squad had finished, Doyle and three other Angels newcomers were going through the routine of making the double play.

While coach Salty Parker threw ground balls and manager Bob Winkles and coach Whitey Herzog looked on, Doyle showed why he is considered one of the best at making the vital pivot.

"A lot of double plays can be turned by the shortstop and second baseman if they have action together," he said later. "I've always enjoyed watching other players make the play. It helps. As for the shortstop-second baseman combination, the two have to be willing to work 35-40 minutes a day on getting their timing and angles to make throws, etc.

"A lot of people used to ask how Larry Bowa and I (the two were with the Phillies) learned to work together in one major league season. They didn't remember we had worked four years together in the minors."

Acquired from the Phillies Dec. 10 in exchange for pitcher Aurelio Monteagudo and Chris Coletta (completing an Aug. 15 deal that sent Billy Grabarkewitz to Philadelphia), Doyle admits he probably won't impress anyone with his power. He did hit three home runs and bat .434 (23-53) during his final 13 games of the 1973 season, but missed the last part of the schedule with a back injury. He carries the 13-game batting streak into the 1974 season.

"A batter has to relax at the plate and psychologically be ready to hit the ball," he says. "During the final part of the 1973 season I knew what I was doing right. Contrary to some reports, my wife did not give me batting tips. It was a case of eliminating some mistakes and becoming more confident I could hit the ball."

Doyle almost quit baseball following the 1968 season. He had played basketball as well as baseball at Morehead State College and thought about a career in coaching

"I wasn't too enthused about returning to baseball," he recalls. "The Phillies had Tony Taylor and Cookie Rojas and I couldn't see a major league career directly ahead. I coached at Caverna High School in Kentucky and enjoyed it."

But he returned to baseball the following spring and batted .310 for Eugene in the Pacific Coast League. He was selected the league's Most Valuable Player and Rookie of the Year.

He worked his way into Nolan Ryan's career early in 1970 (against the Mets) getting the only hit as the first batter in the game.

"That was a strange feeling," he recalled. "Nolan pitched a nine-inning no-hitter but gave up a hit—to me."

Asked where he would like to bat in the lineup, Doyle replied: "Anywhere between one and nine and I'll be excited."

Poly boosters plan Hawaii sports trip

POMONA — Cal Poly Pomona Associates, a group developed at Cal Poly for the promotion of athletics, is sponsoring several overseas sport explorations to Hawaii.

These excursions are scheduled for June and July. Individuals, both Cal Poly students and faculty, who are in good physical condition are invited to participate.

Activities on the nine-day trips include beach backpacking, swimming, and volcano exploration on the Island of Maui. A separate group of Scuba divers will journey to the Kona Coast on the Island of Hawaii.

The cost of these trips, the exact dates, and any further information may be obtained by phoning Ray Daugherty at (714) 598-4618 or Otto Gasser at (714) 598-4627.

Garcia fights Bob Mashburn

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Jose Luis Garcia of Venezuela, the only fighter ever to knock out Ken Norton, will meet New York's Bob Mashburn at the Olympic Auditorium next Thursday.

Garcia, who is managed by Willie Ketchum, has a 26-5 record with 14 knockouts. In his last start, he knocked out Charlie Polite in six rounds last Dec. 6.

Ben Jipcho visits L.A. for Pro Track Classic

LOS ANGELES — Ben Jipcho of Kenya, 1973 track and field "athlete of the year," will make his Southland debut when he runs the mile in the Vitalis Pro Track Classic at the Sports Arena Saturday afternoon, April 13.

Jipcho, along with American Olympic hero Dave Wottle, is among the newest converts to the run-for-pay ranks.

The 30-year-old Kenya distance star ranks as the second fastest miler of all-time at 3:52.0. Only Jim Ryun, who'll be matched with Ben, has run faster.

Jipcho was a solid choice for track "athlete of the year" in 1973. Aside from his 3:52.0 mile, he also set a new world record of 8:14.0 for the 3000-meter steeplechase and recorded the second fastest 5000 in history.

Jipcho is in fabulous form, having won the 5000 and the steeplechase in the Commonwealth Games in New Zealand and then placing third behind Filbert Bayi's world record 1500 clocking.

The Kenyan, who ran for years in the shadow of his famed countryman, Kip Keino, has been doubling successfully in some of the pro meets held to date.

Sports parade

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Calvin Griffith, the man who operates the Minnesota Twins, looks over at first base where 37-year-old Harmon Killebrew is bouncing around like you'd never believe and it reminds him of a story which maybe you'd also never believe.

"When Harmon first came up and had been with us a little while, his manager told me he'd never make it," says the Twins' owner.

"I won't mention the manager's name because there isn't any point in it, but I told him 'you keep playing him until he proves he can't make it.'"

Now, 20 years and 546 home runs later, it can be safely said Harmon Killebrew has made it.

The manner in which he did provides part of the reason why baseball really still is the national pastime no matter what anybody says.

"I remember when he first started hitting all these home runs of his," says Griffith going back to the days the team was the Washington Senators, not the Minnesota Twins. "Everybody was talking about 'the new Babe Ruth,' he was getting all this publicity and they were hailing him as the All-American Boy. I called him in my office and said 'I hope all this doesn't go to your head and make you conceited. You'd be making a big mistake if you let that happen.'

"He said 'Mr. Griffith, you don't have to worry about me ever getting conceited.' He was absolutely right. He's the same fine person now as when he first came up to us, the only difference being he has matured and he has much more common sense.

"You don't run across many people like Harmon Killebrew. We get a letter that someone's dying, a kid's on his last legs or an old woman is going to a nursing home, and they'd like to see Harmon, he goes in a minute. We've had people in wheelchairs come out to the park in Minnesota and tell us they came just to see him.

Going out a hero

"He had that operation on his knee last July, and you know why he's trying so hard now? He's going to go out a hero, not a bum. I know that's the way he's thinking."

Calvin Griffith happens to be 100 per cent correct. Harmon Killebrew admits that.

"I don't want to go out on a sour note," he says.

Seldom does a clubowner speak about one of his ballplayers the way Calvin Griffith talks about Harmon Killebrew. Horace Stoneham talked that way about Willie Mays and Gussie Busch about Stan Musial.

"When he leaves," Griffith says about Killebrew, "I'll feel like an old man. I'll feel like I've had it. He's meant so much to this organization, to the entire Griffith family. He's helped us stay around. All we've got is baseball and he helped us make it in baseball."

Owners don't ordinarily talk that way.

But there is an unusual rapport between Griffith and Killebrew so that they can talk completely straight with each other whether they're talking salary or how much longer Killebrew can go.

"Harmon is just so honest that there never is any problem," says Griffith. "He came in and said to me 'the day I prove to myself I can't do it, I'm hanging 'em up.' I told him 'it's up to you. You're the boss.'"

Killebrew has undergone five different operations since first joining the club. The Twins have a situation whereby The Killer has to play, he can't be designated hitter because Tony Oliva has that job and no club can afford the luxury of carrying two such high-priced performers who wouldn't be able to at least cover some position in the field.

Harmon Killebrew isn't thinking at all in terms of being a designated hitter, he's thinking solely in terms of playing first base.

And you ought to see the way he's been playing it lately.

The way he's doing it reminds Calvin Griffith of a story you'd never believe.

ABA may offer Pondexters deal

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Long Beach State is worried about losing its super freshman, Clifton Pondexter, but not to another school.

Lute Olson, the 49ers' coach who isn't sure he'll be back next season, thinks the American Basketball Association may attempt to lure the Pondexter brothers —Clifton and Roscoe —away with big cash.

Long Beach was hit by an NCAA probation during the season and Roscoe may be ruled ineligible to play his senior season with the 49ers.

"The thing that concerns us most at this point," said Olson, "is the possibility of some kind of a package deal for the Pondexter brothers from the ABA.

"I would think from the ABA's standpoint it would be a pretty good move. From Clifton's standpoint, I think it would be a bad move."

Led by the burly 6-8, 230-pound freshman center from Fresno, Calif., Long Beach had its best record in history —24-2 —and won its fifth straight Pacific Coast Athletic Association title.

Because they're on NCC probation, though, the 49ers had to pack their bags at the end of the regular season.

Clifton, one of the nation's most sought after high school players a year ago, was named to UPI's all-Pacific Coast team.

Olson, who replaced Jerry Tarkanian at Long Beach this year, calls him "the best freshman in the country and you can't convince me otherwise."

"Clifton's given me no indication what he plans to do," said the 49ers' mentor. "He's a great player who is going to make it in the pros without any question.

"For him to consider transferring to another school would be jeoparidizing his career. The real question is whether the ABA will come up with some kind of deal. That's the biggest fear we have.

"Clifton has indicated whether Roscoe is back next year will not be a big factor in his decision."

Olson thinks his talented freshman will make more money in the long run if he stays at Long Beach.

"He needs, I feel, more time to develop from the standpoint of maturity," he remarked. "Mental maturity more so than physical."

Of his own future at a school that can go nowhere — athletically for at least two more years, Olson said:

"I haven't decided whether I'll be back next season. I'm going to spend some time deciding it."

The first Sunday 'night' racing card in California history begins at 6:30 p.m. with the eyes of many track managements carefully affixed to the results.

"We sincerely hope Sunday night racing will meet with the approval of our patrons," says S.C.R.A. General Manager Tom Baker. "With a 6:30 start, we should have our fans out of the plant no later than 10 p.m.

"There's no question that it is an experiment," Baker admits, "but I think our fans will accept it."

CALIENTE HOPE — You can't really blame the Caliente Future Book people for pulling for Prince Dantan to stage an upset in today's $145,000 Santa Anita Handicap at Santa Anita.

The Future Book, which began accepting wagers on the Big 'Cap early this year, didn't list Prince Dantan because the horse wasn't originally nominated for the race.

He was later supplemented by trainer Frank Martin for $5,000.

So, should the 'Prince win, Caliente would get a 'free ride.'

GAS KEY QUESTION — Joe O'Brien, harness racing's Hall-of-Fame driver who ranks among the top three of all-time in races and money won, says the current gasoline crisis may hamper his commuting schedule for the S.C.R.A. meeting at Los Alamitos.

"Right now, I'm planning to drive at Los Alamitos as much as I possibly can," says O'Brien, "but the gas problem has me somewhat baffled.

"Last year, I trained horses at my ranch (in Shafter near Bakersfield) in the morning, drove to Los Alamitos late in the afternoon and returned home after the races.

"Now, I'm not sure how I'll work it."

The Shafter-to-Los Alamitos and back to Shafter roundtrip was logged by O'Brien last year at 330 miles.

"I was even considering some sort of commuter air service between Bakersfield and Orange County, but on a regular basis the cost is prohibitive."

ANOTHER 'BUG' CHAMP — Is the nation's leading apprentice rider due to be unveiled this week at Santa Anita? Could be.

Octavio Aviles, who has registered an amazing 110 victories since reaching the victory circle for the first time last August 18 at Mexico City's Hipodromo, began his U.S. riding career this week at Santa Anita. At the Hipodromo, action is limited to three days a week.

Camilo Marin, one of the best-liked and craftiest agents in the business has just returned from Mexico with young Octavio, a well-educated, and hard-working 18-year-old whom Marin reports "has it all."

Aviles, whose father was a top rider in Mexico, can make 103 pounds and has impressed below-the-border horsemen with his riding talents. Paul Bouffier, breeder of the one-time California three-year-old flash Finalista and a respected horseman in Mexico alerted Marin to the newcomer.

"I really expected Octavio to be going great guns by the time Hollywood Park opens," Marin says hopefully. Camilo reports his new find has been galloping horses and he feels the shy, brown-eyed youngster has the right temperament to become a top rider. "He's finishing up a 10-day suspension. It's his fourth," says Marin, indicating Aviles is not to be intimidated on the race track.

Marin has been spending considerable time with owner Fred W. Hooper and since the Florida sportsman has signed pacts in the past with such latin stars as Pincay, Baeza, Velasquez and Tejada, it could be young Octavio might spend much of the year sporting the Hooper blue-red-and-white colors. Aviles will ride with the "bug" through August 28.

ANOTHER MILESTONE BID — Bill Shoemaker's quest for lifetime $100,000 win No. 100 continues on the frustrating side for the world's winningest journeyman.

He'll try for the 8th time to hit that magic plateau today in the Santa Anita Handicap with Linda's Chief.

Shoe missed a shot last Saturday in the $100,000 Santa Margarita when favored La Zanzara finished out-of-the-money and muffed another opportunity Monday in Florida when his Florida Derby mount, Pat McGroder, went unplaced.

Since winning his 99th hundred grander closing day last year at Hollypark in the Sunset Handicap aboard Cougar, Shoe has missed with Groshawk in the Del Mar Handicap, Cougar in the Marlboro Cup, Cougar again in the Woodward, Groshawk in the Oak Tree Invitational, Linda's Chief in the Strub and the aforementioned two attempts with La Zanzara and Pat McGroder.

For the record, however, Bill has tallied in 20 $100,000 races since 1968.

BOXCAR SPECIALS — More than a few Santa Anita racing fans did double-takes the past few weeks upon scanning the results from New York's Aqueduct Race Track.

Many horses that raced at Santa Anita and had trouble locating the winner's circle, had little difficulty once returning to the home front in New York.

Just a sample:

Frank Martin saddled such winners as Magic Story ($28.40), Pleasant Brook ($15), and Blue Spring ($6.00); Laz Barrerra sent out Royal Quester at $23.60 and River Fire $10.80; W. P. King scored with Special Legend ($38.20) and Bold Merit at $19.60, while other Santa Anita refugees to win included Anniversary Gift, Sacred Soul and Everton.

"He arrived in good condition but we'll probably wait until Hollywood Park to start him," Hogan reports. Shortly after his purchase for a reported $180,000, Baccalaurate raced to victory in the Canadian Turf Handicap for Hogan, the one-time "giveaway" king.

Brownell shoots for national crown

POMONA — While the United States Auto Club's championship cars will be racing at Ontario Motor Speedway today, Herbert Brownell will be down in Holtville shooting for a national championship in the Formula Vee class.

He's racing in the Southern Pacific Division of the Sports Car Club of American (SCCA), and looks to be the favorite to win the national title in his division.

Brownell, an insurance broker in Pomona, is presently holding the lead in the Southern Pacific Division after four national races and two points races this year.

Herb, who is the 28-year-old son of former Pomona mayor Richard Brownell, is teaming with Mario Panzarella this season, a team manager-driver combinations that looks tough to beat.

Brownell started racing sailboats at the age of 12, started following the sports cars when he was 15, and a short time later began racing motorcycles.

He started racing Formula Vee's at 22. And then through the years 1968 and '69, he won 10 of the 30 races he competed in. He was supporting himself (without a sponsor) for those two years, but still continued racing.

He made the logical progression from Formula Vee's to Formula Ford the following year, won the divisional championship, and placed sixth at the nationals.

But the following season he was still unable to find a sponsor and got out of racing cars and went back to motorcycles.

That's when Panzarella came on the scene.

While Herb was thinking his auto racing days had come to an end, Panzarella was looking for an experienced Formula Vee driver to pilot his newly-prepared car.

He chose Brownell.

So now the team is making it big on the SCCA circuit.

The interesting thing about Brownell's future is that he doesn't plan to into any kind of racing that tops the speeds of the Formula Vee.

"I haven't heard of a fatality in Formula Vee since its inception in the early 1960's," said the Pomona insurance broker. "The fastest these cars go is about 111 miles per hour. Anything else that goes faster is too fast for my blood."

Herb's thinking about the safety factors in high-speed racing, and about his family. A father of two children, he thinks racing at 200 miles per hour would be too hazardous.

With a successful year, Brownell and Panzarella hopefully will make the trip to Georgia in November to compete in the American Road Race of Champions at Road Atlanta.

The results of that race will determine the national championship. With any amount of luck, the champ will be the driver of the white No. 3 machine — Herb Brownell.

Claremont holds trip to Forum

CLAREMONT — The City of Claremont is sponsoring a bus trip to the Lakers basketball game against the New York Knicks at the Forum on March 17.

Cost of $8.25 will cover a ticket plus bus transportation.

Additional information is available from Ted Robinson at 624-4531, extension 271.

Thurmond out with injury

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Center Nate Thurmond, who reinjured his left arch in Thursday's 97-95 victory over Milwaukee, will probably miss the balance of the Golden State Warriors' current five-game road trip, the team announced Friday.

The 6-11-½ Thurmond originally injured the arch three weeks ago in a game against Atlanta.

Track boosters announce drive

POMONA — The Pomona High Boosters Club has scheduled a paper drive for March 16 and a white elephant sale for April 6, the club announced recently.

Persons interested in donating newspapers to the paper drive may drop them off at the high school or call Mr. or Mrs. Abernathy at 623-0085.

The white elephant sale is scheduled to be held at the Lincoln Avenue Reformed Church at the corner of Lincoln Avenue and Indian Hill Boulevard.

THE NORTON SIMON FOUNDATION and the Norton Simon Museum have decided to sell their collections of drawings and watercolors and concentrate on paintings and sculpture. Reason: works of the two institutions are regularly circulated to museums and universities, and the works on paper do not travel well. Up for auction this spring will be 20 works, including a self portrait by Cezanne, two Delacroix watercolors, Van Gogh's "Parc a Saint Remy" and Rembrandt's "Rest on the Flight to Egypt."

ORGANIST E. POWER BIGGS will present a recital at the First Congregational Church of Los Angeles at 8 p.m. Friday and next Sunday. Boston Ballet group to perform in area

RIVERSIDE — The Boston Ballet Chamber Company, touring wing of the Boston Ballet, will perform in the University Theater of UC Riverside at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The artists will spend Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in residency on campus participating in classes offered as part of UCR's program in dance.

The chamber company is composed of the lead dancers of the Boston Ballet, founded in 1963 by Virginia Williams, now the ballet's artistic director.

Miss Williams said that because American dancers can adapt to a variety of dance styles, "I have selected a repertoire that blends traditional and contemporary classical ballets."

Performed at UCR will be the "Baroque Concerto," based on the music of Gottfried Stolzel with choreography by Norman Walker. "The Dolly Suite," which is based on the music of Gabriel Faure, was choreographed on commission by John Taras.

The program concludes with "Speed Zone," danced to "Kammermusic No. 1" by Paul Hindemith. Choreography for "Speed Zone" is by Samuel Kurkjian, the company's choreographer-in-residence and ballet master.

Tickets for reserved seating at $5, $4 and $3 are available at the University Commons central ticket office. Students and senior citizens will be admitted at half price.

Wolf-Rottkay art displayed

SAN BERNARDINO — The work of W. R. Wolf-Rottkay, a young Los Angeles sculptor, is now on display in the Fine Arts Gallery at Cal State San Bernardino.

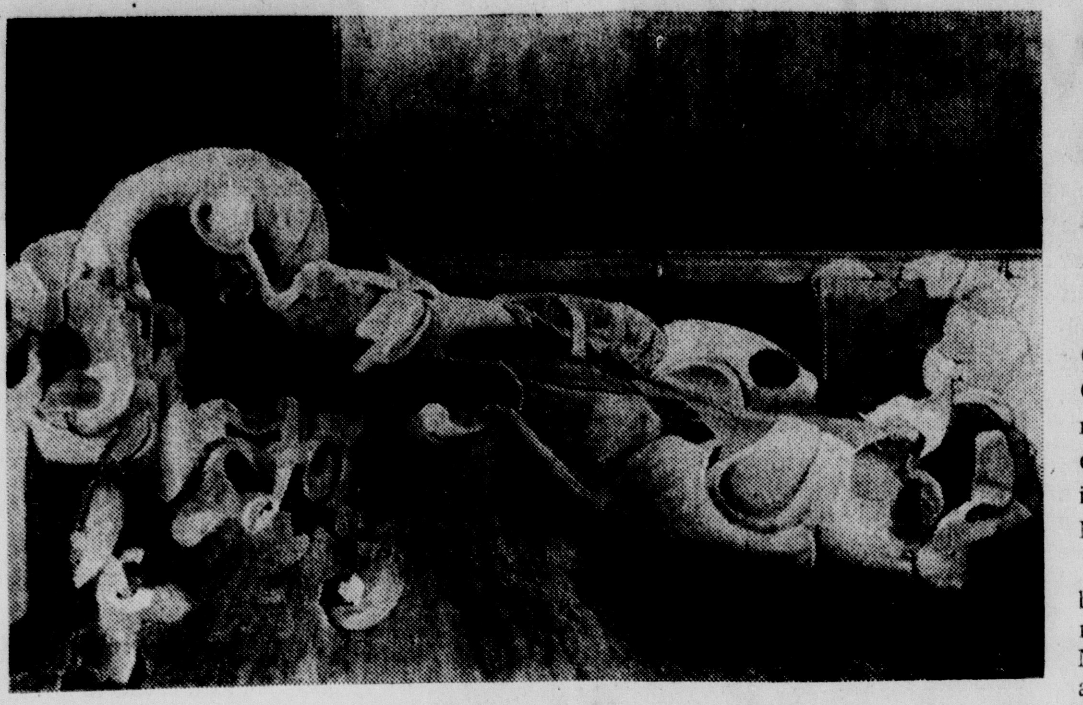
The German-born Wolf-Rottkay is considered by many to be one of the upcoming, important sculptors, said Don Woodford, art gallery director.

He's also showing at Los Angeles County Museum of Art, beginning Friday. One of his large pieces will be shown at the Spokane World's Fair.

The public is invited to view the show through March 23. Gallery hours are Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 3 p.m.; Wednesday and Thursday, 6:30 to 9 p.m.; Saturday, noon to 4 p.m.; and Sunday, 1 to 5 p.m.



LIBRARY EXHIBIT — "Grass to Grasshopper," an acrylic on canvas by Los Angeles artist Astrid Preston, is among a collection of her paintings now on exhibit at the Pomona Public Iibrary.

Ken Decker shows work Wednesday

ONTARIO — California artist Ken Decker will give a demonstration of watercolor paintings at the monthly meeting of the Associated Artist at the Ontario Public Library at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday. The public is invited.

Although Decker's works also include oils and drawings, he says he prefers the fluency and challenge of watercolors. After graduating from art school, he worked as a commercial artist for more than 15 years. Now he devotes his time to paintings, teaching art classes, lecturing, demonstrating and judging shows. His work hangs in private and public collections throughout the West.

Canadian Ballet Shrine attraction

LOS ANGELES — The National Ballet of Canada, with guest artist Rudolf Nureyev, will perform in Shrine Auditorium April 2-7.

The Los Angeles engagement, under the sponsorship of Variety Concerts, will open with "Les Sylphides", a pas de deux from "Flower Festival" and the premiere of "Don Juan." This program will be repeated on April 3.

"Giselle," a full-length production, is scheduled April 4 and the weekend will feature four performances of "Sleeping Beauty," April 6 and 7, matinees and evenings. Nureyev is scheduled to dance all performances except the Saturday natinee.

Mail orders are now being accepted by Variety Concerts, 427 W. Fifth St., Los Angeles 90013.

Condit art hanging at 1st Federal

POMONA — Watercolors by Claremont artist Philippa Condit are on exhibition this month in the Lobby Gallery of Pomona First Federal Savings & Loan Association, 399 N. Garey Ave.

Several Southern California beach scenes, a view of the road to Kanab, Utah, and a Mexican marketplace are among the artist's works on view.

Miss Condit is a former actress and teacher of dramatics and music. She was a reading and speech consultant in Garden City, Long Island, prior to her retirement. She is a graduate of Columbia University where she also received an M.A. degree.

Her paintings have been exhibited in Hawaii, Portugal and New York, as well as in the San Gabriel and Pomona valleys in one-man shows and juried shows, and have won many awards. She is a member of the Pomona Valley Art Association.

Children who don't speak learn

HONOLULU (UPI) — A little girl who spoke only in grunts a few months ago smiled prettily and said "juice."

A boy who once screamed for hours sat quietly and asked for "bread."

Weary parents beamed as their baffling children were finally learning to communicate, through cooking. The children are baffling because their primary symptom is inability or unwillingness to speak, with no diagnosed cause.

"Keiki House" is a colorful cottage filled with cheerful toys and playthings where children break out of their unexplained world of silence into speech.

Mrs. Lynne Alevy, director of the program at Kauikeolani Children's Hospital, explained that "there is no obvious reason why the child brought to Keiki House isn't talking."

Any physical problem the child may have isn't serious enough to preclude speech, Mrs. Alevy said, but for some reason, he doesn't talk. Her unusual program is designed to transform these youngsters from screaming, disobedient children to communicating and cooperative girls and boys.

"We don't know which came first," Mrs. Alevy said, "whether the baby was slow and the parents catered to it or whether the parents babied the infant too much and he was never encouraged to develop.

"The child becomes increasingly unmanageable, maneuvering his parents by crying and screaming, so that by the time he is referred to us the parents are beside themselves."

A youngster is usually referred to Keiki House by a pediatrician who can find no physical reason to justify the behavior. Mrs. Alevy said it is the unfortunate youngster whose parents keep denying the problem until the public schools detect it and label the youngster mentally retarded, emotionally disturbed, learning disabled or slow learning.

"Five per cent of the school age population has speech and language problems," Mrs. Alevy said, "but many of these can be eliminated if they're only spotted early enough."

Children attending Keiki House range from 18 months, when they should be saying some words, to five years old. Mrs. Alevy explained that the program is unusual because it concentrates on producing the desired behavior rather than dwelling on the emotional reasons for it.

It is not unusual for the youngster to spend his first three weeks crying and screaming, knocking things over with flailing arms and expecting the staff and volunteers to respond as his parents did. But Mrs. Alevy said eventually the child realizes that negative behavior is ignored and positive, constructive behavior, particularly speech, is rewarded with generous praise and attention.

The new child sees the others enjoying themselves while his crying is ignored. Once he has quieted down and is ready to join the group, emphasis is placed on sparking spontaneous speech.

Cooking has turned out to be an excellent way of getting the children to communicate. The delighted youngsters make frankfurters, juice, toast, Jello and other simple foods, using a small oven and child-sized refrigerator.

All the while the speech pathologist, social worker and student volunteers encourage them to speak by asking simple questions and praising responses.

"By having them cook, they develop a variety of skills," Mrs. Alevy said. "They learn concepts of wet and dry, hot, cold and done, soft and hard, not in a drill way but in a warm way."

The children are asked to say the word before they are given the treat. Each child has a turn at stirring juice and pronouncing "stir" and there's talk about numbers, minutes, hot, cold, done.

"Instilling confidence is the key," Mrs. Alevy said. "By learning to do things themselves, they develop a feeling of independence. They learn to share, speak and follow directions."

Arab diplomat optimistic on embargo end

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An official of the Arab League said Tuesday there is a better than even chance that the oil embargo will be lifted at a meeting of Arab oil ministers beginning in Libya Sunday.

Many Arab governments favor resumption of oil shipments to the United States and the probability of an end to the embargo is now "above 50 per cent," said Clovis Maksoud.

"I think we are closer to that position than we were before Dr. Henry Kissinger's latest visit," Maksoud told a news conference.

"Inasmuch as this is a collective Arab decision, it has to be collectively done, and there is an opportunity for such a collective decision at the oil minister's conference next week'' in Tripoli, Mksoud said.

Maksoud is a former editor of the Egyptian newspaper AnNahar, and a formerj ambassador of the Arab League. He is traveling the United States on a public relations tour that was ordered by the Arab conference in Algeria last November.

Civic pride grows in Brooklyn

BROOKLYN, N.Y. (UPI) — "I'm from Brooklyn—ya' know, Brooklyn, New York."

In Hollywood, they call it a pat line. A slight twist in inflection and up pop images of Canarsie and Flatbush, ill-tempered cabdrivers and a funny dialect that gave the nation its "dese" and "dem."

"Heah ya, heah ya, heah ya!" recited the court clerk recently at the opening of the Mitchell-Stans trial. "All poysons having business with the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, drawr near, give your attention, and ye shall be hoid."

No doubt where that clerk came from.

Brooklyn—a perennial patsy on the stand-up comic circuit, always good for a laugh, a hometown as belittling as Peoria or Hoboken. One just doesn't acknowledge his birthplace as Brooklyn.

Unabashed boosterism

Yet strange things are happening in New York City's most populous borough. In a time of rising sexual, ethnic and racial consciousness, Brooklyn's civic pride is growing. Unabashed boosterism, if you will.

"Welcome to Brooklyn—the fourth largest city in the nation," reads a sign on one of the borough's approachways. Brooklyn's 2.6 million population falls only behind that of the rest of New York, Chicago and Los Angeles.

It was in 1898 that the then city of Brooklyn was dissolved and attached to Manhattan to form with the other boroughs an entity known as "Greater New York." The consolidation was approved, after failing several times, in a referendum which many contend resulted from conniving by the foes of Manhattan's Tammany Hall. Some Brooklynites continue to demand a recount.

One of them is Louis Singer, operator of a newspaper distributorship who is a long-time Brooklyn resident and a history buff. Singer began conducting tours of "The Land of Brooks" some four years ago as a hobby. Today, the demand is such he averages nearly six tours a week and has bookings well into the fall.

Singer also conducts a newly created adult education course entitled "Brooklyn—Past and Present" at Brooklyn College.

Chauvinistic guide

"More and more Brooklynites are becoming interested in just what makes up this borough," he said. "They're learning that if you walk the streets with what I call a 'seeing eye', you find a fantastic amount of beauty."

—Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian Church "with its immense chapel aglow with 18 glorious Louis Tiffany windows."

—Park Slope "with its wealth of 19th Century townhouses and, of course, the Montauk Club, still looking as though Lillian Russell and Diamond Jim were about to walk in."

—Cobble Hill "where George Washington stood and watched as his brave Marylanders were killed as they held off General Cornwallis' troops."

—Crown Heights "where Norman farmhouses nestle next to Viennese palaces and Parisian chateaux."

—And Prospect Park South, "once a private enclave, still an unbelievable vision, with its Japanese house and antebellum Southern mansions."

"I don't see why so many people have to go off running to Europe," Singer said. "Say it's church tours you want, we have enough cathedral-like churches and synagogues here in Brooklyn to easily fill a tour day."

Singer, who believes he has accumulated as many "miscellaneous tidbits" about Brooklyn as anyone, maintains a continuing commentary as his tour buses make their way through what was once known as "the city of churches and homes."

Included are such assertions as that Brooklyn was the site of the first regular use of the steamboat (the Fulton Ferry), the nation's first formal birth control clinic (on Amboy Street), the first New World village founded by a woman (Lady Moody's Gravesend chartered in 1645) and the world's longest suspension bridge (the Verrazano).

But closest to Singer's heart (the living room of his cooperative apartment overlooks it) is Fort Greene Park and its Prison Ship Martyrs' Monument.

Heroes' shrine

In the park, white marble steps climb a steep hill to the top and what is described as "the tallest Doric column in the world." Atop the column burns an eternal flame.

Within the hill, accessible by a doorway cut into the stairs, is a large crypt divided into 13 parts, one for each colony. It contains the remains of some 12,000 Americans who perished on prison boats maintained by the British in a Brooklyn bay during the Revolutionary War.

"There are 12,000 heroic Americans buried there," Singer said. "It should be a national shrine."

With a past so deeply rooted in the development of this nation, how is it that Brooklyn acquired an image that invariably produces a smile?

Singer blames, in part, Manhattan-based sportswriters and sportscasters, during the old Brooklyn Dodgers days when the inhabitants of the no longer existing Ebbets Field were known as Dem Bums.

Comedians' contribution

Not helping much, he believes, were the dozens of Brooklyn-born comedians who worked their hometown into their routines, albeit intending to evoke laughter based on love.

James Hurley, director of the Long Island Historical Society (Brooklyn is on Long Island) agreed, adding that the foxhole humor of World War I as depicted in newspaper cartoons and, later, radio situation comedies, also contributed. In both, the so-called Brooklyn accent played a sometimes prominent role in the quest for laughter.

According to both men the Brooklyn accent such as it was, is largely disappearing these days. In fact, Hurley said, the historical society is concerned about the disappearance of Brooklynese and hopes to begin a project soon to record the voices of those who still speak it, so the dialect will be preserved for posterity.

Policeman teaches fourth R—respect

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Officer Alex Cerasoli is teaching the fourth R in Hartford public schools—respect.

Cerasoli, a traffic policeman for eight years, thought that a policeman ought to be making more friends in the community he serves.

And he found one place to make friends was in the schools.

"I used to ask kids what they thought a policeman's job was and I couldn't take their answers—'arrest people,' or 'jail people,' the 22-year veteran of the department said. "To many youngsters, policemen are not human. They are, as they say it, pigs."

Under a program he helped initiate in January, Cerasoli and two fellow officers, Hector Marrero and Carl Henderson, are working fulltime with school children to break down the barrier between cop and community. They are pounding their new beat in 34 public and parochial schools in the city.

Officer friendly

In the classroom, the men in blue become "Officer Friendly." They hope the children will come to know them as among their best friends.

While Cerasoli strives to cast the policeman in more human terms—his pupils range from kindergarten on up—he also reminds them of the more serious side of his job, enforcing the law.

And when he clamps a pair of handcuffs onto the wrists of a boy and a girl, he gets screams.

Cerasoli gets pin-drop silence when he calls headquarters with his walkie-talkie and the officer on the desk tells the children to keep an eye on traffic when crossing the street.

Guns aren't toys

Guns are part of a policeman's job and the officer has to live with their awesome power. But, he tells the children, they aren't toys as he flashes a slide of a gun on a screen.

"A gun can hurt or kill you or your loved ones. Don't toy with it," Cerasoli tells the class. "If you see one at home, don't touch it."

For their first classroom visits, the three Officers Friendly are just out to introduce themselves to the children.

"We want first of all to erase the stigma of a cop," Cerasoli said. "We ask them not to judge policemen harshly and that if they're arresting people, they're just doing their job."

The officers have scheduled two other visits to each class this year, and they will be talking about the children's own safety; how to cross the street, what to do when approached by a stranger, who to call in case someone gets hurt or killed.

Reaching parents

In between classes, Cerasoli managed to fulfill speaking engagements for civic and business groups and says they afford him a chance to reach parents.

"Parents have a lot to do with children's attitude toward policemen," he said. "If we can educate them, we would be more effective."

Cerasoli, a high school dropout, obtained his high school diploma at the age of 34. He attended New Haven College and took courses in child psychology at Manchester Community College.

He says it's too early to assess the result of the Officer Friendly program.

"These kids would be in college before we see any real improvement in police-community relationship," he said.

Cerasoli, however, says he hopes vandalism in school could be reduced as a result of the course.

"I think it's already a success. Children, when asked about a policeman's job, no longer just say 'arrest people.' They also say they help people," Cerasoli said.

Poll reveals more now watching TV

PRINCETON, N.J. (UPI) — Nearly half of participants in a recent Gallup poll, 46 per cent, said their favorite way of spending an evening was watching television. The figure was the same when Gallup posed the question in 1966, but there were differences in other activities listed as favorites.

Those who favored engaging in family activities at home has increased from 5 to 10 per cent since 1966, and going to the movies or theater rose in popularity from 5 to 9 per cent.

But the second most frequently listed pastime, at 14 per cent, was reading. Reading topped the list with 21 per cent in a similar Gallup poll in 1938, dropped to 10 per cent in 1960 and rose to 15 per cent in 1965.

Television was listed as the favorite activity by 28 per cent of those polled in 1960, rising to 46 per cent in 1966.

Dancing has dropped from 12 per cent in 1938 to 4 per cent at present.

MENC will present special awards to Yehudi Menuhin, George Bornoff and Vera Barstow. The orchestra of the string teachers association will present a concert featuring a new work by Grant Belarian.

The conference will also include sessions in classic guitar, a program by students of the Menuhin school, and a concert by the San Bernardino County Youth Orchestra, conducted by Fiske.

Overseas market:

Search out castle to spend retirement years

By DOROTHEA BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Your dream castle in Spain is just that —a dream, something for the wealthy jet setters, not a middle income American family.

Not necessarily so, according to Arthur D. Little, Inc., Cambridge, Mass.

"While wealthy Americans long have been buyers of vacation and retirement homes abroad, now their less affluent countrymen also are in the market," says Winslow Martin of the research firm.

"It's a combination of factors," he explains. "Jet travel, for one thing, has brought foreign real estate closer, made it more accessible. It also has made the cost of travel more attractive over the last decade.

"Another factor is the increased leisure time which Americans have today. A third thing is soaring real estate prices at popular U.S. resort areas, which only the wealthy can afford."

For this reason, Martin says, Americans with more modest incomes are looking abroad, buying villas, renovating castles, monasteries, churches, old farmhouses, lighthouses, and, particularly, buying condominiums.

Condominnium most popular

The fastest growing segment of the foreign vacation-retirement home market, a Little study found, is the condominium priced from $10,000 to $50,000. "The most popular developments are in Spain and Portugal," Martin said, "although Ireland, the Canary Islands, the Caribbean Islands and the northern coast of South America have their share of American buyers.

"In these locations," he said, "vacationers and retirees find an ideal climate and a living cost that is relatively low, of particular interest to those on pensions."

Most of the condominium developments are part of an "urbanization" or "international community," first conceived to attract middle income European families, Martin explained. These communities, largely self-sufficient with shops, restaurants and extensive recreational facilities, are being built by a number of developers who sell through local and foreign real estate agents.

Developers often rent and manage apartments for absentee owners through a director who lives on the premises. Often, Martin said, developers have two, three-or five-year contracts with airlines or other tour wholesalers who provide rented apartments as part of a package plan.

He stressed, however, "prospective buyers should be aware that the term 'guaranteed rental' may have considerable ambiguity in practice."

See property first

The Little study found promotion of these developments has become considerably more sophisticated than the initial efforts which generally were aimed at vacationers already on the scene. Several developers, Martin said, have established relationships with American and other foreign real estate firms who conduct extensive advertising campaigns.

Although it is possible to buy property sign unseen, it is unwise to do so. The buyer should beware in any real estate transaction, and particularly one where he may be unfamiliar with the area, the customs and where he may not plan to be on the scene himself all the time but have to rely on others.

Many developers and real estate agents offer all-expense tours for prospective buyers to inspect properties, these aimed at prospects in the middle income brackets. Martin said, "One firm estimates about 70 per cent of its clientele earns between $15,000 and $18,000 a year."

Borrow at Home

Until recently, Martin said, it was difficult for an American to get a mortgage for foreign property. Now many of the new condominium and villa developers do their own financing and, in some countries, qualifications have been eased for financing a conventional residence purchase.

"While mortgage terms vary from country to country," he explained, "most European mortgages are written for only 50 to 70 per cent of the selling price. Interest rates often are as high as 14 per cent, and terms only from three to 10 years."

It may, he said, be wise for Americans to finance their purchase with a personal loan from a bank at home, where terms and rates fay be more reasonable.

Martin said some countries encourage foreign investment in real estate. "Spain's tremendous popularity is partly attributable to its low property tax and uncomplicated legal arrangements. Under the present government, foreign property owners have the same rights as Spanish citizens.

"On the other hand, some countries actively discourage all foreign property buyers. France is known for its legal complexities and high transfer and property taxes that discourage less affluent buyers.

At La Linda homes:

Can apply rent toward down payment

FONTANA — Eight homes remain to be sold at the La Linda residential development here which offers a "rent free living" program.

Under the program, a potential buyer can move into a home on a rental basis then after six months the money paid in rent will be applied to satisfy the down payment requirements, said Richard Hall, builder.

"It's like being able to live in your home free for six months while you save money for the down payment," he explained.

The 14 homes in the entire project are located in an established neighborhood. Prices start at $24,500.

The purchase price includes central air conditioning, fireplaces, dishwashers, shag carpeting, fencing and landscaping.

Buyers have their choice of two, three or four bedroom homes. These have one or two bathrooms.

The La Linda sales office is located in a model home at 8712 Blanchard Ave. Eight homes are on Blanchard and six on Fairview Road.

Visitors may reach the site from the San Bernardino Freeway by going north on Sierra Avenue, east on Foothill Boulevard, north on Palmetto Avenue, west on Reed Street and north on Blanchard.

Refreshments will be served today from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Alan Shepard will retire

HOUSTON (UPI— — Space pioneer Alan B. Shepard plans to retire from the space agency and the Navy in June after 30 years in the armed forces. Shepard, the first American to fly in space, has been chief of the flight operations astronaut office since making the Apollo 14 flight.

He made America's first space journey on May 5, 1961.

Despite fuel shortage:

Programs to clean water still needed

SACRAMENTO — The current energy shortage shouldn't slow down California programs to clean up its water.

"The ensuing increase in energy use is relatively insignificant and does not justify the abandonment, deferment, curtailment or slowdown in present programs or adjustment of present policies," notes a report of an energy task force written for the State Water Resources Control Board.

Energy use for all purposes was reported as the equivalent of 1,850 gallons of fuel oil per year per person in California in 1971 by the Department of Interior

Increased energy usage due to higher levels of treatment will be equivalent to 1.5 gallons of fuel oil per person per year. The increase in energy needs will be spread over the next five years, said officials.

The report spells out specific impacts of the energy shortage on wastewater treatment. It recommends actions and policies to insure adequate fuel for wastewater treatment plant construction and operation and preventive measures to insure against failure of industrial waste-water control system.

"Our next step is to circulate the report for review and comment among the concerned agencies such as the Public Utilties Commission, local utilities and federal energy officials.

"They can help implement the recommendations and help refine the solutions," said W. Don Maughan, control board chairman.

The report detailed four main areas of concern where fuel shortages or curtailment of electrical service might handicap the water quality control efforts:

— Adequate supplies of fuel are needed for the construction equipment used to build sewage treatment plants required under state and federal clean water laws and regulations. These plants are funded by joint federal and state grants of 87½ per cent of eligible costs.

— Energy is needed for operation of existing and planned wastewater treatment plants. The report noted that larger plants can recover up to 70 per cent of energy needs by using the methane gas generated by the sludge removed from wastewater. Many plants in California are already equipped to do this.

— Industrial wastewater treatment facilities may be adversely affected by brownouts or rolling blackouts.

— Chlorine, used for disinfection, may continue to be in short supply. This chemical requires a relatively high use of elecctricity for production.

Specific actions to be discussed with appropriate agencies include:

— Priority be given for fuel allocation by state and federal fuel allocation agencies for equipment used at construction sites for new wastewater treatment plants.

— Exemption of sewage treatment plants from rolling brownouts and other mandatory curtailment of electric power by local utilities.

— A list of industrial wastewater treatment facilities that require uninterrupted service to be created and that steps be taken to assure such plants a continuation of service or adequate advance notice of energy curtailment. This would be done in cooperation with the Public Utilities Commission.

— New sewage treatment plants be placed in an equal high priority with existing sewage treatment plants for energy allocation by local utilities and fuel allocation officials.

— Encouragement of use of methane gas generated by sewage treatment processes to provide energy for operating treatment facilities. This will be done through the Clean Water Grant program, administered jointly by the federal Environmental Protection Agency and the State Board, which finances new sewage treatment plants.

Real estate firm turns on cameras for its customers

SAN DIMAS — When an associate at Canyon Realtors asks you to sit down in front of a television set, he's not going to show a re-run of "Gunsmoke."

He will show you a house listed for sale — inside and out.

Bill Kunkle, broker and owner of Canyon Realtors, 185 N. San Dimas Road, recently began using Video Homes Selectra TV to assist in home sales.

"This is the best thing that has happened to real estate since the 'for sale' signs," he noted.

Video Homes Slectra TV is a coast-to-coast network that uses modern technology to save time for its clients. The television systems are being used more by real estate offices as a time, energy and gasoline saving sales tool in presenting property to clients.

Listings are filmed from interesting angles both inside and outside the property Tapes may include a neighborhood "sweep" or a detached presentation of area schools, recreation facilities, libraries, cultural attractions, shopping centers, transportation facilities, and other local points of interest.

The filming apparatus is a completely portable, battery operated unit which can be carried and operated by one person. It consists of a hand-held video camera connected to a shoulder-carried video recorder.

Audio narratives may be recorded on site or added later.

Desired sounds such as a bubbling stream, or sound of birds are retained for special atmosphere.

The camera is virtually "foolproof" and not erratic as in home movies, said Kunkle.

The viewing system consists of a portable monitor television set which allows buyers to scan property within their price range in the comfort of an air-conditioned sales viewing room. With the aid of a special adaptor, tapes can be shown on the buyer's own television set in his living room.

The new video process also saves wear and tear on the seller, who ordinarily has to rush around cleaning house before a salesman drops over with a prospect.

With the Video Homes nationwide referral service, Canyon Realtors can arrange to show long-distance movers what their new community is like and provide a tour of homes that best suit their needs.

Tapes of area homes can also be sent to buyers in other parts of the nation.

"All these extra services are available to buyers and sellers without it costing them an extra cent," said Kunkle.

Demand is for existing homes

DETROIT — It may not show up in new-home activity for a few months, but the recent easing in the mortgage market is already bolstering the existing home market.

There's been a significant pickup in Los Angeles's "under $30,000" existing home market since Jan. 1.

The energy crisis is starting to rewrite the local sales and property value map.

And there's been a strong shift to FHA and VA financing in the existing-home market.

These are findings of the Advance Mortgage Corp.'s economic research bureau which surveyed existing home trends in major markets.

"The mood of the market is up even more than sales," said J. Christopher Avren, Los Angeles area manager.

"Listings are growing scarce in relation to demand," she noted. "The long gas lines are starting to have an effect on people's buying decisions.

"Within the past few weeks, existing-home sales have slowed in areas like Orange County, Simi Valley, Thousand Oaks and Santa Paula."

But home sales are good in close-in neighborhoods in Burbank, Glendale, Canoga Park and Woodland Hills.

"Homes in these areas have appreciated as much as $5,000 in the past half year," said Avren. "In the beach area, prices are increasing up to 15 per cent a year. And in East Los Angeles, homes under $25,000 are up 10 per cent over last year."

There is also a strong demand for condominium conversions in all these areas, he reported.

"In general, homes that are FHA-able have the strongest market. Our FHA and VA business has doubled in the past three months."

Homes in the higher price ranges are selling more slowly in nearly all locations, said Avren. In Beverly Hills and Hollywood, there is now an inventory of higher priced condominium conversions.

Nationally, every section of the country has reported a rebound in existing-home sales since the first of the year. It's paralleled a general increase in the availability of mortgage money and a decline in interest rates.

In the second half of 1973, under the influence of the credit crunch, the number of homes sold in the U.S. fell some 12 per cent from the year before, according to the National Association of Realtors index. It was the smallest number of homes sold since 1969. The national market was softest in September, when the credit crunch was first taking hold, and in December, posting 16 per cent declines in both months.

Price increases continued right through the depressed months and even accelerated slightly. The average U.S. increase in the second half was 9 per cent, compared to an average 8 per cent increase in the first half, according to the NAR index.

The nation's most expensive homes and the biggest price increase were in the Northeast, where the average home sold in December went for $34,350, up 18 per cent over a year ago.

The biggest home bargains were in the Midwest, where December existing home prices increased less than 5 per cent over the year before, and averaged only $24,750.

More than 65 per cent of Midwest existing homes still sold for less than $30,000 at the end of last year, compared with less than 40 per cent in the Northeast and a national average of 50 per cent. The over-$40,000 bracket made up only 15 per cent of Midwest sales but 35 per cent of the Northeast's and 28 per cent in the West and South. But the Northeast sold nearly twice as many four-bedroom homes and half as many two-bedroom homes as the Midwest, which helps account for a good part of the price difference.

He is also employed with the General Telphone Co. as a methods engineer at the firm's supply facility in south Pomona. He and his wife, Betty, have three children.

Builders seek laws to aid home loans

WASHINGTON — New legislation is needed to increase the lending powers of federal savings and loan associations as a means of checking housing declines.

J. S. Norman, vice president of the National Association of Home Builders, gave that message to Congress in warning that housing starts for 1974 could drop to a four year low of 1.6 million units.

"Viewing the current low level of housing starts, the high mortgage interest rate situations, and the general depressed condition of the housing industry, you can understand why our association views the present picure with such deep concern."

Norman testified at hearings on the proposed Consumer Home Mortgage Assistance Act being considered by the Housing Banking subcommittee.

He endorsed the measure's provisions, stating "it can have a real and immediate effect toward alleviating many of the problems facing housing."

Among other things, the legislation would recognize the increased cost of home buildings by raising the ceiling on savings and loan single family loans from $45,000 to $55,000.

It would also allow the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. to increase the maximum amount on conventional mortgages it may purchase and the loan-to-value ratio on the mortgages from 75 to 80 per cent.

In urging Congress to take prompt action on the proposed legislation, Norman also said Congress must act quickly on other pending mortgage credit legislation which would increase the insurance on savings and loan deposits to $50,000 from $20,000, and provide 100 per cent insurance for public fund deposits.

He also called for a liberalizing of the Federal Housing Administration's maximum mortgage and down payment requirements and the Federal National Mortgage Association's and Government National Mortgage Association's maximum loan limits, to help "all Americans, particularly those families of modest incomes to obtain decent housing either through home ownership or rental at prices they can afford."

Housing agreement:

Open access sought for minorities

CHICAGO — The National Association of Realtors is working with the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to establish an industry-wide affirmative marketing agreement to assure minorities of free and open access in housing.

Negotiations were announced by William D. North, general counsel for the association. "The development of a marketing agreement is a proper responsibility of HUD and can be beneficial to boards and Realtors in reducing their exposure to harrassing investigations and litigation," he said.

"Open housing is the law of the land, proclaimed by Congres in the Fair Housing Act of 1968 and the United States Supreme Court in Jones vs. Mayer. It is and should be the objective of the national association and every Realtor."

Until that objective is achieved and open housing is not merely policy but reality, the real estate industry and the activities of every Realtor and real estate broker will be under severe scrutiny and challenge, warned North.

"If we are to expect and demand that government conform its conduct to requirements of the law, so must every Realtor and every board of Realtors," he added. "Every board and every Realtor must be prepared to prove its compliance and to document such proof if necessary.

"This means that every Realtor and his salesmen must truly be racially neutral," he said.

North told Realtors that they must not restrict access to listing information to minority buyers; discriminate in the financial arrangements they offer; downgrade integrated schools and neighborhoods, or observe a double standard in the services they render to clients.

"Every Realtor," he said, "must constantly emphasize to all members of his organization and those associated with him the requirements of the civil rights laws; must assure that his advertising affords a representative and nondiscriminatory view of listing information, and must screen all prospects on the basis of a nondiscriminatory criterion."

North cautioned Realtors that "it is not enough to give lip service to the policy of fair and open housing." He cautioned Realtors they would be "well-advised" to minitor performance of sales personnel making sure their activities are not violations of the law.

"It is no answer and no defense that a violattion of the policy involved the conduct of an independent contractor salesman. The Realtors will be held responsible for such misconduct," North said. "This means that any salesman, no matter how productive, who steers or otherwise violates the law, is too expensive for any Realtors to have around."

HUD asked to head solar research

WASHINGTON — Two spokesmen for the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) have asked Congress to put a proposed research project for solar energy heating and cooling under the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) rather than under the National Aeronautics and Space Agency.

Lewis Cenker, president of the 75,000 member association, recently testified before Seante Aeronattical and Space Sciences Committee on a bill to establish a demonstration program on residential and commercial structures.

"HUD is the more logical agency to develop and coordinate such activities since it has the responsibility for carrying out the nation's housing programs and has the most expertise in the field of housing," said Cenker.

He was supported by Ralph J. Johnson, staff vice president and director of NAHB's research foundation.

Cenker also discussed the in-place cost of the solar units in houses. "A demonstration program which produces a housing unit with a solar heating and cooling capacity equivalent to that contained in a conventional unit but at a substantial cost increase must contain a sufficient marketability incentive for the purchase of that unit," he said.

"There is no assurance that the buyer, even with a government insurance mortgage, is going to be willing to pay the additional cost of the solar device, nor does it offer any assistance to a conventionally financed unit not covered by any government program.

"Thus is becomes obvious that the additional cost of the solar device (for prototype installations during the research period) must be underwritten by the federal government," said Cenker.

Regarding the research project's time table, Johnson said that four years for solar heating and six years for solar heating and cooling is a more reasonable schedule than the three and five years called for by the pending bill.

Edison Co. reports:

Power requirements met but at increased costs

ROSEMEAD — The Edison Co. expects to meet all its 1974 power requirements but the cost of fuel and purchased power will be more than double that of 1973.

In the past two years, Edison's electric rates have increased about 62 per cent.

This year's total fuel and purchased power bill is expected to soar to more than $750 million and account for nearly 50 cents of every customer revenue dollar.

This compares with $345 million, or about 32 cents, in 1973,' officials said. And the 1973 expenditure was 44 per cent more than in 1972.

Unless present inflationary trends and other costs beyond the control of utilities are stemmed, the decade of the 1970s will be marked by continuing increases in electric rates, they added.

Officials had forecast several months ago that rolling blackouts might be necessary later this year. The company now expects to meet all its power demands because of expanded fuel oil storage facilities, positive customer response to conversation of electricity and above-average rainfall in the Pacific Northwest.

''Some uncertainties are created, however, by the mandatory fuel oil allocation system established by the Federal Energy Office last January," said Jack Horton, chief executive officer. The Federal Energy Office determines the amount of oil that any utility may receive on a month-to-month basis.

"Edison's present suppy of oil is storage is believed to be sufficient to avoid near-term operating problems," he added.

As previously reported, Edison's recorded earnings for the year increased to $2.07 per share, regaining the level reached in 1970 and up 5.9 per cent from the $2.55 recorded in 1972.

Operating revenues last year totaled nearly $1.1 billion, up 16 per cent from the $931 million reported in 1972. Fuel cost adjustments and the effect of general rate increases contributed substantially to the higher revenues.

Net income for the year was $148 million, up 7.6 per cent over the previous year's figure of $137 million.

Total kilowatt hours transmitted for the first four weeks of 1974 were eight per cent below the same period last year.

"This would indicate preliminarily that conservation measures adopted by Edison customers are working effectively, although it must be recognized that changes in temperature and weather can distort comparisons between time periods," said Horton.

Check ownership in buying home

WASHINGTON — Consumers planning to buy subdivision homes should avoid developing a false sense of security regarding possible challenges to their ownership, advises the president of the American Land Title Association.

"Those shopping for subdivision residences too often sign a purchase contract with an apparent feeling that action already has been taken to protect their interests," said Robert C. Dawson of Richmond, Va.

"Frequently, this is not the case as recent examples in three states will illustrate."

In New Jersey, the owner of an adjacent tract filed a court claim against a number of homes in a subdivision. Through extensive research of public records going back to the early 1800's, a title company insuring several of the home owners was able to successfully defend against the challenge and spare the insured financial loss.

In Florida, a subdivision home buyer found himself being denied access to his property by the local community association—which claimed the subdivision plat and deed interpretations allowed this. The title company insuring the buyer retained an attorney, who was able to obtain a permanent court injunction that gave the insured access to his real estate.

And, in Michigan, the buyer of a subdivision lot had begun excavation for a basement when the local property owners association threatened court action to prevent construction.

It was alleged by the association that the buyer's lot had been dedicated as an athletic field on the subdivision plat. After an investigation proved the association claim to be correct, the title company insuring the buyer paid the insured the full amount of his owner's title insurance policy to cover the loss.

Buyer precautions are equally important whether acquiring a subdivision home, townhouse, condominium unit, or any other type of residence, according to Dawson, who is also president of Lawrence Title Insurance Corp. In each instance, the buyer has an investment to protect—and safeguarding usually is up to him.

An important initial precaution frequently overlooked by the buyer is having his real estate purchase contract reviewed by an attorney before signing, Dawson said. Failing to do so deprives the buyer of an opportunity to negotiate for contractural amendments in his favor.

Another safeguard suggested by Dawson is making sure the home buyer transaction is covered by owner's as well as lender's title insurance. In some locales, the ALTA president said, owner's title insurance is not likely to be obtained unless the buyer asks for it. Lender's title insurance protects only the mortgage lender—even where the real estate purchaser is required to pay for it. When acquired at the same time lender's title insurance is ordered, owner's coverage normally is available at a modest additional one-time charge.

Realty firm sends four to meeting

CLAREMONT — Four officials of the Wheeler-Steffen Realtors firm will attend the ninth annual convention of the Homes for Living Network March 20-24 in San Diego.

They are Roger Wheeler and Art Steffen, brokers, Jane Sliva, sales manager for the Claremont office, and Cal Reed, sales manager for the Upland office.

More than 1,200 Realtors from 50 states and Puerto Rico are expected to attend.

The network, with headquarters in St. Louis, Mo., is a national marketing network of over 900 cooperating Realtor offices providing services and programs to the home buying and selling public.

The more than 9,000 borkers and sales associates serving 6,000 communities accounted for more than $3 billion in residential sales last year.

Wheeler-Steffen Realtors is the exclusive member representative for the Pomona Valley.

The convention will feature sessions and workshops where major areas affecting real estate and the American public will be discussed. One session will concentrate on the energy crisis and how it has affected changes and trends in real estate in serving the relocation needs of families and businesses.

Kitchens sell homes for Lewis

LA VERNE — The adage that "most home sales are made in the kitchen" is found true in a survey of buyers at the recently opened Lewis Homes-La Verne development.

"We hardly had to ask buyers what particular feature most influenced the purchase,'' said Richard A. Lewis, president of Lewis Homes. "One can tell the kitchen is the big attraction from the way model home visitors are causing traffic jams in that part of the house."

Lewis reported nearly half of the 37 homes in the project have been sold. The houses are located on 6th Street between Aldon Avenue and Fulton Road.

"What we've done," he explained, "is to take two currently popular kitchen motifs—garden kitchen styling and the so-called country kitchen design—and combined them to create a spacious indoor-outdoor effect."

The three and four bedroom houses, are priced from $27,700 to $29,550. They feature wood burning fireplaces, cathedral ceilings and cultured marble bath counters.

CLAREMONT — Two guest speakers will present a program for the Apartment Association, Mt. Baldy Area, Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan Association building, Foothill and Indian Hill boulevards.

They are Bill Kessler, energy services supervisor for the Southern California Edison Co., in Covina, and Mrs. Betty Fletcher, home economist of the Southern California Gas Co. in Pomona.

Both will give energy saving tips and Mrs. Fletcher will also show slides.

Vic Tessler, association attorney, will conduct the regular "problem clinic." The public is invited.

Columbia gets tape memoirs of Khrushchev

NEW YORK (UPI) — Time Inc. has given tape recordings and a transcript of the oral memoirs of Nikita S. Khrushchev to the Columbia University's oral history collection, Time has announced.

The gift marked the first public disclosure by Time of the tapes' existence and their presence in the country.

About half of the 180 hours of recordings were the basis for four articles in Life magazine beginning November 27, 1970, and the book "Khrushchev Remembers," published by Little, Brown and Company in December, 1970, according to Time. The other half came into Time's possession after Khrushchev's death.

The contents of the newer materials will be included in a second book called "Khrushchev Remembers: The Last Testament," to be published soon by Little, Brown, a Time subsidiary.

In announcing the transfer, Hedley Donovan, editor-in-chief of Time, said, "We believe that the oral memoirs of Nikita Khrushchev will help historians and other concerned scholars to understand better the tumultuous and highly significant period in Russian history through which Mr. Khrushchev lived."

The materials will be made available to scholars and Soviet experts later in the year, a Columbia spokesman said.

ONCE UPON A TIME

High upon a hill there lived a princess. Every eve she would stroll the balcony by the luminous pool and heavenly garden. She would wait for her prince by the day, wandering through the 3 bedroom, 2 bath fortress. Dining alone in the formal dining room, and sitting by the hour as the flames danced endless in the magnificent brick fireplace in the family room. No servants were needed in the jet-age electric kitchen and fans were taboo with the central air conditioning. One day her prince did come, riding his horse into the 2-car garage with automatic door, and carried her away from her hilltop home. Now the castle stands alone, waiting for a happy family to enlighten the royal courtyard, tread upon the marble entry, and frolic merrily thru the halls. $75,000.

MASS CAMELLIAS

growing abundantly among rare foliage. The Japanese forture tree is amid the many unique plantings flourishing in the 3 backyards, separated by stone walls. Lighted garden emphasizing the ecological fish pond by the guest chamber with natural stone fireplace. Main home is Spanish style with raised deck leading to massive wooden door. Entry with special glass in arched window and tile floor, living room with fireplace and French doors leading to patio. Banquet dining room, shag carpeting thruout, remodeled kitchen, 4 spacious bedrooms, 1½ baths. Blending the old with the new makes this home an experience in modern living. Claremont.

DEAR POLLY — After washing my bedspread I always had difficulty ironing it on the ironing board. Now I put the clean, wrinkled spread on the bed and iron it right there. The sides that hang over are turned up on the top and ironed. —B.J.

DEAR POLLY — Our Bible class sews for the cancer society. One member prepares all the squares for sewing, so always brings her sharp scissors. She slips the rubber bulb from an old eye dropper over the end of her scissors as protection. — ANNA.

DEAR POLLY — I hung an expanding hat rack (10 knobs) high on the back shower wall for bathing suits and shower caps. It's now a handy catch-all for wet raincoats, washcloths, baby's bath toys (in a bucket) and shampoo brush. How did I ever get along without it? —FRAN

DEAR POLLY — Having sloping shoulders, I was plagued with falling shoulder straps for years. I now sew a narrow piece of elastic from one strap to the other about four inches up from where the straps are sewed to the slip. My one regret: I didn't discover this till I was 78! —OTELLA.

DEAR POLLY — My employer put a new rug down in the reception room the day after the floors were cleaned and waxed. It was very slippery. Not having rubber jar rings to sew on the back as I do at home, I sprinkled loose rubber bands all over the floor under the rug. This proved to be a good emergency aid. —FLORIEE.

DEAR POLLY — Teen-agers who like to have lots of posters on their walls will find that a staple gun is great for fastening them, as only slight marks are left on the wall. —MARCI.

DEAR POLLY — To get more wear and longer use from both top- and bottom-fitted sheets I alternate tops and bottoms. One week I make all beds with labels at the top and the next week all labels are at the bottom. My sheets last much longer. —DORIS

DEAR POLLY — It was very difficult to clean my white iron railing till I happened on a solution quite by accident. After a rain shower, before the railing dries, I wipe it with a soft, absorbent cloth. No detergent is needed. I attribute this to the softness of the water. —LOIS.

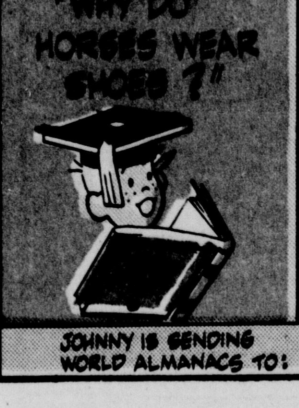
THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

[illegible] OF LOGAN, UT, ASKS: "WHY DO HORSES WEAR SHOES?"



A HORSE NEEDS SHOES EVEN THOUGH ITS HOOVES ARE THICK AND TOUGH. A HORSE'S SHOE IS A SPECIAL KIND OF METAL PLATE THAT FITS AROUND THE EDGES OF EACH HOOF. THE IRON SHOES PROTECT THE FEET OF HORSES THAT WORK OR RUN ON ROCKY ROADS OR HARD RACETRACKS. THEY KEEP THE HOOVES FROM SPLITTING AND HELP GIVE THE HORSE BETTER FOOTING. NAILS HOLD EACH HORSESHOE IN PLACE, BUT SINCE THE NAILS GO ONLY INTO THE THICK HOOF THIS DOESN'T HURT THE HORSE AT ALL.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR TRISH VAN DEVERE,
starring in "The Day of the Dolphin"

You and your husband, George C. Scott, are both actors. Do you have any theories about what makes for powerful acting?—J. L., Dubuque, Iowa

● Let me tell you a story about Sophie the dachshund, who got so excited about the fish in our living room aquarium that everyone in the room had to stop and watch her. And all she was doing was looking at fish! There was so much electric energy in her concentration that all the dynamics in the room came down to Sophie, on a stool, staring at the fish. I think George believes completely in the energy of concentration—or, as Sir Laurence Olivier told him, "We know it's all in the eyes, don't we, George?" My own favorite actor is Edward G. Robinson. Just look at his eyes. He never made a mistake.

FOR SEN. HAROLD HUGHES (D–Iowa)

I understand you've decided to retire from the U.S. Senate to become a lay preacher and follow God's calling. Where will you get your income?—A. S. Kravitz, Brooklyn, N.Y.

● I will be financially supported by the Fellowship Foundation of Washington. I do not know now where my work will take me. At the end of my term, I will take some time to think and pray and wait on the Lord for guidance.

FOR MIKE CONNORS of "Mannix"

Why did you change your name when you became an actor? —L. G., Rifle, Colo.

● My name was Krekor Ohanian (that's Armenian). People were forever asking me, "What's that you said?" and "How do you spell that?" I didn't mind it until I became an actor. I had an agent who advised me to change my name on the grounds that a guy whose name was so hard to pronounce would have a tough time becoming a star. I think it was logical advice.

FOR CELESTE HOLM, actress

How do you feel about nudity in films?—F. A. Langdon, Fishkill, N.Y.

● I'm reminded of what a great French actor once told me. "Nakedness," he said, "is what theater is all about. Every good actor stands naked before the audience. But to communicate your nakedness by actually taking off your clothes —that's too much of a costume!"

FOR FLORENCE HENDERSON

I read that you are the mother of four children, yet you look so young! How do you manage?—B. O. C., Yuma, Ariz.

● Actually I think I look younger now than I did when I was young. That's probably because I was brought up in a serious Catholic family, and at 17 I was very serious-minded. I had a lot of adjustments to make. I had to learn who I was. I don't have fewer worries or responsibilities now—but I do like myself better, and I'm interested in everything.

FOR KEN CURTIS, Festus on "Gunsmoke"

● Yes, I have a background so close to my role on "Gunsmoke" that some people think I've made it up. I was born in Lamar, Colo., near the Kansas border and Dodge City. My father was a homesteader and sheriff at Las Animas, Colo. We lived in the jail. My mother cooked for the prisoners and I helped out as the jail keeper.

FOR LARRY LITTLE of the Miami Dolphins

Who is the toughest lineman you ever played against?—Richard Dickerman, Mankato, Minn.

● That's hard to say. But Joe Greene of Pittsburgh is certainly one of the toughest.

FOR ROB REINER of "All in the Family"

Do you think that Mike of "All in the Family" is basically right in his political views?—Chuck Goff, Caldwell, Idaho

● Mike has a lot to learn. His knowledge seems restricted to what he learns in college. Many of his ideas are valid, yet many are just as narrow-minded as his conservative father-in-law's. Beyond that, anything I said about his being right or wrong would be unfair to the character.

FOR LIBERACE

Are your hands insured, and if so, for how much?—Gary Cunningham, Jr., Kokomo, Ind.

● I'm often asked this question. The truth is, my whole body is insured. I think it would be foolish to have just my hands insured. Some entertainers have had various parts of their bodies insured and have gotten some good publicity from it. Personally, I don't see what good willing hands would be to a body that was too weak to sit at the piano.

FOR HOWARD COSELL

How did you begin sportscasting? And what is the most thrilling event you've covered?—H.D. Harris, Dickson, Tenn.

● I started broadcasting five-minute weekend radio shows back in 1956, while I was still a practicing attorney in New York City. Probably the most thrilling event I've been associated with was the second Floyd Patterson-Ingemar Johannsson heavyweight-championship fight at New York's Polo Grounds on June 20, 1960. Patterson, by scoring the most compelling knockout I have ever seen, became the first man in history ever to regain the heavyweight title.

America in the "Age of Shortages":

A Britisher Explains Why We're Still Better Off than Europe

Woodcut for Family Weekly by Barbara Bascove

By Geoffrey Bocca,
British Observer of the American Scene

> "Self-criticism in the U.S. has reached such a pitch that it is perhaps timely for a European visitor to remind Americans that for everyday comfort and convenience in living, America is still the only country that has found the secret."

I was walking along the Avenue Foch in Paris with a French friend recently when he put his hand on my arm and indicated some glass domes, like giant space helmets in the street. "Look," he said proudly, "pay telephones!" I had, of course, seen pay telephones before, but my emotion was as great as his, not because of the avant-garde design, but because they were there at all.

The French are just beginning to get around to what they call "taxiphones," and there are still only a handful scattered around the city.

Even today, the general method of making a telephone call in Paris is to go into a bar, chat about the weather with the suspicious lady at the cash register, buy a token (at excessive price) and then locate the telephone, which is usually in a broom closet or the toilet. The Italian and Spanish systems are worse, and in London I make a mental note as to where pay telephones can be found; otherwise one can search indefinitely. For some reason, the telephone box brings out the worst in the normally tidy and law-abiding British, and they use it for newspaper disposal, vandalism and worse. A familiar sight in London, wherever there happens to be a row of boxes, is that of a furious and frustrated citizen going into and out of one box after the other, seeking one that (a) works and (b) is not reeking of some foul odor.

Self-criticism in the U.S. has reached such a pitch that it is perhaps timely for a European visitor to remind Americans that for everyday comfort and convenience in living, America is still the only country that has found the secret. No European who has ever lived in the United States ever passes a single day without missing some aspect or other of American life.

One might think it difficult, for example, to fall in love with an ordinary brown paper bag, but if one has lived for a long time in Europe, it is—very easy. The brown paper bag—like the telephone that works or the garage attendant who checks one's tires (at least he used to; and I presume, after the present gasoline crisis, he will again)—is what makes people sigh with relief when they return to the United States from a sojourn in Europe.

In the U.S., the brown paper shopping bag is still an essential part of service in all shops. Not in Europe. It never has been. A sight familiar to all specialists in American behaviorism, but to no one else, occurs whenever an American housewife in Britain comes face to face with the girl at the cash desk of a supermarket.

Each waits for the other to make the first move. The salesgirl waits for the housewife to put her purchases in her shopping basket or whatever receptacle she has brought along for the purpose. The American housewife, who has not brought along anything at all, waits for the girl to take a brown paper bag from under the counter and pack the purchases for her. Snag; there is no brown paper bag, and, furthermore, if it was suggested to the salesgirl that she pack the customer's purchases, she would go on strike.

The stalemate is eventually broken, usually by the girl, who says vaguely, "Want a bag, or something?" The American, taken aback at such a question, can only nod. The girl looks around, scratching her head, eventually finds a couple of thin bags suitable only for holding jelly beans, and which promptly rip on the cutting edge of a tea bag, and the housewife staggers away, dropping things as she goes.

That is not the end of the story. As everyone knows, in America these bags are not discarded. They are folded, kept, and serve admirably for garbage disposal. Europeans, having no such bags, dump their garbage directly into the trash cans (which the English call "dustbins" and the French poubelles, after a certain Monsieur Poubelle who invented the trash can and has a street named after him in Paris). The European housewife, periodically scouring away the malodorous agglutinations from inside her trash can, is a phenomenon that scarcely exists in the U.S.

Nowhere in Europe is there a satisfactory equivalent of the drugstore lunch counter, where one can sit, have a quick cup of coffee and a doughnut, and go. The coffee served in the bars in France and Italy is not the same thing at all, nor is the atmosphere. And as for coffee in England, forget it. English coffee is often as good as American coffee, and the brands are usually the same, but the British have never established a behavior pattern in drinking coffee in public, and the cafés that serve coffee are usually too squalid in American eyes to make the pause worthwhile. It is better to wait until one gets home.

Americans who complain about their repairmen do not know their luck. Of course they charge the world, but they come when summoned, do the job, and go. In England there is a well-known vaudeville song about the plumber who came to call. He did the plumbing but blew the fuses, so the electrician came to call. The electrician mended the wires, but tripped over the TV set, so the TV man came to call. And so on, and so on.

But even this fantasy is better than the reality is. An American living in London finally cornered his local plumber in a pub. The plumber had been promising to repair the leaking toilet cistern for weeks. The American bought a couple of beers, and the plumber, taking out his appointments diary, said, "You are getting close, guvnor. You are now 26th on my list." In the meantime the toilet continued to leak.

France is even worse. In the village in the south of France where I live, most of the inhabitants are either electricians, plumbers, masons, gardeners, house painters and the like. But a repair job may take six months to get done. The reason is that most of them work on jobs for neighboring factories and have little interest in the local housewife or householder. Being neighbors, however, they are also friends. Being friends, they always say politely, "Demain" ("Tomorrow"). But demain never comes. My longest wait—for the plumber—lasted two years.

Americans may not believe this, but parking a car is generally easier in the big American cities than it is in London, Paris or Rome, and parking restrictions are usually more logical. In East Berlin, Germanic thoroughness has reached a ludicrous level. There, as in most Communist cities, traffic is infinitely lighter than in the West, and cars are far fewer. But the conscientious German authorities have placed "No Parking" signs everywhere, in anticipation of the day—sometime in the distant, golden future—when they may expect to have a parking problem. Wishful thinking could scarcely go further in the wrong direction.

One can continue indefinitely. Admittedly one can also continue indefinitely in the opposite direction. As one lurches in the rusty cattle boxes that New York City calls its subway, one pines for the scarlet-and-cream glories of the London Underground or the silent Paris Metro trains hissing along on rubber tires. Watching American cops swagger about, chewing gum – with their guns, billies and handcuffs swinging from their belts – makes one miss London and its straight-backed, unarmed bobbies, or Paris and its elegant flics with their capes.

The American virtues carry their own backlash. The ease and comforts of American living, for example, have produced the uniquely American phenomenon of the "fat boy." The "fat boy," guzzling ice cream, popcorn and chocolate bars, is such a familiar sight that he has passed into American literature and the movies, unnoticed by Americans in the street. To European visitors, he is a tourist sight in himself. One can travel the length and breadth of Europe without seeing a "fat boy." And for "fat boy," read equally "fat girl."

But that is beside the point. Americans are spared many of the frustrations of everyday life, but because they have enjoyed these amenities all their lives, they do not know what they are. Those who have never traveled to Europe will probably be happy to believe me. Americans who have traveled, no matter how much they loved the great European capitals, will be obliged to agree. They say, "We like Europe in spite of the discomforts." Which is a different subject altogether.

Wear this Zolatron Simulated Diamond Ring 30 Days Free Without Risk

SPECIAL OFFER

to the readers of this magazine

FULL ONE CARAT SIMULATED DIAMOND
SET IN A GENUINE TIFFANY SILVER RING

10.

LIMIT: only one ring per reader at this price.

ZOLATRON LIFETIME WARRANTY

ZOLATRON is guaranteed for life against all defects. If found faulty during buyer's lifetime, it will be replaced or purchase price refunded. Lifetime Warranty is in addition to 30 Day Money Back Guarantee.

Zolatron must convince everybody that it's a genuine diamond...or you pay nothing!

The 30 Day Free Trial Certificate shown below gives you the right to wear and enjoy — this ZOLATRON simulated diamond ring for an entire month—without risk

You are invited to wear it and judge for yourself

Wear it! Prove it yourself — in the privacy of your own home. Marvel at the pure, dazzling color and fiery sparkle! Show it to your best friends. Watch their eyes pop out with excitement! After all they have no way to suspect it isn't the genuine article — a natural diamond worth a little fortune.

ZOLATRON is completely different from those phony looking paste or plastic stones glued into cheap costume jewelry. It's distinctly different and you can prove it yourself. The tough, grueling test that follows will convince you: (A) Drop this dense, man-made stone into a cup of acetone nail polish remover. See for yourself how it comes out undamaged! (B) Count each facet. It has a total of 58 genuine facets — the same number found in a natural diamond! (C) Observe how brightly a ZOLATRON shimmers even in moonlight! (D) Examine it carefully under a high-powered, illuminated magnifier. You won't find a single speck, crack or bubble.

Yes! We dare you to compare its fiery sparkle with costly diamonds! Not even one diamond out of a hundred extracted from the fabulous Kimberly Mines can beat it for color, clarity or flawless perfection. That's why even an expert might confuse it for a regular Kimberly diamond.

Get yours for less than 1% the value of a costly diamond!

Believe it or not — now you can get a ONE CARAT ZOLATRON — set in a fabulous Lady's Solitaire Ring for only $10. This is a LIMITED OFFER subject to the terms and conditions printed below. The average retail price for a one carat diamond gem is $1250.00 or more. Yet the resemblance between a diamond and a ZOLATRON is so striking that only an expert can really tell them apart!

Don't let the low price confuse you!

Just because ZOLATRON costs only $10, please don't confuse it for a cheap, dull fake. This man-made stone is not another plastic or paste jewel. ZOLATRON is one of the world's most dazzling and convincing simulations. Produced by Master Craftsmen, then mounted by hand into a genuine, Sterling Silver Ring. When you see it, you'll agree — it's truly an impressive ring of rare beauty and elegance! And each ring is made to give you a lifetime of wear and enjoyment. Of course, ZOLATRON is different from natural diamonds, but the most pleasant difference of all is that you can own a ZOLATRON for only $10—not $1250.00.

Even Millionaires Wear Simulated Diamonds

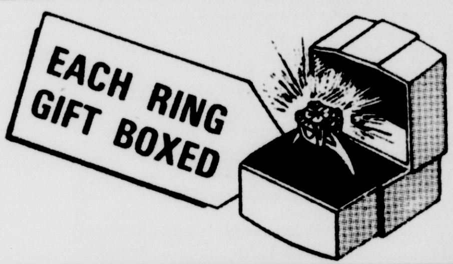
Countless thousands of wealthy persons wear simulated diamonds but they keep the secret to themselves. Those "genuine" diamonds your friends are wearing may not be so genuine after all! ZOLATRONS are so unbelievably real looking that they may even fool certain experts at times! That's why so many rich persons, movie and TV actors and actresses, wear simulations. They impress their friends and fans — while avoiding the risk of burglary or loss. Of course, wealthy people do own natural diamonds. But they often lock them up in a bank safety box!

IMPORTANT: FOLLOW THESE SPECIAL TERMS AND CONDITIONS

(1) LIMIT — only 1 ring per reader at this low price. (2) Orders accepted for USA and Canada only. (3) Sold only by mail — none thru stores. (4) Guaranteed for life. Refund or replacement if ever defective. (5) No COD's or phone orders. (6) NOTICE: this is a strictly LIMITED OFFER. Orders received after stocks are sold out will be returned to senders promptly.

The Gift of a Lifetime for Someone Special!

ZOLATRONS last a lifetime and so do precious diamonds. ZOLATRONS make thrilling, exciting gifts for special occasions: an anniversary . . . an engagement . . . or just a delightful surprise for that someone special! She'll never know this ZOLATRON isn't a genuine diamond — unless you tell her! Best of all, this Gift of Happiness costs only $10, while supplies are available. By choosing a ZOLATRON ring you save plenty for a down payment on a car, or even stocks or real estate. So many smart people have switched to simulated diamonds! Now you too can switch at very small cost! You take no risk at all. Our 2 guarantees give you full protection. Please read full details below on how you can obtain this amazing ring for only $10.



30 DAY FREE EXAMINATION AND MONEY BACK GUARANTEE

Wear and enjoy ZOLATRON Simulated Diamond Ring without risk or obligation — for a full month. Test and compare it. Show to best friends. If anyone can detect it from a genuine diamond, simply return and get your money back — INSTANTLY!

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

Quiz: Why Some Say "Ouch" and Others Don't

True or False: How much a pain actually hurts is apt to depend on whether you're rich or poor. (See number 2)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. How much pain you can take is likely to depend on your personality type.

2. How much a pain actually hurts is apt to depend on whether you're rich or poor.

3. Pain that is "imagined," or that has no physical cause, can be discomforting, but doesn't hurt nearly as much as real physical pain.

4. Many people have a need to feel pain.

5. A large percentage of aches and pains disappear when a person's mood changes.

6. A person's ability to tolerate pain is related to his capacity to think and reason.

ANSWERS

1. True. In studies at Columbia University, students' tolerance to pain was compared with personality tests. It was found that those who had a low pain tolerance differed markedly in personality from those who were more able to take aches and pains in their stride. Those more tolerant of pain were inclined to lead lives characterized by exciting pursuits, to seek activities that gave promise of thrills, fun or stimulating action. On the other hand, those who scored low on the scale of pain tolerance "generally tended to avoid high-stimulus situations and to seek out low ones."

2. True—as evidenced by the findings of a psychological study which showed that "persons from upper socioeconomic levels manifested significantly less sensitivity to pain than persons of similar ages from lower income levels." It's pointed out that: Adult sensitivity to pain-producing stimuli is influenced by childhood experience. Presumably the less-advantaged child is subject to appreciably more trauma than the more protected child.

3. False. As one leading authority on the dynamics of pain points out: "The supposed differentiations between real and 'psychological' pain are invalid. All pain is real." In other words, a person whose medical examination shows him to be perfectly healthy may be actually suffering as much pain as if he were a candidate for the emergency ward. To illustrate the principle another way: A doorbell makes the same sound whether it's activated by a short circuit or by having someone push it.

4. True. These are the chronic complainers, and their pain may be with or without some physical cause. Says Dr. J. Blair Pace of the University of California at Irvine: "Headache, backache, neck and shoulder pain may be a socially acceptable defense against situations in the patient's life that are far more impossible to bear than the pain."

5. True. One investigation, for example, cites research showing that "approximately 35 percent of more than 1,000 patients in 15 studies reported marked relief from pathological pain after receiving a placebo [a pill without medicine in it]." Conversely, it has been found that concern over the well-being of any part of the body tends to make any pain hurt much worse, and may even produce extreme discomfort in an area that did not hurt before.

6. True—according to the findings of a team of investigators who divided subjects into two groups, based on their ability to tolerate pain. All were then given a standard intelligence test. The group that was the most tolerant of pain made significantly higher scores. fw

CELERY: IT ALWAYS COMES THROUGH IN THE CRUNCH!

Celery, the fresh, crisp green vegetable we take for granted in our markets year-round, has an interesting background. Back in the old days, no one ever ate it for fun—only as a medicine. Its taste was too bitter. Then, early in the 17th century, some unknown gardener in Italy or southern France transplanted some wild celery to a choice garden spot where the soil was deep, rich and moist. To his amazement, the ribs and leaves from these plants had a much more pleasing taste.

Today, of course, celery is flavorful, crisp and green year-round.

The largest celery-producing area is in central Florida, part of the half-million acres of farmland reclaimed from the Everglades. There, the rich, black soil is abundant and holds the moisture celery needs to grow crisp and sweet. But even here, celery is a slow, tricky grower, requiring 125 days from seed to harvest.

There is still a certain amount of confusion in some cookbooks, which call for "stalks" of celery when they mean "ribs." A "stalk," or "bunch," is the whole plant. The "rib" is only part of the stalk.

The weight watcher can eat celery freely, since a whole cup of diced celery has a mere 18 calories. Celery's at its market peak now through May.

SLOPPY HANS SANDWICHES

In saucepan combine ½ lb. cubed pasteurized process cheese spread, 2 tablespoons milk, 2 cups finely chopped bologna, 1 tablespoon instant minced onion or freeze-dried chives and 1 teaspoon prepared mustard. Split 4-6 hamburger buns and toast lightly under broiler. Watch closely so they don't over-brown! Spoon sauce over bottom halves of buns; replace tops. Serve with a crisp salad and glasses of cold milk or iced tea. Makes 4-6 servings

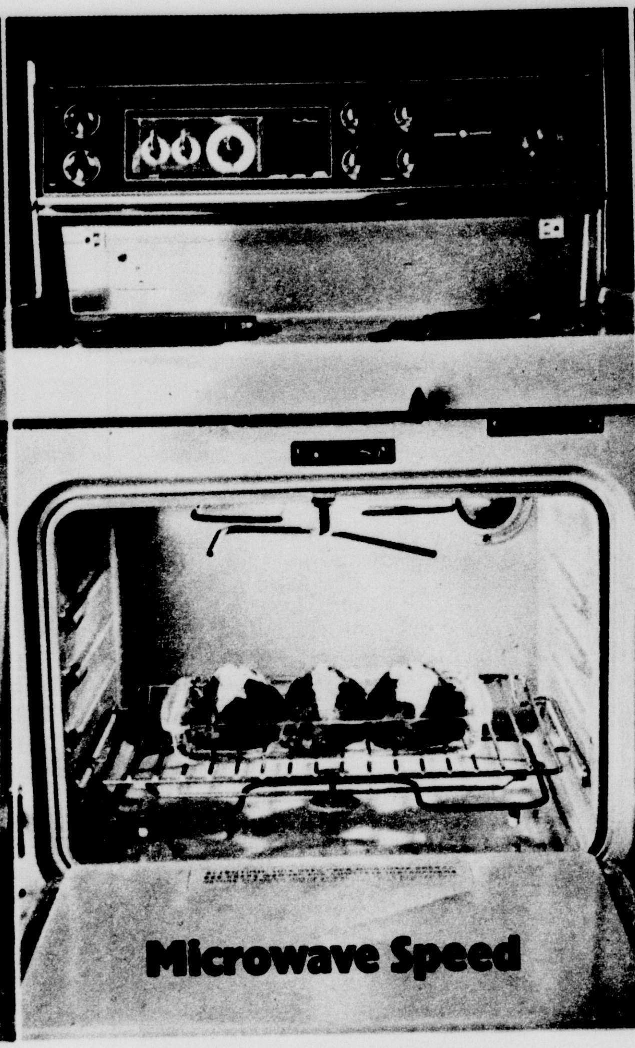
The Superstove™ Range from GE with the oven that cooks three ways.

$599.95*

Conventional Heat



Both ways at once
For conventional browning and microwave speed.

General Electric presents the 30″ Superstove™ Range with the Versatronic® Oven System, the only system that cooks three ways in the same oven.

It's a microwave oven. So you can thaw frozen foods in minutes and speed-cook up to 4 times faster than you're used to. For instance, 3 baked potatoes in only 15 minutes.

Or it's a microwave oven and a conventional oven both at once. So you can speed-cook and brown at the same time. A 10 lb. turkey, frozen solid, will be roasted and browned in about an hour and a half. Or a frozen apple pie in 17 to 19 minutes.

It's an oven that does so many fabulous things, you'll want to use it more than you've ever used an oven before. For things like warming gravy right in the gravy boat. (The gravy gets hot, the gravy boat doesn't.)

And because it's a P-7® self-cleaning oven, it cleans itself.

Yet all this cooking splendor isn't all that expensive. With the Versatronic Oven System, you get both microwave cooking and conventional cooking plus self-cleaning for $599.95.*

And you get something else only General Electric offers: Customer Care . . . Service Everywhere.℠ This is our pledge: that wherever you are or go in the U.S.A., you'll find a qualified GE serviceman nearby. Should you ever need him.

The Superstove Range . . . another reason why General Electric is America's #1 major appliance value.

Many have heard of it. Some have eaten it. Few have prepared it. But Chicken Cordon Bleu is a gourmet favorite that is delicious and relatively easy to make.

A "Show-Off" Dish—Chicken Cordon Bleu

CHICKEN CORDON BLEU

4 (2 lbs.) whole chicken breasts, boned
½ cup (¼ lb.) finely chopped cooked ham
1½ cups (¼ lb.) grated Gruyère or Swiss cheese
1 small clove garlic, minced
Few twists freshly ground black pepper
¼ cup plus 2 tablespoons dry white wine or sherry
¼ teaspoon thyme leaves
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup unsifted all-purpose flour
3 eggs
¼ cup plus 1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1½ cups fine dry bread crumbs
6 tablespoons butter or margarine
Parsley or watercress
Chicken-Wine Sauce (recipe below)

1. Cut whole chicken breasts in half. In small bowl combine ham, Gruyère, garlic, a few twists freshly ground pepper, 2 tablespoons wine, thyme and ½ teaspoon salt.

2. Use this ham-cheese mixture to stuff each breast in the pocket made by boning. Refrigerate covered for at least 30 minutes.

3. On sheet of waxed paper, combine flour, remaining salt and a few twists freshly ground black pepper.

4. Beat eggs with 1 tablespoon vegetable oil.

5. Coat each chicken breast in flour mixture, dip in egg mixture, then in bread crumbs, coating well.

6. In large skillet heat butter and ¼ cup vegetable oil until butter foams. Brown chicken breasts slowly on each side. Turn heat down to low and continue cooking uncovered about 20-25 minutes longer, until cooked through.

7. Or if you wish, brown in skillet as in Step 6, but finish cooking uncovered in preheated 375°F. oven for 20 minutes.

8. Add ¼ cup white wine to skillet. Bring to boiling, stirring to loosen all brown particles in pan (deglaze). Continue boiling till liquid is reduced by half. Pour over chicken breasts. Garnish with a bouquet of parsley or watercress.

Makes 8 servings

CHICKEN-WINE SAUCE

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
1½ cups chicken broth
¼ cup heavy cream
1 tablespoon dry white wine
Dash white pepper

1. In small saucepan, heat butter until melted. Stir in flour smoothly.

2. Add chicken broth all at once and cook, stirring with wire whisk until smooth and bubbly.

3. Stir in cream, wine and pepper. Heat; season to taste, adding salt and additional pepper if desired. Makes 2 cups

TIPS FOR SUCCESSFUL CORDON BLEU

1. Timing is important. For tastiest, tenderest results, don't overcook chicken.

2. Do cook until chicken feels firm to the "finger" test—that is, when pressed with your finger.

3. If you must wait to serve, cover loosely with foil and keep warm.

Saffola® will help lower his cholesterol.

Following the doctor's orders isn't always easy. So when he recommends a low saturated fat diet, it's nice to get some help.

Unlike the high-priced spread, Saffola (and, in fact, most margarines) contains no cholesterol.

But that's only the beginning. Saffola Margarine is made from safflower oil—lower in saturated fats, higher in polyunsaturates than corn oil. In conjunction with a low saturated fat diet, Saffola actually helps reduce the level of blood cholesterol.

It's reassuring to know that if your doctor recommends cutting down on saturated fats, you don't have to cut down on flavor.

Saffola tastes so much like the high-priced spread, chances are your family won't even notice the difference.

How about using the fresh piquancy of dillseed to add new flavor to your salad?

Tips 'n' Topics

DILL: SEED OR WEED?

We could all use a little lift just about now, so how about a new dressing for your favorite salad?

This recipe calls for whole dillseed, the seed of the herb plant, dill. The maximum flavor of dillseed is developed by "toasting" the seeds lightly in a small skillet for 5-10 minutes before using. A brief stay in a marinade or dressing also helps bring out the flavor.

Dillweed, the crushed leaves of the dill plant, releases flavor more quickly than the seed, but the flavor is milder. Dillweed enhances green salads, vegetables, fish and seafood sauces, egg salad, cottage cheese and, of course, thinly sliced cucumbers.

DILLY DRESSING

¼ cup lemon juice
1 teaspoon dillseed or dillweed
⅓ cup vegetable oil
¼ teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper

1. Combine lemon juice and dillseed in small saucepan. Bring to boiling; reduce heat and simmer 5 minutes. Cool.

2. Combine all remaining ingredients in a jar; add lemon juice and dillseed mixture. Serve over sliced cucumbers, tomatoes, mixed salad greens, etc., shaking thoroughly before adding. Makes ⅔ cup

SYNTHETIC MILK?!

A team of professors at the University of Illinois has developed a pleasant-tasting nutritious drink that they say offers the protein "benefits of milk without the cost of the cow." It remains to be seen if the product can be developed as a milk substitute; at the moment, it is deficient in calcium. However, the product, made from soybeans, is still in the developmental stage, and will be used to make imitation "cheese," "yogurt," "ice cream," table spreads and frosted shakes.

"I like to play my music for Angie after it's done. She has a very good ear for it."

By Peer. J. Oppenheimer

The interview didn't start out too well. The night before, seemingly tired and nervous, Burt Bacharach had opened at Harrah's Club in Tahoe.

FAMILY WEEKLY: You seem awfully tired. What's wrong?

BURT: I had a tough day yesterday. A six-and-a-half-hour rehearsal, and two shows. That can get anybody down. Besides, I've worked hard the last couple of years. It took me a year and a half on "Lost Horizon," and when I did my TV show in London, I came down with the flu.

FW: Were you disappointed with the critics' reaction to "Lost Horizon"?

FW: Do you think they were wrong?

BURT: I think the picture was better than they said it was. But it seems that once you get a bad critique, each critic tries to outdo the guy before. Nobody gave credit to the attempt to make a picture completely in Hollywood and put people back to work.

FW: Don't you think any of the criticism was justified?

BURT: I didn't say that. I think it happened partly because the picture was ballyhooed so much. The whole attitude went something like "See here, public, this is THE picture you've been waiting for! You should be happy to see it!" I don't think that was right.

FW: What about your own score? Were you satisfied with it?

BURT: I think the score didn't work as well as it should.

FW: Is it true that you turned down "Love Story"?

When your child can't sit still, is it nervousness or is it Pin-Worms?

Fidgeting, distraction, fitful scratching of rectal itch—many people don't know these "nervous habits" can be caused by Pin-Worms. These almost invisible parasites are so common, medical authorities have said 1 out of 3 children examined, and many parents, may have Pin-Worms.

They can infect anyone—young or old, rich or poor. Worst of all, Pin-Worms are highly contagious, so they can spread from person to person, until the whole family is infected.

Fortunately, there is an easy-to-take medication called Jayne's® P-W® tablets that gets rid of Pin-Worms. Your pharmacist will tell you that Jayne's P-W tablets are specially formulated with an effective medical ingredient that drives Pin-Worms out of your system. Ask for Jayne's P-W tablets at your drug store.

BURT: It is. When I met with Bob [Paramount Production chief Robert Evans], he had his mind set on a certain kind of music. It wasn't a matter of whether it was good or bad. I simply never had a chance to think how I would feel about it. So I turned it down. But he was right. The music he chose worked, and I respect him for his opinion.

FW: Has Angie been able to help you with your work?

BURT: A great deal, particularly in the beginning. I like to play my music for her after it's done. She has a very good ear for it.

FW: Do you need time totally alone—even away from Angie?

BURT: I do. I go to Del Mar seven or eight weeks a year, though not always by myself. We own a house there that we bought two years ago. It's a great place to work, and a marvelous place to relax. Until we bought it, we used to go to Palm Springs for three or four days, and it was like a major move. Del Mar is a second home. I simply get into the car, drive there, and start another life.

FW: And Angie doesn't mind when you go by yourself?

BURT: At least she hasn't told me she does. Besides, when Nikki is in school [Burt's and Angie's six-year-old daughter Lea Nikki], Angie doesn't like to leave her on her own too long.

FW: Del Mar is famous for its racetrack. Do you race your own horses as well?

BURT: I do. I've liked racing since I was 11, when my father took me to a horse race for the first time. Ever since, I thought that if I ever made it, I wanted horses of my own.

FW: How are you doing?

BURT: I won my first race and I figured it was easy. Then I lost the next 43! I'm doing better than that now, but there is no way you can make money on racehorses. At least I can't.

FW: How does Angie feel about your racehorses?

BURT: She likes horses, but not as much as I do, and I figure that if it's an effort to see them run, it isn't worth her time.

FW: How much effort does it take to to write music?

BURT: A great deal.

FW: Do you set certain hours to do your composing?

BURT: No. I don't start at nine and work until six in the afternoon. Sometimes I work 32 hours in a row. Sometimes I get up at four and work until noon and then go play tennis. But then I have to tell myself not to have a drink with the guys, but go home and go back to work.

FW: How do you feel about Angie still working as an actress?

BURT: I think it's absolutely essential, and I'm all for it—and not just for her to keep busy. If Angie weren't such a good actress, I would prefer that she quit. But she's too good to stay away from the screen. Unfortunately, she doesn't seem to get parts that do her justice.

FW: What do you think is the best thing she's ever done?

> "If Angie weren't such a good actress, I would prefer that she quit."

BURT: "Point Blank."

FW: She did a nude scene in the film. Did you mind?

BURT: Not at all. I thought she looked gorgeous!

FW: Is your daughter musically inclined?

BURT: She seemed to be a couple of years ago, and she tried the guitar and the violin. She has a pretty good ear. But now she's more interested in horses. Incidentally, she doesn't want to be called Nikki anymore. She's Lorne Greene now.

FW: What do you mean—she's Lorne Greene now?

BURT: Well, she's told us that from now on she's not a she but a he, and her name is Lorne Greene. Unless we call her that, she won't answer.

FW: So?

BURT: So we call her Lorne Greene.

FW: When you wrote the music for "Promises, Promises," producer David Merrick referred to you as "a new sex symbol." How did you feel about it?

BURT: I laughed. David's a card.

FW: How did Angie feel about it? And not just that, but when your fans fall all over you at concerts and personal appearances?

BURT: It doesn't bother her. At least, I don't think it does. FW

O. J. SIMPSON:

The Boy with Rickets Who Became "Athlete of the Year"

When O. J. Simpson was a child, he suffered from rickets and his mother had him wear homemade braces because she couldn't afford professional treatment. As a result, O. J.'s legs remained bowed and skinny from the knees down. But that didn't stop him from becoming the No. 1 college running back when he was at the University of Southern California; or from becoming No. 1 running back in professional football; or from smashing Jim Brown's rushing record by gaining 2,003 yards last season; or from winning the Hickok Award as "Athlete of 1973" by a record-breaking landslide. . . . O. J. (his real name is Orenthal James) doesn't like to meet tacklers head on. Instead, he uses tremendous natural speed and an uncanny ability to slip out of tacklers' hands. "A running back lasts a lot longer when he's not colliding with people or trying to run over them with brute force," he tells you. "I'm hoping to last a long time." . . . A native of California, Heisman Trophy winner Simpson was disappointed when he was drafted by Buffalo five years ago. He was even more disappointed when the coach gave him only limited opportunities to run. He was becoming known as "the college star who failed in the pros." But a new coach, Lou Saban, arrived in Buffalo last year and decided to build his offense around O. J., just as USC had done. . . . O. J. is a hero to his young teammates at Buffalo, is recognized as a team leader and official needler at practice. They describe him as "a guy who's always smiling and never angry." His wife Marguerite compares his disposition with that of his mother's cousin, baseball's happy-go-lucky veteran star, Ernie Banks. —By Barry Abramson

Jobmanship

You Can't Do Anything You Put Your Mind To!

Basically it's your own native talent for office duties that determines whether you'll be happy or miserable as a "desk jockey." If you found reports and paperwork in school irritating, go slow about seeking a career in an office. Most office jobs require high finger dexterity and a strong natural talent for dealing with symbols, figures and written forms of all kinds. Unfortunately, many men and women who disliked their school paperwork drift into office employment. When they find their jobs unsatisfactory, they begin to worry about their abilities in general. They should realize that it's not their basic ability that is lacking. The problem lies in the fact they're struggling with the wrong type of work for them. Job-aptitude researchers have found that it is a mistake to believe you can do anything you put your mind to. Different occupations require different in-born abilities and temperaments.—By S. R. Redford

What Students Really Think About Sports

SCHOOL SPORT SCHEDULE
PRIORITIES

Some adults may be surprised to hear this but when a nationwide group of high school senior boys was polled recently on 14 different things a high school should emphasize, the students ranked athletics last. What did the students feel was more important? They wanted to see more vocational skills taught to boys and girls who aren't interested in college. They wanted more programs to prepare them fo family life as a spouse and parent. They asked for courses to improve students' social and psychological adjustment. The were even eager for more encouragemen in traditional academic achievement! School, most of them felt, was more borin than it needed to be. Only six percent of the students found their schoolwork "exciting and stimulating." Even worse, only 30 percent thought the things they're learning in high school will be "very important" in their lives. —By Shirley Sloan Fader

The Doctor Lets You In

What Makes Your Nose Run?

"Oh, this darn nose—what's making it run so much?" Ever said that while suffering from a cold? Well, it's a good question—what does make your nose run? Here's the answer: A cold is an infection. And when you have an infection or inflammation, all your tissues are "running"—i.e., secreting fluids. The fluid running from your nose is called mucus, a secretion containing, amo other things, mucin (an "animal glue") and dead white cells that have been killed while fighting infection. When inflammatio strikes, many tissues discharge fluids. But you are most aware of the problem in your nose because the mucous membrane in your nasal passage is exposed and unprotected (that's also why it's the most vulnerable to attack from germs). The poin to remember is this: A runny nose is not bad in itself. It is an attempt by your body t throw off an infecting agent. This is why many doctors are cautious about overusin products that block or dry up the nose of a cold sufferer.—By Erwin Di Cyan, Ph.D.

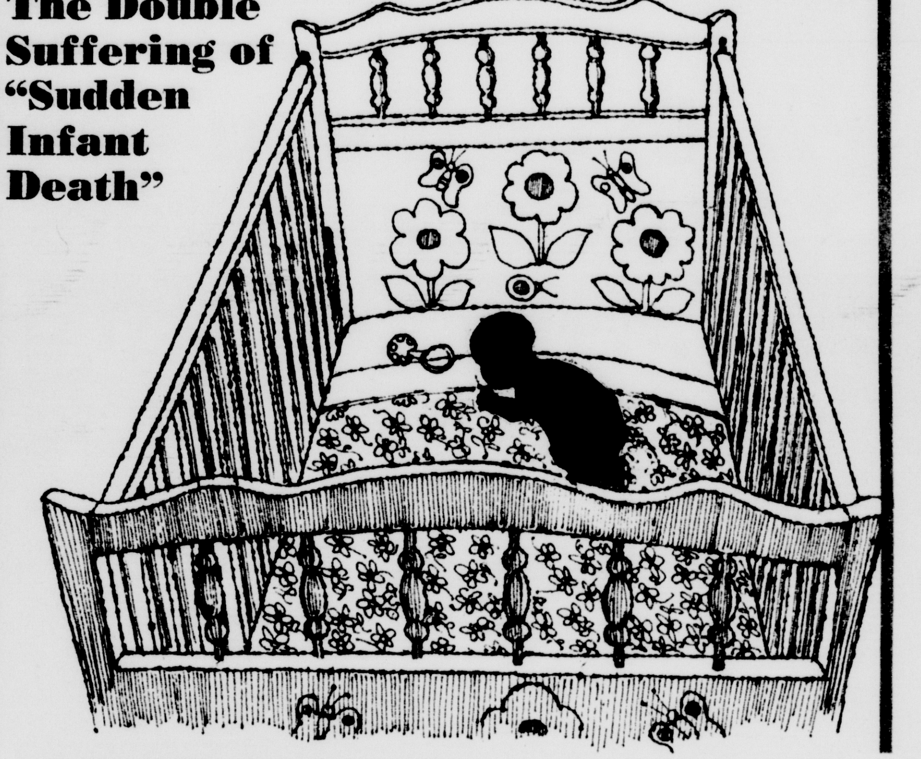
"Did You Kill Your Baby?"

The Double Suffering of "Sudden Infant Death"



By Elizabeth McGough

The funeral for six-month-old John Jerry Price, Jr., took place on a July afternoon in North Carolina with only a few people gathered around the tiny blue-trimmed coffin. The baby's father was not there. John Jerry Price, Sr., 20, sat in the County Jail charged with assault and battery in the death of his son. An autopsy had shown that the infant had not been beaten or struck. He had died of Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (sometimes called crib death), but the father was being held anyway.

In Chicago, a distraught father raced into the hospital. His infant son had been found dead in his crib. The father was asked repeatedly, "How many times did you hit him?"

These cases are extreme. But nearly all Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS) families have been asked, "Did you give the baby any medicine before you put him to bed? Did another child hit him? Did you love this baby?" You can imagine the trauma this brings into parents' lives.

The death of any child is heartbreaking. Yet no other disease leaves in its wake the self-doubt, guilt, psychosis and charges of criminal neglect that accompany deaths from SIDS. The leading cause of death in infants under one year old, SIDS has been with us at least since Biblical times. The disease cannot be predicted, even by a doctor, nor can it be prevented. While we do not know the cause of these 10,000 to 15,000 deaths a year, we do know that the surviving families are not criminals.

To define SIDS, let's look at a typical case. An apparently healthy infant between three weeks and eight months old is put to bed. He may have signs of a slight cold. Sometime later the baby is found dead. Most babies show not the slightest trace of any disturbance. No one has heard the baby struggle or cry out. Sometimes the infant has obviously moved at the time of death, and he may have a blanket near or around the face, or may be wedged over in the corner of his crib.

Here are some basic facts about SIDS:

- SIDS is a definite disease.
- The causes are not suffocation, regurgitation or pneumonia, although sometimes death certificates list such causes in error.
- There is no suffering; death occurs during sleep.
- It is not hereditary; there is no greater chance for it to occur in one family than in another. But it is unlikely to happen a second time in one family.
- It is not contagious. Although a viral infection may be involved, it is not a "killer virus" that threatens other family members.
- SIDS rarely occurs after seven months of age.
- New environmental agents, such

This lovely lady—Rachel Carr, author of "Yoga For All Ages"—IS REPLACING DEADLY TENSION WITH SOARING NEW STRENGTH AND ENERGY! Yet, to an outside observer, it looks as though she is doing nothing at all! This is the great marvel of Healing Yoga— that it produces such phenomenal returns in beauty, strength, appearance and vitality for such a tiny investment in time or energy! No wonder it can be enjoyed by 80-year-olds, or arthritics, as well as robust teenagers! No wonder its simple postures (like this one) seem to "smooth away" both years and pounds from the very beginning! Why not try these incredibly-easy "body-reshapers" and "revitalizers" today—without risking a penny!

IS THIS THE World's Easiest Yoga?

So incredibly easy that anyone can master it! And yet so powerful that it may cut years off your appearance...recharge your body with youthful energy... turn back on sleeping "Health Glands" inside your body! And do it all—in just a few glowing minutes each day!

Call It, If You Will, "Healing Yoga!" Made Up Of SIMPLE HEALING POSTURES THAT REDIRECT THE ENERGY FLOW WITHIN YOUR BODY To Help You To:

1) Gently stretch "weak muscles" strong again! So that they gain new strength, new power, new slimming control—not by agonizing effort—but by the super-nourishing blood-flow that these stretches pour into those muscles!

2) Flood with the same super-nourishment the tragically-neglected upperbody tissues of your face, neck and hair—and thus retard the drying and collapsing process that is aging your appearance faster and faster every year!

3) Revitalizes dormant "Youth Glands" inside your body! Put gentle, soothing pressure on them for a few blissful moments each day, so they automatically burn more of the food-fuel you put into your body! So you use the fat stored on your waist, hips and thighs as a brand-new supply of energy, to ward off fatigue and sluggishness at the same exact time that you look slimmer and feel younger than you have in years!

And—perhaps most important of all—

4) Attack directly—with Nature's own health powers—unnecessary sicknesses and breakdowns that may be torturing you today! So that you feel for yourself the effect of these simple postures on such agonizing cripplers as arthritis . . . rheumatism . . . respiratory illnesses . . . high blood pressure . . . back troubles . . . insomnia . . . shattered nerves . . . and a dozen more!

Such startling relief, in fact—so quickly—that the author must share it with you, in these joy-filled words:

"At first I found the sudden intake of oxygen a little startling. I experienced a surge of vitality as though I had opened the window for a breath of fresh air; yet the quieting effect it had in my mind was hypnotic. . . . My step took on bounce, and a wonderful sensation of well-being stayed with me. The pain in my joints and back, which had plagued me for years, subsided. With relief I discarded the traction device I had used nightly . . ."

And All These Benefits Come From Simple Postures That May Seem, At First, Too Easy For You! In Fact, You May Actually Laugh At Them—UNTIL YOU FEEL THE SURGE OF NEW ENERGY COURSING THROUGH YOUR BODY!

Once again, this new, simplified, streamlined Yoga works on the proven scientific principle that you cannot force . . . you cannot strain . . . you cannot torture your body into releasing again the buried reserves of strength and vitality that are now trapped within it!

For example, you know perfectly well how exhausted you feel after ordinary strenuous exercises . . . how they become progressively more and more difficult to practice . . . how your body finally forces you to give them up, and sink right back again into ever-increasing flabbiness, sagging facial and body tissues, an ever-growing sense of feeling "old and beaten" by life!

But—right now—do you have the energy to simply lie on the floor, and breathe in and out five times in a brand-new way? It takes only minutes to learn the method! You may chuckle at it at first! Until you feel the surge of super-charged oxygen revitalizing every tired tissue of your body!

And then, do you have the energy to simply raise your arms over your head—in the special way we show you while you are lying on the floor—and stretch your body gently and luxuriously from head to toe! And feel so much trapped tension drain out of that body that you may actually want to dance around the floor in sheer delighted joy!

Yes, and do you have the energy to play a simple trick on those flabby stomach muscles, that sucks them gently in close to your spine for a few strength-producing seconds . . . and that can make you look inches thinner in just a few blissful days!

And would you like to tighten up the vital muscles in your face, chin and neck—at the same exact time you flood them with fresh nourishing blood—all with one or two simple stretching exercises! Or start slimming over-heavy calves and thighs . . . tone up sagging breasts and hips . . . the hanging flesh on the undersides of your arms—all with the same easy gentle stretching movements!

Once Again, They Produce Results That You Can Gain In No Other Way! For Example:

Why the best tranquilizer in the world doesn't cost you a penny! It's yours on page 10.

Blood-Stream Purification. Forces your body to burn up potentially damaging inner secretions that may have been clogging your cells for years. You may feel the difference—thrilling new freedom from indigestion alone—immediately!

Yoga Sex Exercises specifically designed to stimulate lagging sex glands!

What is perhaps the single most powerful pose to delay aging in the human body (page 38). And why it may release a virtual torrent of self-healing processes!

How to re-distribute weight the Yoga way! How you can look like a young person if you have an old person's bulges distorting your figure. Yoga works on those bulges to painlessly redistribute that weight over your entire body . . . and help eliminate ugly bulges that have plagued you for years!

Yoga Revitalizers For Your Face, Your Hair, Your Spine, Your Teeth!

How to flood your face with blood at least once a day—the effortless way—and not only use the power of gravity to help build up instead of tear down delicate facial tissues that are now collapsing into lines and wrinkles, but also: stimulate mental processes . . . irrigate the gums and roots of your teeth to help increase their strength and longevity . . . and flood your scalp and hair follicles with the same rich nourishing blood!

Plus:

A simple way to avoid incomplete elimination!

How to stretch lower back pains away! Make those stiff joints mobile again! That stiff spine as supple as a kitten's!

Deep internal massage! To tone up the liver, kidneys and pancreas . . . firm the stomach . . . increase the gastric fire and therefore the powers of digestion . . . lead to true inner cleanliness!

What Yoga can do for you to improve varicose veins, swollen ankles and feet!

How to restore elasticity to stiff joints—without pain—especially knees, ankles, shoulders, hips, wrists, and finger-joints!

Folds in the neck—they are not inevitable if you know this simple posture on page 30.

How to cleanse nasal passages . . . calm the mind . . . help relieve sinus and other headaches . . . reduce eye strain and fatigue . . . strengthen optic nerves and muscles—all in the same posture!

The great Yoga cure for over-strained nerves! Starts to work immediately, in minutes! May be worth a hundred trips to a psychologist! Its fantastic ability to induce sound sleep, even in confirmed insomniacs, may alone be worth the low price of this book!

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

The crippling pain of arthritis sent Rachel Carr to the study of yoga. Following the system of exercises she outlines in Yoga for All Ages, she managed to loosen her rigid spine and knee joints and to dispense with the traction equipment she had used at night to stretch her spinal column. From that beginning, she went on to study yoga in depth and to become one of America's most noted teachers of the subject.

Prove It Yourself— Entirely At Our Risk!

But there is so very much more! You really must try these great Health-Power Postures yourself to believe them! Therefore we offer this Complete Streamlined Course to you, to read and use from cover to cover, entirely at our risk!

Look again at the unretouched photograph of the author above. Realize again that, only a few years ago, this woman was in literal agony from the pains of arthritis . . . in such poor health that she could not sleep at night without traction!

Is it worth a few minutes of your time to learn the Path Back to youthfulness and health that she discovered! That now makes her feel young, strong, supple!

If it is, then send in the No-Risk Coupon . . . TODAY!

Did You Kill Your Baby?"

Continued

as fluoride in water, smoking or birth-control pills, do not cause SIDS. These deaths happened as often in the 18th and 19th centuries as they do now.

For parents of the tiny victims, there is at least one friend. It's called the Washington State Foundation for Sudden Infant Death Study. Through this group, parents learn that their baby was not the victim of some freakish happening, that 35 families a day in the U.S. lose a baby this way.

In a recent interview with the Seattle research-study team on SIDS, I asked Dr. C. George Ray, virologist and project director, what signs indicate a true SIDS death. He explained, "A key thing to settle right away is that we don't find any obvious cause. We rule out heart disease, meningitis, pneumonia, or any prior lesion, in autopsy. Five pathological signs recognized in SIDS death are: tiny hemorrhages (called petechiae) on membranes surrounding the lungs; fluid blood in the heart rather than clotted blood; mild inflammation of the respiratory tract, but not enough to cause death; congested lungs; and the bladder is empty." All signs are not necessarily present in all SIDS cases.

Dr. Ray further explained that two of these signs, the hemorrhages and fluid blood in the heart, are not usually evident in other causes of death.

I asked, "Would either of these appear if child abuse had been involved in the death?"

"Almost certainly not," he answered.

"Can you definitely rule out child brutality by autopsy?"

"Yes, really, we never see this in child abuse."

When a child dies of leukemia, no one dreams of accusing the family of any wrongdoing. But many people have never heard of Sudden Infant Death or do not accept it as a true disease. Many families are never told why their babies died or given any information about SIDS. Friends, grandparents and neighbors often wonder and say devastating things like: "That baby was sick. If only you had taken him to a doctor."

One community that has an organized, humane system of handling SIDS is the aforementioned Seattle-King County in Washington. Here, the victim of any suspected case is immediately brought to Children's Orthopedic Hospital for autopsy. Within 24 hours, Dr. A. B. Bergman or another pathologist of his research team telephones the family to discuss the findings. He gives them his home and office phone, should they need to call. He tells the family that brochures will be mailed immediately, and that a public-health nurse will call on them within a week. These nurses, specially trained for their role, go into the home to explain the disease to the parents and to counsel them in their grief. Mrs. Margaret Pomeroy, R.N., who has visited more than 200 families as research-project nurse, explains:

It's bad enough to lose your child. It's worse when people think it's your fault!

"Even here in Seattle, where we feel SIDS is rather well understood, we still find incidents in which families have been unfairly treated. One mother was questioned by a police officer after her baby's death. He asked, 'Where did you say you were?' She had told him she was ironing in another room. 'Were you across the street at a neighbor's?' he repeated. 'Did you go to the store?' She told him a dozen times that she was ironing. He kept going back to that question: 'Where did you say you were?' Fortunately, my visit was shortly after that. We tracked down this officer immediately to explain SIDS to him so that it wouldn't happen again."

Another volunteer role includes clipping articles on misinformation about the causes of Sudden Infant Death. These discounted theories include the widely publicized whiplash, or spinal-cord, injury; milk allergy; gamma globulin deficiency; parathyroid inadequacy. Some mothers, having lost a child to SIDS, think, "If only I had breast-fed him!" This makes no difference. Many victims have been totally breast-fed.

As Dr. Bergman, president of the National Foundation for SID commented, "It's bad enough to lose a child without a parent having to go through life fearing that he killed it."

He's right. I know. I lost my own son this way.

VERY SPECIAL PEOPLE

Many heads turned when Charles Tripp, "Armless Wonder," and his friend Eli Bowen, "Legless Wonder," rode their bicycle built for two.

Daughter of a Ringling Brothers fat lady, Baby Ruth Pontico weighed 815 pounds.

The Struggles, Loves, and Triumphs of Human Oddities

As a youngster, Francesco Lentini was so shocked at what he saw in an institution for the severely handicapped that he never complained about his third leg again.

These are just a few of the many "mistakes of Nature" included in Frederick Drimmer's fascinating new book, VERY SPECIAL PEOPLE. What makes them very special is that they were all born "curiosities" and they all lived unusual lives. Like Chang and Eng, the original Siamese twins, who were joined at the chest for life. They married sisters, set up separate homes, and fathered 22 children between them!

Then there was Grace McDaniels, billed as the ugliest woman who ever lived (and her photo proves it). Believe it or not, Grace received several proposals of marriage before she accepted one from a handsome young man. They had a perfectly normal son, who grew up to be his mother's manager!

John Merrick, the grossly deformed "Elephant Man," was deserted by his heartless manager. Befriended by a kindly doctor, Merrick became quite famous and was frequently visited by Royalty.

The stories in this book are true, and we have over 65 rare photos to prove it. Never has one book been so complete. There are chapters on giants, dwarfs, fat people, armless and legless wonders, hermaphrodites (half man, half woman), bearded ladies, and numerous other human oddities.

This is not just a picture book of "freaks." The author treats these people with insight, compassion and the dignity one earns by being born different from everyone else.

VERY SPECIAL PEOPLE will also teach you one of the most important lessons that life has to offer: the incredible ability of man's mind, soul, and spirit to overcome any physical imperfection...no matter how hopeless it may appear. Read this book and you'll never indulge in self-pity again.

Only $5.95, hard covered, 412 pages, 67 photographs.

NIXON AND STEVENSON
Candidates' cookout test

In his new book, columnist Stewart Alsop recollects a day in 1956 when he was polling voters. He went up to a man raking leaves in the backyard of his suburban Chicago home and asked him if he was going to vote for Eisenhower or Adlai Stevenson. The man replied that he was voting for Eisenhower because "he's the kind of guy I'd like to invite over for a cookout." Ever since then, Alsop has applied this "cookout test" to presidential aspirants. "Nothing is more obvious," he notes, "than that Richard Nixon fails it even more abysmally than Adlai Stevenson did. His inability to arouse the kind of personal affection lots of voters felt for Dwight Eisenhower or John Kennedy has been ...his greatest source of political weakness." From "Stay of Execution: A Sort of Memoir" (J. B. Lippincott, $8.95).

BIPS

HIPPO-BACK RIDE
Almost as fun as a daddy?

"Play horse, Daddy!" Millions of weary fathers hear this, or a rough equivalent, when they come home each day. And, when they obey, it's barrump, barrump around the floor or yard while little Suzie or Johnny pounds the living daylights out of their trapezius muscles. So daddies know how Esmi the hippo feels. The 200-pound Esmi, who is said to be the world's only "hand-reared" hippopotamus, has just returned from a hard day's wallow and, presumably, wants nothing more than to curl up with the sports page. Little Suzanne Crawley will have none of that. Suzanne's father is general manager of the Longleat Wildlife Park in Wiltshire, England.

Sam Waterston

The engaging movie newcomer, Sam Waterston, comes from an Ivy League background that's strikingly similar to that of Nick Carraway, the F. Scott Fitzgerald character he plays in the movie, "The Great Gatsby." "The difference," says Sam, "is that I've never been rich." Both Waterston and Carraway attended private boarding schools and graduated from Yale University. Both came from middle-class New England families. About his own background, Sam says: "My father was a teacher at a private boarding school in New England and a great believer in good education. It's nice that my own background was so useful in getting the part. But in the sense that people think it was a privileged existence, it is a bane. Speaking selfishly, I'm grateful it was so pleasant, but I was never into the social thing."

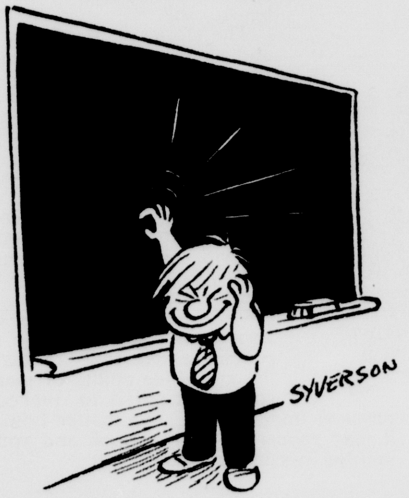
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour



ON THE NAIL

Among the things this writer hails,
Long overdue, are fingernails.
They finish off our fingertips
And help us when we come to grips.
They have their uses, quite a few:
To scratch an itch, to turn a screw,
To open letters, scrape a spot,
To peel an orange, like as not.
Although they must be clipped and cleaned,
Their worth should never be demeaned.
They're somewhat fragile, far from thick,
And just below them is the quick.
But when they sometimes break or crack,
It's none too quick when they grow back.

One of the most exciting ways to travel is by wet soap. —B. Fairweather

In England, a busful of American tourists pulled to a stop at Runnymede and one of them demanded of the guide: "What happened here?" "This is where they signed the Magna Carta," replied the guide. "When did they do that?" asked the tourist. "1215," replied the guide. Looking at his watch, the man turned to his wife and said: "My gosh, Irene, we just missed it by 40 minutes!" —Dan Bennett

Conscience gets a lot of credit that should go to cold feet. —Gene Yasanek

My daughter, who lives in London, took her three-year-old son to watch the wedding procession of Princess Anne and Capt. Mark Phillips. That evening his father asked him what he had seen. His reply was, "I saw the horses' legs." —Mrs. C. M. Styan
Clearwater Beach, Fla.

My young son recently came home from school and told me that his teacher had said he was the second quietest student in the room. I suggested he should try to be the quietest. After a moment's thought, he said, "I can't be. The quietest is a girl."

'JOHN DENVER AND THE EAGLE'

The television audience held its breath as singer John Denver donned a heavily padded gauntlet and prepared to allow a full-grown golden eagle perch on his arm. The magnificent six-year-old bird, with its flashing amber eyes, knife-like beak and six-foot wing spread was an awesome sight . . . not many men would willingly handle such a fierce animal. But John Denver is no stranger to wild life; his hands were steady, his movements calm.

John Denver stars in his first TV special when he welcomes David Carradine, Lily Tomlin, and James Whitmore to "The John Denver Show."

The setting was the ABC television studio in Hollywood, where Denver was taping his first television special, The John Denver Show, airing Monday at 9PM on ABC. At Denver's insistence, a special segment of the show is dedicated to the eagle. Denver's concern for the fate of this rapidly vanishing species is well founded. In all of North America there are less than 8,000 golden eagles left alive. Over the past 20 years, over 20,000 of these great birds have been killed in the Southwest alone. Ranchers, under the disputed conviction that eagles kill livestock, destroy them at random—the recent use of helicopters to hunt eagles resulted in the slaughter of 600 eagles in Colorado and Wyoming in a two-year period.

The fate of the bald eagle is even more alarming. In the entire United States, there are less than 500 pairs of bald eagles left alive; and of these less than 40 per cent are capable of reproduction. Not enough young are surviving to replace older birds; thus, this great symbol of our country is doomed to extinction.

Only recently protected from wanton killing by legislation, the eagle is still losing its battle for survival. The unlawful slaughter of eagles goes on. This is John Denver's great concern. And in an effort to demonstrate the great beauty of these animals, Denver hopes to arouse public sympathy for their fate. Denver sings his composition, "The Eagle & the Hawk," and illustrating the text of the songs are film clips of golden eagles in flight, breathtakingly soaring powerfully through the air, their great wings propelling them towards the sun. With these words and images, John Denver celebrates the beauty of nature; a hymn to the freedom, power and magnificence of this doomed creature—a symbol of freedom in every civilization since history began. A hymn and a plea, a plea for the freedom to survive, not only for the eagle but the civilization it has so boldly represented.

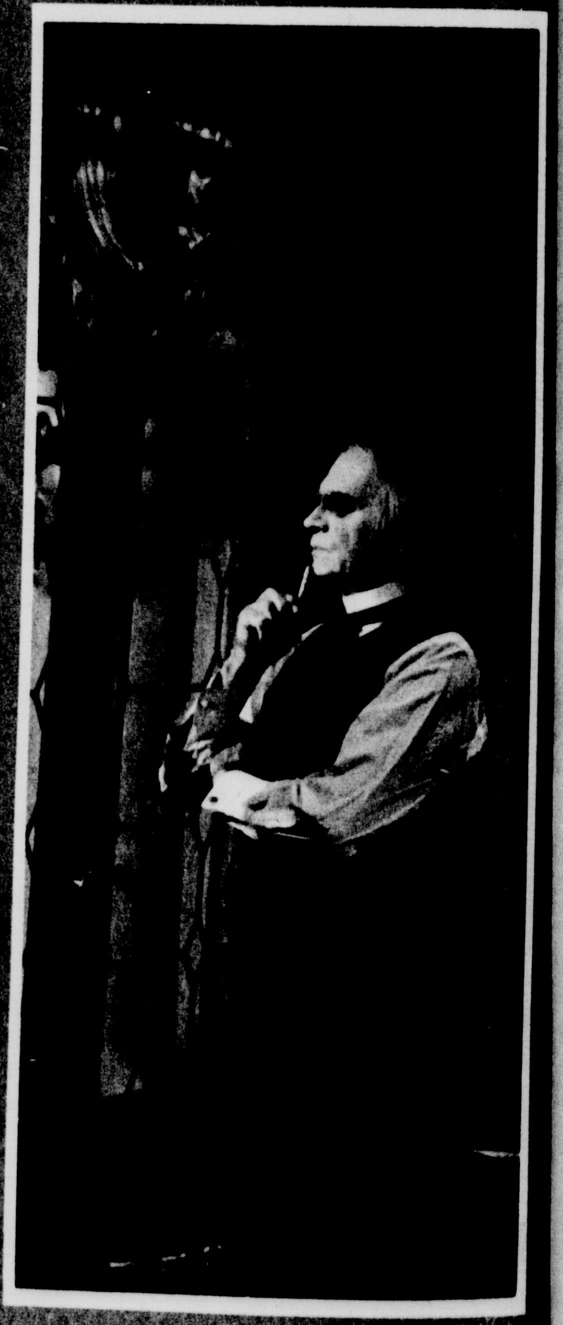
'TRUE STORY'

"The Execution of Private Slovik," a film drama starring Martin Sheen in the title role, airs on NBC, Wednesday from 8:30 to 11PM. The film is the true story of Eddie Slovik, who during World War II was the only American serviceman to be executed for desertion since the Civil War. Mariclare Costello co-stars as Slovik's wife and Ned Beatty portrays the Catholic chaplain who comforts Slovik just before the execution. The script is based on William Bradford Huie's book and traces Slovik's life from when he served time in a Michigan reformatory for a minor offense until his execution in 1945 by a firing squad in a small mountain town in Eastern Europe.

'A CLASSIC'

Lord Laurence Olivier stars in the British National Theatre production of Shakespeare's classic, "The Merchant of Venice," on ABC, Saturday (Mar. 16) at 8:30PM. Olivier portrays Shylock, one of Shakespeare's most memorable characters, who attempts to exact retribution from a society that unmercifully persecutes him. The interrelated stories of Shylock, his victims, the daughter who betrays him, and the woman who ultimately defeats him are the components of a well told classic that's even more meaningful today than the Elizabethan era in which it was written. Action is set in Venice of the 1890s.



'MICRO-WORLD'

Some of the marvels of nature not normally seen with the naked eye are brought to TV via microphotography in "The World You Never See," an NBC Special airing Thursday at 8PM. Hugh Downs is the off-camera narrator. Seven British specialists who make up the Oxford Scientific Film Unit overcame the limitations of the human eye by using specially designed equipment and employing such aids as time-lapse photography and "cold" lighting (a system devised to film delicate insects under artificial lighting without causing them harm). There are 13 different sequences, including a view of a mole feeding its young, and organisms which thrive in a drop of water on the head of a pin.

TV WEEK'S COVER CLOSE-UP

MARLO & FRIENDS

Marlo Thomas and her friends—top stars from every corner of show business—join together in an hour long special of comedy and song on ABC's "Marlo Thomas and Friends in Free To Be . . . You and Me," airing Monday at 8PM. Marlo's friends are (in alphabetical order) Alan Alda, Harry Belafonte, Mel Brooks, Dick Cavett, Rita Coolidge, Billy DeWolfe, Roberta Flack, Rosie Grier, Dustin Hoffman, Michael Jackson, Kris Kristofferson, Bobby Morse, The New Seekers, Tommy Smothers, Cicely Tyson, The Voices of East Harlem and Dionne Warwicke.

Marlo calls her new special "the happiest special in the world. 'Free to Be . . . You and Me' is for everyone. It shows through comedy and song and dance that it's a joy to be free—it's terrific to be your own person." Some of the segments in "Free to Be . . . You and Me" were adapted from Bell Record's Grammy-nominated album of the same name. Many more were created especially for the television show.

In one segment, Dustin Hoffman makes his first appearance on a television special in "How I Crossed the Street for the First Time All By Myself." It tells the story of a young boy's battle to become himself. Filmed on location in Brooklyn, the segment was written by humorist Herb Gardner, who wrote "A Thousand Clowns." Of another segment, Marlo says, "I make my singing debut with "MASH" star Alan Alda and we play all the parts in a funny, touching song called 'William's Doll.' It was written by Broadway's Mary Rodgers, who wrote 'Once Upon a Mattress,' and Sheldon Harnick, Pulitzer Prize winner for 'Fiddler on the Roof.' "

Harry Belafonte and Marlo

Kris Kristofferson

Running throughout the special are the comic adventures of two "newborn babies." Marlo and the irreverent Mel Brooks provide the voices for Wayland Flowers' original puppets. Television's Carl Reiner, Norman Steinberg and Alan Uger joined with Broadway's Peter Stone to put some of their funniest observations into the mouths of these remarkably sophisticated infants.

Marlo and Harry Belafonte take over New York City performing in a vast variety of "roles" to demonstrate the not-always-obvious point that "Parents are People." Changing costumes with each new location, Marlo and Harry become (among other things) policemen, taxi drivers, executives, hot dog vendors, construction workers, and even bums. Kris Kristofferson and Rita Coolidge join Marlo to sing "Circle of Friends," a song written for the special by Stephen Lawrence and Bruce Hart, writers of the score of "Bang the Drum Slowly."

Marlo Thomas and Emmy-winning writer Carole Hart produced "Free to Be . . . You and Me" with the help of 18 writers and composers. Oscar and Tony Award winner Tony Walton did the sets for the show. Broadway's Donald McKayle did the choreography and Emmy-winner Bill Davis directed. Sam Antiput was the designer; animation was by Oscar-winners Murakami-Wolfe. The special is, in Marlo Thomas' words, "really the result of a great deal of love and effort by a bunch of people who believe the world can be a happy place if we are free to be . . . you and me."

'ROBERT VAUGHN'S UNUSUAL HOMEWORK'

It's not unusual to hear of a television actor who loses ten pounds, lets his hair grow to a fashionable length, and has his face lifted in preparation for a certain character. But what in the world could induce Robert Vaughn, the original "Man From U.N.C.L.E.," to gain ten pounds, alter the aristocratic shape of his nose and submit to having his hair cut in a style that's forty years out of date?

Well, this unusual transformation began when Vaughn was signed to play the role of Harry S Truman, circa 1929, for the latest in The Du Pont Cavalcade of Television's "Portrait" series, "The Man From Independence," airing Monday, at 10PM on ABC. The program focuses on an early period of Truman's life when he was a Missouri Circuit Court Judge, refusing to knuckle under to the graft-dealing policies of "Boss" Pendergast's political machine, even in the face of direct threats to himself and his family.

"Truman's face and body were rounder and heavier than mine," Vaughn points out. "In between big meals of bread and potatoes, I spent hours watching old newsreels to capture his walk, his gestures. I think it's important to master those little details, because that's the sort of thing that makes up a man's style. And I think that 'personal style' is what this story is all about."

Vaughn even enlisted the services of his barber; together they studied photos of Truman taken in 1929. The result was a close shave from the earline down. A little nose putty completed the astonishing transition from a dapper counter-espionage agent to a mid-Western politician of forty years ago—a man on the threshold of destiny.

"I've got a busy schedule ahead of me," says the energetic actor. "I won't have any trouble losing the extra weight, but for the time being I guess everyone will just have to put up with the haircut."

JOE SIROLA'S SCRAPBOOK

Joe Sirola adds another chapter to an abundant scrapbook of professional achievement with his current co-starring assignment as Dominick on NBC's The Magician, Mondays at 8PM. Considered to be the top voice-over talent in the national and international English speaking market, Joseph Sirola maintains permanent membership in one of the most exclusive fraternities in the entertainment industry. His verbal signature is heard tolling the merits of such products as: Excedrin, Gillette, Scope, American Express, Shell Oil, Chevrolet, Vanquish, Gleam, Ralston Purina, and other nationally recognized items.

Joe has been thus applauded for his unique abilities with the honored receipt of no less than twelve "Clio" Awards: the International Television Commercial Awards, and likewise honored by the New York Advertising Club with many of its "Andy" Awards.

The prologue event in his successful television career was an appearance in the CBS Camera Three production of Dostoevsky's "Notes From Underground." This production was to receive the John Lardner Awards for Best Television Dramatic Show of 1958. Similar critical praise was accorded Joe for his co-starring role in the Broadway hit, "Golden Rainbow" with Steve Lawrence and Edye Gorme.

With the phenomenal wealth and success of his voice-over commercial career, it is acting that secures his motivation. For the gentleman whose lapel rose is a personal trademark, there seems to be little hiatus to his talent. Major film roles have included the Clint Eastwood picture, "Hang 'Em High," George Stevens' "The Greatest Story Ever Told," and "Strange Bedfellows" with Gina Lollobrigida and Rock Hudson. He is currently starring in the MGM release, "Super Cops," and "Hail to the Chief." His television credits include guest shots on Mission Impossible, Get Smart and Hawaii Five-O.

Denver Show Guests David Carradine, Lily Tomlin, George Gobel, and James Whitmore as Will Rogers, join John Denver in this musical special filmed in Hollywood and on location in the Rocky Mountains.

DISCOVERIES BY A PACHYDERM PUNDIT

Actor David Niven narrates "We Live With Elephants," a special program woven around the five-year study of Scottish scientist Ian Douglas-Hamilton and his family, who have been living among 500 elephants dwelling in the Manyara Preserve in the Rift Valley, Tanzania. The filmed account airs Wednesday at 8PM on CBS.

Although in his study Douglas-Hamilton never discovered any such fabled graveyard, he did witness elephant behavior as strange as in any hunter's story. "Obviously, all elephants living on a preserve know each other frightfully well," he says. "They mix together, and when two separate family units come near each other, the youngsters often intermingle. There is no territoriality or aggression between family units. They seem really just to love each other.

"One day, I came across the bones of several elephants, shot by poachers. A group of elephants approached this boneyard and showed unusual curiosity. They sniffed and touched the bones, almost as if trying to identify to whom they had belonged. Elephants totally ignore the bones of other species.

"Next, they carried the bones short distances, sometimes even putting the bones in their mouths. The tusks excited the most interest. Eventually, they all picked up bones and carried them away, sometimes a hundred yards or more, before dropping them in the bush. I don't know the explanation, but there is no doubt that the bones of dead elephants have a special significance for the living animals."

Douglas-Hamilton made other discoveries on elephant existence. One major find was the difference in the life of male and female calves. At first they are equally protected, and, as in many human families, the indiscretions of the very young are usually tolerated. However, the young bull's story is quite different from the cow's. From the earliest age, he is far more aggressive, trying out charges and baby squeals at almost everything. "As the bulls grow older," says the scientist, "they firmly have to be put in place. Inevitably, they become prematurely interested in the female calves, and become a thorough nuisance in the family. When a bull turns about 13, the age of puberty, the matriarches decide he must leave the family unit. They drive out the young bull with a series of attacks, until he is persuaded that he is not wanted. From now on, he mingles with the other males, and sometimes lives quite alone.

"Only when he has fully grown will he have sufficient standing to mix with the cow groups again, usually for the purpose of mating."

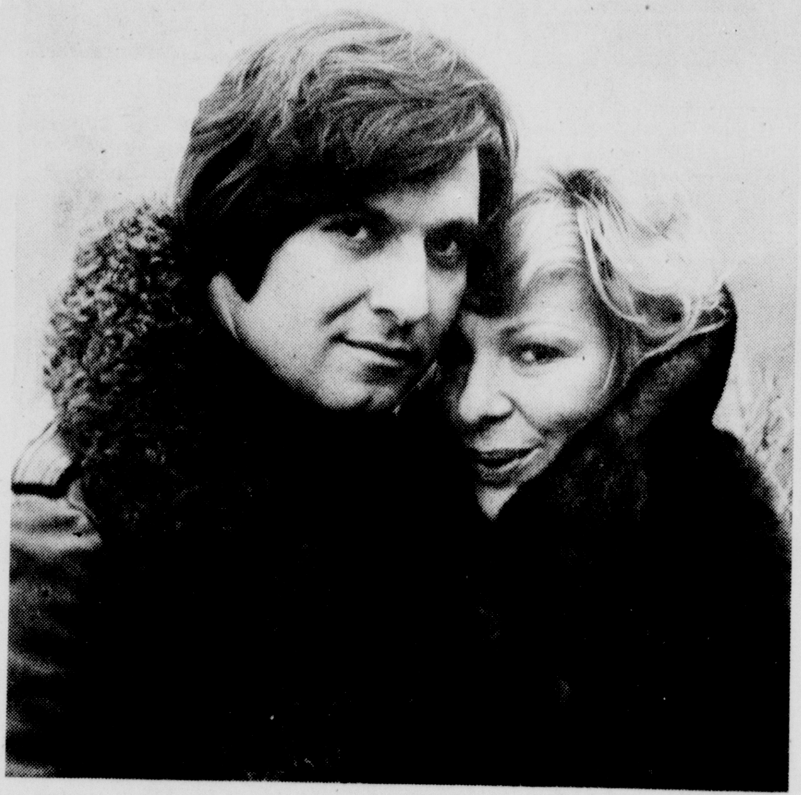
TEAMWORK IN PARADISE

Renee Taylor and Joe Bologna are definitely not the couple next door. They are actress and actor; Broadway, television and film-writing team; and mommy and daddy—all rolled into two.

"If we didn't work together, we'd never see each other," Miss Taylor points out, with mock consternation.

For their latest effort, Miss Taylor and Bologna wrote and starred in "Paradise," a one-hour comedy special airing Tuesday at 8:30PM on CBS. The happy partnership of Taylor and Bologna began eight years ago, when Miss Taylor, an actress, and Bologna, a writer and director, met through the manager they shared.



Husband-and-wife team Renee Taylor and Joe Bologna escape from the dreary city winter as the stars of "Paradise."

"We were engaged in three months and married in six," Bologna remembers. "Oh, and we decided to write something together." What they wrote was the play "Lovers and Other Strangers," a smash comedy hit on Broadway. Since then, the couple has become a top comedy writing team, credited with the film "Made for Each Other," in which they also starred, the television special "Acts of Love—And Other Comedies," that won them an Emmy Award, and the creation of the critically acclaimed Calucci's Dept. comedy series on the Network.

The marriage also produced a son, Gabriel, almost five years ago. "We haven't won any awards for that—yet," Bologna deadpans. Gabriel, incidentally, will play a role, too, in "Paradise."

"It's both fun and difficult working together," Miss Taylor admits. "We sometimes disagree, but we make trades and concessions. Whoever cries the most—in a very mature way, of course—gets to do it his, or her, way." "I'm better at dialogue, and Joe is better at structure," the blonde-writer-actress says, with a questioning glance at Bologna. Getting an acquiescent nod and smile in reply, she continues: "Joe can write a beginning, a middle and an end, while I like to go where the characters take me. So Joe has all the pressure, and I have all the fun."

Whatever the division of chores, it's obviously a labor of love for the talented team. "It all works out, even if it's not always paradise in real life," Bologna says, "because we like each other."

BY BILL MAHAN

The new Emily McLaughlin (nurse Jessie Brewer in GENERAL HOSPITAL) is quite a shock. At least 20 pounds lighter and with a fancy new hairdo, Emily reminds one more of Susan Hayward or Olivia de Havilland. Her enormous eyes show up more than they ever did before and her sleek new wardrobe is a total reverse for her.

GENERAL HOSPITAL's approximately twelve million viewers did a double take when they saw her new look on television for the first time, too. The switchboard at ABC lit up and the operators couldn't handle the volume of incoming calls from people who wanted to know who the new Jessie Brewer was. They didn't recognize her. The masses of mailbags required the hiring of extra writers to answer all the mail that poured in. But, forgetting the above, Emily McLaughlin is the only daytime actress in the history of the Golden Globes Awards to be nominated for best actress. A well deserved honor for a talented, lovely lady.

GENERAL HOSPITAL will celebrate its eleventh year on the air April 1 of this year. Emily has been with the series since its inception. She arises at 5:30AM every day and is on the set at 7. She rehearses until 8:30, then breaks for lunch until 9:30 in the morning. Then it's back to rehearsing until 1:00PM when the actual taping of the show begins. That lasts until 1:30 and then rehearsing for the following day's shooting begins and continues until 3:30 when she breaks for the day. Normally she is in bed at 9:30 or 10:00 and studies her script for an hour or so to be ready for the next day's work. So being an actress isn't all glamour and play.

One of the more interesting things Emily told me about the series is that it is written entirely by only two writers. "Of course," she said, "things are rewritten and changed on the set sometimes, but still two writers handle the entire show—five days a week a half hour per day." (It takes me a full week to manage to get out two columns, so I was duly impressed with that fact.)

One of the foreign countries that runs GENERAL HOSPITAL is Australia. They are only behind five years in the series, but they're catching up fast because they have doubled up and run the show as an hour series. That means that in seven and a half years they'll be even with production and will be viewing the current episodes now being shot.

Just a very few years ago, when blacks had succeeded in breaking down the barriers that existed in motion pictures and television, it was relatively easy for a Negro to get roles.

"It helped if you were a super-star athlete type of cat," Felton Perry recalls. "It seemed that black actors were everywhere all of a sudden and seemed to be getting a lot of work." Felton feels this came about because of the "black is beautiful" crusade that swept the country as the result of court decisions to remove racial barriers against his brothers and sisters. "I think a lot of people—producers and directors—felt they had to have a token black in one of their productions," Felton adds. "It wasn't a bad idea, and it brought a lot of struggling actors to the attention of the viewing public who might never have seen their work otherwise."

But Felton, who is currently co-starring with Joe Don Baker and Elizabeth Hartman in the box office hit, WALKING TALL, feels those days are over, and he for one is happy about it. "Being a big man on the playing field doesn't count that much any more," he states. "You've got to have talent because there are a lot of good black actors around now, and the competition is stiff." Felton has nothing to worry about on this score. A former Marine and resident of Chicago, he has worked long and hard to master the acting craft and made his professional debut in MacBIRD when it played the Windy City. After that he appeared in MY SWEET CHARLIE, THE AMEN CORNER, TIGER, TIGER, BURNING BRIGHT, and later co-starred with Vince Edwards in the television series, MATT LINCOLN.

"I look at a television commercial today, and I see one black face usually surrounded by white faces," Felton states. "It's a form of tokenism, I guess, to reach the black audience. But at least it's giving a performer a job he or she otherwise might not have had. So I guess it's okay because it means gradually more and more doors will open for black entertainers." Felton said he almost turned down the role of the deputy sheriff in WALKING TALL when producer Mort Briskin offered it to him. The movie depicts the real life story of former Tennessee lawman, Buford Pusser, and his crusade against organized crime in his native county several years ago.

"Now I'm hardly in the position to reject roles," the actor states, "but I somehow got the idea that someone decided at the last minute that they should have a black in the picture. I couldn't see a black being a deputy sheriff in Tennessee, but Mr. Briskin had the proof—shortly after he was elected, Sheriff Pusser did appoint a black deputy. That's the role I play in the picture, and it's a true one."

'THE BIG CATS'

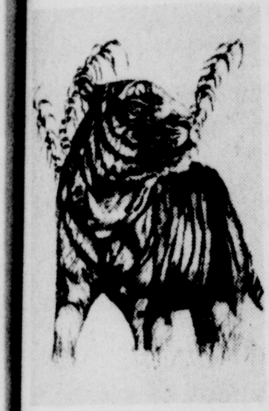
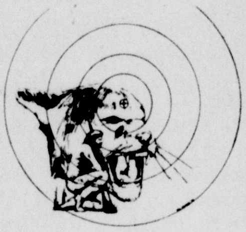
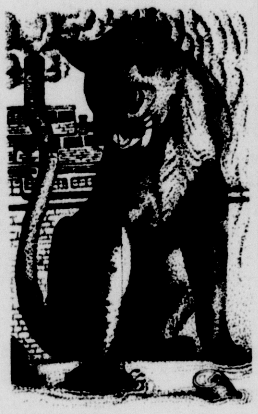
In a contest sponsored jointly by the National Geographic Society and the non-profit organization Prime Time School TV, the contestants endeavored to depict the subjects of the telecast, which are the world's big cats and to illustrate this plight in a world largely indiifferent to their ultimate extinction.



2nd Place
Julie Mattingly, a sophomore also at Harrisburg High, who plans to be a pediatrician. Also an A student, Julie has had little training in art and enjoys gymnastics.



1st Place
Phil Edwards, a senior at Harrisburg High School in Harrisburg, Ill., who plans to take premed courses after graduating. He is an A student and enjoys drawing.



3rd Place
Thomas Bowler, a senior at St. Patrick High School in West Belmont, Chicago, is an art major and plans to continue his art education at the Art Institute in Chicago.

The art contests were started in 1973 in order to stimulate the students' interests in educational programs on prime time television. Prime Time submits materials about these worthwhile programs (free of charge) to the schools along with suggestions on classroom usage.

The art contest for "The Big Cats" drew 705 entries from 38 states, increasing by 10 fold the number of entries ever received for the contests. The contestants were only supplied with a synopsis of the program, thus making it necessary for them to research the project.

The entries, which consist of free hand drawings or photographs, will go on display for three weeks beginning March 1 at the Lincoln Park Zoo in Chicago.

The Zoo, whose director, Dr. Lester Fisher, helped to judge the contest—is the only one in the United States that has all four species—Asiatic Lion, Jaguar, Siberian Tiger, Mountain Lion—examined in the telecast.

The three top finishers were judged on their artistic ability and mastery of the program's theme.

Phil Edward's winning efforts won him a $50 savings bond, a special globe from the National Geographic Society, and a copy of "The Big Cats" to be awarded to his school in his name.

Julie Mattingly and Thomas Bowler each received $25 savings bonds and National Geographics books.

This third of four National Geographic Society programs is produced by the National Geographic Society in association with Wolper Productions. Nick Clapp is the Executive Producer of Wolper Productions. "The Big Cats" was written and produced by Paul Boorstin and directed by Boorstin and Jeri Sopanen.

'DOUBLE FEATURE NIGHT'

Ernest Borgnine, Della Reese and Vito Scotti star in "Twice in a Lifetime," a 60-minute comedy about the world of tugboats, and Barry Newman, Susan Howard and Albert Salmi star in "Night Games" a 90-minute mystery-drama about an unconventional lawyer who attempts to clear a young socialite in a controversial homicide case. The two program development projects will be colorcast on the NBC Double Feature Night at the Movies," Saturday (March 16) at 8PM.

In "Twice In a Lifetime," which begins at 8PM, Vince Boselli (Borgnine), a retired Navy cook, satisfies his longing for his former seagoing life with the purchase of a salvage tug from "used boat salesman" Ron Talley (guest star Arte Johnson). Boselli tries to break in to the closed world of salvage men, held in thrall by brutal Pete Lazich (guest star Slim Pickens) and his henchman Kipp (guest star Warren Vanders). Talley and his fiancee Denise Dupont (Sheilah Wells) trigger a rousing fight in the Snug Harbor saloon and Boselli winds up owing for damages to the owner, Flo (Miss Reese). Vito Scotti stars as Carlos the bartender; Eric Laneuville is Flo's teen-age son Lewis and Herb Jeffries guest stars as a musician from Flo's past.

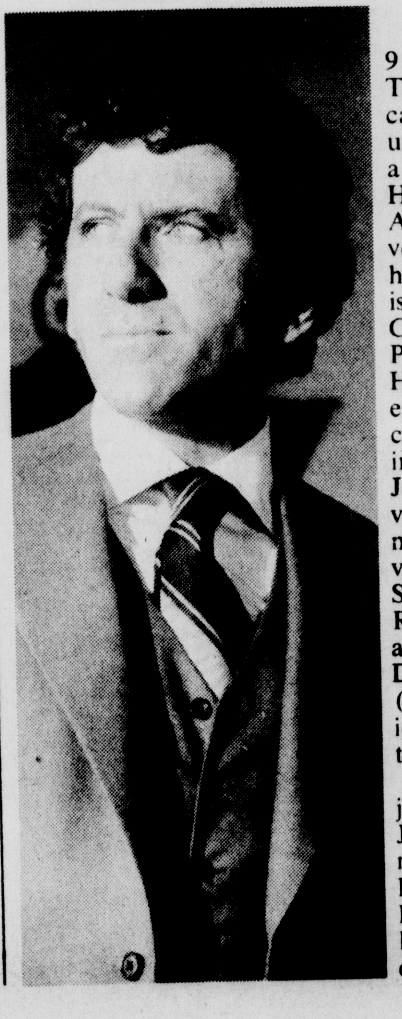
BARRY NEWMAN



"Night Games," which starts at 9:30PM, stars Barry Newman as Tony Petrocelli, a Harvard-educated lawyer who decides to escape urban living for a law practice in a Southwestern cattle town. Susan Howard stars as his wife Patsy and Albert Salmi stars as Petrocelli's investigator Pete Toley. Shortly after his arrival in San Remo, Petrocelli is approached by corporate attorney Clayton Nikell (guest star William Prince) to defend socialite Pauline Hannigan (guest star Stefanie Powers) in a controversial homicide case in which she's accused of killing her husband Dale (guest star Jon Cypher). Petrocelli, conservatively dressed in the western milieu, overcomes—in his unconventional style—obstacles set by Sheriff Dutch Arnbrecht (guest star Ralph Meeker), who resents the arrival of the big-city lawyer, and District Attorney Jaimie Martinez (guest star Henry Darrow), a politically ambitious prosecutor hoping to win fame with a conviction.

The guest cast also includes Anjanette Comer as Jenny Kenadices; Joanna Cameron as Thelma Latimer; and Luke Askew as D.D. Franklin. Co-starring are William Hansen as the coroner; Dennis Patrick as Judge Medford and Robert Emhardt as Judge Ambrose.

'A SIX PART SPECIAL'

Two of British television's best known fictional sleuths will attempt to unravel, perhaps, the most complex and bizzare mystery in the history of crime, as KTTV presents a six part Special, "Jack the Ripper!" The six, consecutive 60 minute Specials will make their debut beginning Monday at 11PM on Metromedia Television's Channel 11, and continue nightly at that time through the following Saturday. They will be hosted by Sabastian Cabot.

Elwyn Jones, Britain's famous detective story writer, teamed with documentary writer John Lloyd to compile the data—combing archives and private collections to present factual evidence, some of which has never before been made public. The BBC Production, then, combining documentary style and dramatic re-enactment, features Alan Stratford-Johns and Frank Windsor as Barlow and Watt, latter-day Holmes and Watson.

Londoners on London is the tenor of "Jack the Ripper." It was ironic that the London Police would turn women loose, from the drunk tanks at midnight, into the foggy alleyways and the embrace of the notorious killer whose victims' deaths defy description. It was sardonic of the world to forget, for an instant, some of the inconsistencies in the case.

'CONTEMPORARY DRAMA'

"Tell Me Where It Hurts," a 90-minute original teleplay by screenwriter Fay Kanin starring Maureen Stapleton and Paul Sorvino, will be seen on GE Theater, Tuesday at 9:30 to 11PM on CBS. Although the film was shot entirely on location in Los Angeles and Santa Monica, California, the settings and background are such that the locale of "Tell Me Where It Hurts" could be set in any city in the United States. The story tackles the subject of mature women needing a change in their daily pattern of living.

"It is not a story," according to Fay Kanin, "about a women's consciousness or movements or activism, or any of the words we have come to recognize in the language of the last four years. It is about women, and the men who are inextricably part of them—lovers, providers, adversaries, friends. The characters are neither symbols nor stereotypes. They are, I hope, only human, hungering for ways to change their lives for the better and inevitably discovering that change is never accomplished without pain."

Maureen Stapleton plays Connie, a middle-aged housewife married to Joe, a taxi driver played by Sorvino. Both are facing the first major decision since their wedding. Others in the cast are Doris Dowling, Rose Gregorio, Louis Latham, Scottie MacGregor, Ayn Ruyman, Pearl Shear and Patricia Smith. All of the performers have at one time appeared on the New York stage, one of the principal reasons they were cast in their parts by Tomorrow Entertainment, Inc. producer Herbert Hirschman.

"I find New York actors less theatrical than Hollywood film players. They don't stress perfect speech when playing ordinary characters. This is a story about ordinary lower middle-class people who aren't too sophisticated. I needed the type of actors who could interpret the characters in the Fay Kanin teleplay as she wrote them. I feel we accomplished this," said Hirschman. Miss Kanin, who two years ago won critical acclaim for her TV film, "Heat of Anger" starring Susan Hayward, believes that "Tell Me Where It Hurts" will be looked upon as one of the most relevant shows about mature married people ever presented on television. The GE Theater production, directed by Paul Bogart, is a story about six married, middle-aged women, all of whom are friends, each sensing something different is needed in her life.

" 'Tell Me Where It Hurts' is in the tradition of 'Marty' or 'Brand New Life,' " says Hirschman, "with its affectionate and meticulous attention to real people and real life. But it is more pertinent in that it deals with an important contemporary movement and is far more relevant to the television audience."

"TELE-TALK"

Like the mythological Icarus, actor Larry Linville is building wings to fly. Unlike the Greek character whose wax wings melted in the heat of the sun, however, Linville's chances of success are considerable. His wings, built of spruce and plywood and covered with fabric, will extend 32.8 feet when attached to the 9.5-foot pod of the glider now taking form in his Van Nuys, Calif. backyard.

Linville, in person, is the antithesis of stuffed-shirt surgeon Maj. Frank Burns, the character he plays on "M*A*S*H" (Saturdays, 8:30PM) on CBS. He has been an acknowledged gliding "freak" from the age of 12. Once he saw a Baby Bowlus sailplane on exhibition at the state fair in his hometown of Sacramento, he was permanently hooked on the sport.

"I carried a lot of newspapers in those days, to earn money for flight lessons with a glider club," he recalls. Taking time out from his hobby, he pursued an engineering course at the University of Colorado, but later resumed soaring while enrolled at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts in London. On weekends, Linville flew a British-built Slingsby from a field in Lasham, Hampshire County.

His current building project was conceived three years ago, in collaboration with Texas Al Backstrom, an F.A.A. engineer. It is a "flying wing" craft with a vertical, but no horizontal, stabilizer.

"Our glider, the 'Super Plane,' will be the smallest, lightest, cheapest and easiest to build sailplane ever assembled," claims Linville. Overall weight of the craft, including aluminum and steel fittings, is expected to be 220 pounds. Its cost is estimated at $500. Linville's wife, Kate Geer, a former actress whose father is Will Geer of "The Waltons" on CBS, is her husband's principal cheerleader. She is so enthusiastic that she intends to take flying lessons. Optimistically, the "Super Plank" should take wing sometime this spring. If successful, the LB-1A, which was originally conceived as a pleasure project by its designers, could prove a moneymaker, with revenues from the sale of plans to would-be builders.

How does an actor approach a role about a real person? Martin Sheen, for one, does it with caution and a sense of tremendous responsibility. "This is the most difficult role I've ever had," he says flatly. "I've never played a real person before and there's a big obligation to do it honestly."

He was referring to his role as Eddie D. Slovik, in "The Execution of Private Slovik." a two-and-a-half-hour World Premiere drama airing on The NBC Wednesday Night Movie at 8:30PM. Sheen said he had no preconceived ideas about whether Slovik—the only American serviceman executed for desertion during World War II—was right or wrong.

"I just played the character as honestly and fully as I could," he said. "I couldn't be too free with my interpretation because I had nothing but the script to use as a guideline as to Eddie's character. Not only was I locked in by the script but by an actual fact. What happened to Eddie is a historic fact.

"I couldn't imitate Slovik. I never met him. I don't know him. I could only play things that relate to him. I interpreted his actions through the words he supposedly spoke and the things he did. I was committed to playing out what happened historically."

Sheen does not judge Slovik but he admits he was moved by him.

"When I first read the script," he said, "I wept at the end."

Four arrested in Calzadilla kidnaping

Two other men, woman still being sought--FBI

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — FBI Director Clarence Kelley Saturday night announced the arrest of a 17-year-old Jersey City, N.J. girl as the fifth suspect in the Wednesday kidnaping of John Calzadilla on Long Island.

Kelley said Maria Margaret Merida, 17, was arrested at her 101 Garrison Ave. residence by Newark, N.J. FBI agents.

HACKENSACK, N.J. (UPI) — The alertness of a young kidnap victim and an informer's tip led to the arrests Saturday of four young Cuban men on abduction charges. Federal investigators said two other men and a young woman were still being sought.

The four suspects, arrested during the night by the FBI, were arraigned and ordered held on bail of between $250,000 and $300,000.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Richard Tanner had asked for bail to be denied, saying: "What concerns me are the rash of kidnapings. The court must give recognition and put on notice that kidnapings will not be dealt with lightly."

All four, who had been in the United States five years or less, were charged with conspiring to kidnap and hold for ramson John Calzadilla, the eight-year-old son of a Cuban-born immigrant of the New York suburb of Dix Hills. Authorities said there appeared to be no political motive behind the abduction.

The boy was kidnaped Wednesday while on his way home from school. He was released unharmed 33 hours later in Secaucus, N.J., after his father, Michael, 38, paid a $50,000 ransom he raised through loans from friends.

Investigators said the ransom had not been recovered.

Those charged with violation of federal kidnaping statutes are Eligio Fernandez, 19; his brother, Norberto, 17; Richard R. Tuero, 17; Wilfredo Alvarez, 18, all of Union City, N.J. The Fernandez brothers lived together and Tuero and Alvarez were roommates.

If convicted, they face up to life jail terms.

According to the complaints filed against them, Tuero and Alvarez admitted "participating in the kidnaping" to the FBI. An investigator said the Fernandez brothers appeared to be the ringleaders.

The FBI said the first real break in the case came from a "confidential source who has furnished reliable information in the past year that has led to approximately 15 arrests." The informant notified agents of a conversation he overheard concerning the abduction.

But the quickness of the arrests was credited to young Calzadilla, who apparently had remained as cool as his abductors throughout the ordeal.

Arrival greeted by jeering crowd

Watergate 'Big 7' plead innocent

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Seven former members of President Nixon's inner circle marched grimly through a jeering crowd outside U.S. District Court Saturday and pleaded innocent to criminal charges in the cover-up of the Watergate scandal.

Two of them, former White House aides John D. Ehrlichman and Charles W. Colson, also pleaded innocent to separate charges stemming from the 1971 Ellsberg break-in. In Ehrlichman's case, the combined charges carry a maximum penalty of 60 years in prison and $95,000 in fines.

Shouts of "sieg heil" and "I hope you get 30 years!" greeted former Attorney General John N. Mitchell as he arrived by taxi for the late-morning arraignment before U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica.

All seven defendants, indicted by the Watergate grand jury eight days ago, said nothing during the seven-minute ceremony except to respond "not guilty" in loud, clear voices when each of their names was read by the court clerk.

Sirica released the seven on personal bond and routinely ordered them to surrender their passports, ask his permission if they wish to leave the country and keep him informed of their whereabouts.

He set May 1 for hearing pretrial motions by any defendant who might seek another trial location, move to have the charges dropped or take any other legal steps before the cover-up trial begins Sept. 9.

Pleading innocent besides Ehrlichman, Colson and Mitchell were former White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman, former Assistant Attorney General Robert C. Mardian, former Haldeman aide Gordon C. Strachan and former Nixon campaign committee lawyer Kenneth W. Parkinson.

Special prosecutor Leon Jaworski, who arrived 15 minutes before the arraignment, went up to Mitchell and Parkinson to shake hands.

"John, how are you? Good to see you again," Jaworski told Mitchell, who is under trial with former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans in New York City in a separate obstruction of justice case.

"Are you in good health?" Mitchell asked Jaworski.

It was the first public reunion of the seven men who once ran the President's 1972 re-election campaign and served him as cabinet members, political advisers, fund raisers or White House aides until Watergate engulfed the administration.

After the arraignment, Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Colson and Strachan chatted quietly for about five minutes in the courtroom. When the group broke up, Haldeman and Ehrlichman —once the closest and most powerful aides to Nixon — sat down together at the defendants' table and held a long, friendly conversation.

Mitchell, pale and unsmiling, took no apparent notice of the crowd of 150 spectators outside the courthouse when he arrived. "Hey stone face!" one yelled. There were signs reading "Free Martha" and "Defend the Constitution —Jail the Traitors."

Police took into custody an unidentified young man wearing striped prison garb, a papier mache Nixon mask and crown of oil company and ITT trademarks when he stepped behind an American flag and began to undress.

All seven were charged with conspiracy in the cover-up and all but Mardian were indicted for obstruction of justice. In addition, Ehrlichman, Haldeman, Mitchell and Strachan were charged with lying to federal investigators.

Word at last from Hearst kidnapers, claim giveaway program inadequate

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Symbionese Liberation Army Saturday sent its fourth communique concerning kidnaped Patricia Heartst, saying she was safe but decrying the inadequacy of the $6 million food giveaway program.

The tape was delivered to FM radio station KSAN in San Francisco, which turned it over to a courier for Randolph A. Hearst, Patricia's father and president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner.

An FBI spokesman said the bureau had no comment and had not heard the tape. A voice on the tape demanded that it not be turned over to the FBI team investigating the kidnaping.

"I am a general in the SLA," said a woman's voice, beginning a lengthy statement that was almost inaudible because of noise on the tape.

The voice said the Hearst empire "aims to divide the people by being deceitful." She said that poor people were being given food intended for animals.

Whether Miss Hearst faces execution or freedom is "totally the responsibility of her family," the woman's voice said. Miss Hearst's voice came on the tape for about 11 minutes, but it too, was almost inaudible. However, she asked her family "not to aid the FBI in their investigation. Only the FBI and certain people can gain anything by my death."

The 20-year-old coed's father told reporters at his Hillsborough home that "I don't think there's any question about it being her voice." He said he wanted to read the tape's transcript before making any statements on its contents.

On the tape, the SLA claimed the FBI wanted to "set up" to be killed, two alleged members of the organization, Russell Little and Joseph Remiro. They are presently in jail charged with the assassination of Oakland school chief Marcus Foster.

Earlier Saturday, Gov. Ronald Reagan urged all Californians to join the Hearts in their long wait by making the weekend a special time of prayer for Patricia's safety.

CLAREMONT — A 26-year-old Pomona man was seriously injured Saturday when his motorcycle collided with a car on Indian Hill Boulevard, at the onramp of the San Bernardino Freeway, and burst into flames.

Kerry Leslie Peterman of 1329 N. Indian Hill Blvd. was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital after the 3 p.m. accident. Hospital officials said he suffered multiple fractures and internal injuries, and was in the intensive care unit.

According to California Highway Patrol reports, an auto driven by Carlos David Lopez, 18, of Rosemead, came off the freeway westbound and struck Peterman's cycle, which was southbound on Indian Hill.

CHP Sgt. L.A. Irwin said the auto and cycle both stopped on the westbound onramp of the freeway. after the collision. Peterman was thrown from the cycle, and it traveled 100 feet before bursting into flames.

Floyd Shaw, operator of a service station near the scene, grabbed a fire extinguisher and put out the blaze. Officers arrived shortly after from the Claremont Highway Patrol office, located close to the intersection.

New diplomatic venture

Memory of Caracas visit doesn't worry Pat Nixon

By SARA FRITZ

WASHINGTON (UPI) — First Lady Pat Nixon says she has no fear about returning on an official visit Monday to Caracas, where 16 years ago she and her husband were mobbed, spat upon and stoned.

Caracas is the first stop on Mrs. Nixon's six-day, 9,195 mile trip to attend the inaugurations of the presidents of Venezuela and Brazil —her third solo diplomatic venture since her husband became President.

Her arrival Monday afternoon was bound to bring back vivid memories of the day in 1958 when she and then-Vice President Nixon were ambushed by angry leftist demonstrators who smashed the windows of their limousines, spat on them and chanted "Death to Nixon."

But Helen Smith, Mrs. Nixon's press secretary, said those memories do not frighten the First Lady.

"She feels that it was not against her," Mrs. Smith said, referring to the 1958 incident. "Relations have improved so much since that time."

Sources in Venezuela said authorities have established strict security measures for the arrival of Mrs. Nixon and dignitaries from 47 other nations, including armed escorts and constant bomb checks at the sites of all ceremonies.

The Secret Service, which will accompany Mrs. Nixon as it always does, said its agents were working with local authorities on security arrangements. But a spokesman added that the precautions would be no more than "the routine security that we utilize for any foreign trip of a First Lady."

After landing at Maiquetia International Airport outside of Caracas, Mrs. Nixon will be taken in a smaller craft to a smaller military base near the U.S. Embassy in Caracas where she will stay. Thus, she will avoid the motor route where she and her husband were mobbed 16 years ago.

In both Caracas and Brazilia, according to Mrs. Smith, the First Lady will issue official statements. But she plans to make no speechees.

Her official party includes only John H. Crimmins, ambassador to Brazil, and Robert McClintock, ambassador to Venezuela.

But a group of some 50 persons also traveling with her will include Lt. Gen. Vernon A. Walters, deputy director of the CIA and a former military attache to Brazil; William R. Codus, assistant chief of protocol at the State Department, and Nicholas Morley, a Miami businessman with interests in Venezuela who is an acquaintance of the Nixons' closest friend, C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo.

Streaker strikes aboard airliner at 30,000 feet

LONDON (UPI) — The first airline streaker struck five miles above the north Atlantic Saturday on a Pan American 747 jumbo jet flight from New York to London, airline officials said.

Passengers on the jet gasped as a young Turk leaped naked from a rear toilet and ran the length of the aircraft and back Pan Am officials said.

The Turk, who wore only a beard and was in his early 30s was not identified by name.

"He was dared to streak through the aircraft by an Englishman who was sitting next to him" a Pan Am hostess on the plane said. "He dashed out of the toilet and ran stark naked the whole length of the aircraft."

"Everyone was flabbergasted and sat in their seats with mouths open. But some people laughed and others cheered."

When he was dressed again the Turk went around the jet with his British companion and collected $500 from passengers for an unnamed charity the airline officials said.

Not Sen. Weicker in fatal air crash

Mr. and Mrs. William Godfrey and two of their five children were killed in the March 2 crash. Godfrey, 41, a Houston bank executive, was the borther of Marie Weicker, the senator's wife.

3 accused in kidnap plot against consul

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A convicted hijacker and two other persons were named Saturday as conspirators in a plot to kidnap a foreign consul general in Los Angeles, the FBI said.

Garrett Brock Trapnell, 36, serving a life sentence for his part in the Jan. 29, 1972 hijacking of a Los Angeles-to-New York jet, was allegedly among those involved in the plot to kidnap an official of "one of the following consulates in Los Angeles: Estonia, Paraguay, Uruguay, Canada, France, Germany, Switzerland or Haiti," the spokesman said.

Maria Theresa Alonzo, 22, was arrested by FBI agents at her Hollywood apartment Saturday. She was charged with conspiring with Trapnell and Robert Bernard Hedberg Jr., 36, to kidnap a consul general as a hostage for their release.

Hedberg and Trapnell are both in Los Angeles County Jail.

The FBI said the conspirators also planned to demand $250,000 and political asylum in Sweden.

Hedberg was arrested on Jan. 29 for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution on a charge of assaulting a police officer with a deadly weapon.

An FBI search of of Miss Alonzo's apartment yielded a tape recorder and a loaded .22 caliber revolver which the FBI said were to be used in the kidnaping.

On Nov. 2, 1971, Miss Alonzo and another woman were arrested for prostitution in Hollywood. At the time of her arrest she had an x-mark on her forehead to signify her sympathy with members of the Charles Manson family convicted of a series of murders in 1969.

Trapnell's hijacking attempt ended when he was shot by an FBI agent posing as a crew member. He demanded $308,000, and the release of Black revolutionary Angela Davis and a prisoner held in a Dallas jail.

Estonia and French consulate officials had "no comment" on the alleged plot.

Officials at the other consulates were not immediately available for comment.

Miss Alonzo, Trapnell and Hedberg are scheduled to be arraigned Monday before a U.S. magistrate on charges of violation of the federal kidnaping statutes. They could be sentenced to life imprisonment if convicted.

Sunny weather is predicted for California 500 today

Clearing skies and sunshine Saturday followed a two-day rainstorm which left well over two inches of rain in the valley and blanketed the mountains in snow.

If today's forecast prevails, the fifth annual California 500 at Ontario Motor Speedway will procede without interruption. A.J. Foyt, who captured the pole position a week ago by running 190.617 miles per hour for a two-lap average, and 176.873 miles per hour in the 40-lap event last Sunday is favored to win.

It seemed the weatherman this week contrived to keep both the racing fans and the winter sports fans happy.

The storm topped off 18 to 20 inches of snow at Mt. Baldy Village where beautiful, sunny weather was reported Saturday. At noon the temperature was 38 degrees and the snow lovers were crowding in.

The ski lifts were in operation and many visitors brought carloads of children to frolic in the snow.

Kennedy's son treated again to avert cancer

BOSTON (UPI) — The 12-year-old son of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy entered Boston's Children's Hospital late Friday for anti-cancer drug treatments in hopes of insuring that the bone cancer which caused amputation of his right leg will not recur.

Senator Kennedy brought his son to the hospital early Friday evening.

A spokesman in Kennedy's office in Washington said visits would be "routine and predictable" every third weekend for an indefinite period.

Young Edward Kennedy Jr. will be released Monday, a hospital spokesman said.

The hospital and the boy's doctors have found no evidence the cancer has recurred. The drug treatments are aimed at improving the odds of the boy escaping a recurrence.

Doctors were quoted as saying there was an 80 per cent chance for a complete cure.

Doctors said young Kennedy would be administered a dose of the anticancer drug methotrexate at a rate 2,000 times normal on each of his hospital visits. This will be followed by injections of a second drug to prevent poisonous side effects.

Congressman calls for probe of oil antitrust violations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Jerome Waldie, D-Calif., said Saturday the country's five biggest petroleum companies are violating antitrust laws by holding back on gasoline production in order to drive prices up and he wants an investigation.

In a statement, Waldie said he will ask the House Judiciary Committee to begin investigating Exxon, Mobil, Texaco, Gulf Oil and Standard Oil of California.

He also asked California Attorney General Evelle Younger to file suits against the firms.

Waldie based his charges on statistics published in Oil and Gas Journal, an industry trade publication, which he said show that while oil imports into the United States are up from a year ago, gasoline production is actually less.

The figures, Waldie said, indicate 12.8 million barrels of crude oil were produced or imported in this country during the week of Feb. 8.

Other figures in the same publication show the industry only refined 6 million barrels of gasoline that week, Waldie said.

"If all that crude had been refined it would have produced 6.4 million barrels of gasoline ," he said.

"It is curious that the point-4 million-barrel difference is almost precisely the amount of our current shortfall in gasoline production claimed by the Federal Energy Office."

EMPTY HOUSE BLAZE

Fistfight ends in gun drawn, robbery of $30

POMONA — Police today were looking for a 23-year-old Pomona man who allegedly robbed another man of $30 after enticing him into a fight.

Samuel L. Wauls, 21, of 1317 Fremont St., told officers he was called early Saturday morning to a residence at 2117 W. Orange Grove Ave. by the suspect, Stills Williams.

Williams allegedly asked the victim to step outside, and they became embroiled in an argument, officers added. The suspect claimed Wauls had refused to give him a ride to another location.

Wauls, who suffered a cut lip during the altercation, said Williams picked up $30 in cash which the victim dropped by accident. Williams allegedly drew a gun, told the victim to stand back, then fled on foot.

175 attend Chino meeting

All-year school opposition forms

By MAE TATE
P-B Staff Writer

CHINO — A multitude of objections to the year-round school were debated and formal opposition was crystallaized by the 175 persons who attended a meeting at Newman School.

A citizens' committee consisting of Bob Miller, La Rae Scott, Frances Carlson, Coralee Knight, Barbara Ellsworth and two school district employes called the meeting. Although parents were in the majority, a spattering of teachers from Chino High School were also in the audience.

Petitions will soon begin to circulate throughout the school district boundaries as parents attempt to gain what they consider personal rights that have been denied by "hasty" extension of the year-round program to all district campuses except Chino High School and one undetermined kindergarten through eighth grade school.

All present, except possibly board member Al McCombs and his wife, Gretchen, protested the Feb. 8 action of the board to extend the program beginning July 8. It was noted that in the original board action of June 26, 1973, establishing the pilot programs at Walnut Elementary and Magnolia Junior high schools, the board stated year-round school would not be extended until a full year had passed for evaluation.

The pilot programs have operated for about seven months now.

In moderating the meeting, Mrs. Ellsworth asked that a three-minute limit and common coutesies be observed.

"We are not intent on rehashing. We're here to evaluate new information. We want to know the facts and get down to basics. And we intend to act," she stated.

Marsha Gans, a Marshall School parent, cited large class sizes at Walnut while other school classrooms sit vacant, the improper testing of children that makes comparision to other years' performance difficult, the "babysitting" quality of intersession classes and the difficulty in assessing level of achievement as reasons for her opposition.

Theresa Preciado reported she contacted Rowland school board member Louis Guzman to discover how that district had handled year-round schooling. Guzman, a proponent of the new program, said that each school and parent were polled and the board decided that if a 70 per cent opposition factor was determined, the plan would be shelved.

The Rowland district's poll revealed 65 per cent of parents against the plan and shelved it.

Grace Almadarez, an El Rancho School parent, said parents there were intimidated to support the plan. They were told to either select year-round program for El Rancho or become the only traditional school for the entire district with elementary and junior high students together.

Allen Christiansen, a teacher and scientist, labeled the plan "an abrupt departure in educational thought and tradition." He added "I am always alarmed when I see someone try to prove something from too few facts."

"The district never answers questions to the satisfaction of the public. Parents go away feeling frustrated. The administration has not done its homework. The program probably can work, but we need more homework before it is implemented," said Francis Carlson.

Fay Lamb, a parent of students at the pilot schools, mentioned the sporadic nature of the fourth attendance group. "They're in three weeks, out four weeks, in four weeks, out four weeks. They've never been in school for nine straight weeks," she said.

Miller stated that he had been a "proponent of year-round school since 1950 and am now somewhat embarrassed that the first time it comes along, I have to oppose it. There has not been sufficient planning or communication with the public."

Lynn Jessup said there had not been consideration of the students in the board's final decision. "Were the students created for the schools or were the schools created for the students?" he asked.

Following comments from the floor, Mrs. Ellsworth circulated explanations of the petition for opposition. Reasons presented included misrepresentation of community and district employes' feelings to the public; incomplete and misleading evaluation and presentation of pilot program results; unexplained and undocumented reversal of June 26, 1973, board decision; undue haste in forcing district families to choose between year-round school and the single traditional school; and inadequate presentation of alternatives.

Mrs. Ellsworth also reported that legal counsel is beginning a process of appeal through the courts and that recall could be considered if the public so desired.

"If we are to continue, you've got to help us. We need strength, time and effort. If you want to have your voices heard, get together," she concluded.

Most of those present took petitions to circulate throughout the community. Others signed up to do volunteer work for the committee in the areas of finance, telephoning and evaluation of comments and feedback.

Water district goes electronic

Walnut will get precise, swift readings on supply

WALNUT — Space-age science, with a $49,000 price tag, has come to the Walnut Valley Water District.

Installation and hook-up is nearly completed on the district's new telemetry equipment—electronic machines which make and record measurements from a distance. With the new units, according to Asst. Manager Jock Reid, the district has precise, head-office control over its five reservoirs and two pumping stations.

The equipment will not only end an era of "eyeball" measurements, says Reid, but will make it possible even for secretaries in the main office at 271 S. Brea Canyon Road to take readings when necessary. Reid said the new system will bolster the quality of the district's service and help save on already-minimal water losses.

Part of master plan

Part of a 10-year master plan followed by the district, the new system has been anticipated for several years. Actual work began in early 1973. Dover Industries of the City of Industry designed and built the equipment, at a cost of $37,000 for purchase and $12,000 for installation.

Dover used several new design techniques in manufacturing the district's unit and now brings customers to the office to show off the units.

Until the units were installed, the district had a field man who spent nearly a half-day every day visiting each of the reservoirs and pumping stations taking readings from charts and meters at each site. This data was relayed by radio or telephone to be placed on master charts at the head office.

When an emergency required new readings or adjustments to controls, field men were dispatched to the site. With telemetry, said Reid, both meters and controls are right at hand—and an alarm system automatically warns the staff, day or night, when something has gone awry. No jobs are lost to automation, he said.

19 Units

Nineteen different units, color-coded to identify the stations connected to them, handle such tasks as measuring the depth of water in the reservoirs, how fast the water is entering and leaving storage tanks, air temperature, water demand at various locations, and so forth. Ultimately the district can have 36 control "modules" in the three large banks of equipment at the head office.

At the reservoirs, similar controls and charts follow the workings of pumps and lines. A sonar device mounted in the top of the reservoirs replaces the previous floats used to measure the depth of water in storage.

With about 9,500 residences drawing water from the district, either directly or through wholesale delivery to contracting water companies, precise control over supply and storage is vital to the district, said Reid.

200-300 miles of line

He pointed out the district has some 200 to 300 miles of water lines serving a capricious public. "When the day is hot," he said through a thick Scottish burr, "our usage will skyrocket—people water their lawns, wash their cars . . . Then the next day might be cold, or it could rain that night, and unless we compensate for a reduced demand we would have water running out our ears."

Water is delivered to the district from a Metropolitan Water District storage center in La Verne via a 48-inch main. To make sure there is a minimum amount of water in storage to meet normal demands, nearly 7 million gallons flows daily into the tanks, plus whatever over that is required. If 12,000 gallons per minute are coming into the tanks and only 6,000 gallons per minute are flowing out, the district has big problems.

Reid said he is required to give MWD 12 hours' notice whenever he plans to alter intake from the supplier by more than 10 per cent. Only in cases of extreme emergency—a large fire, for example—can he break this rule. So when demand is expected to drop off rapidly, the new equipment not only offers accurate, instant data, it also can be set to automatically operate valves on the mains. "I used to have to come down here at midnight to change the flows," he said, "but now I'll get to have my sleep."

Reid spoke proudly of the district's "phenomenal" record in matching supply with demand. He explained that there is always some loss of water in a system, and that costs to taxpayers of the district are affected by water used somehow but not paid for.

Using the old eyeball methods, the district has an average water loss of 4¼ per cent. Most systems consider a 10 per cent loss ratio very good, said Reid. With the new equipment he expects to continue and possibly improve the Walnut outfit's record.

Ultimately, Reid sees telemetry doing a task now performed by geologists using spotty data—measuring the flow of water into and out of underground channels. When that day comes, he said, the district will be able to follow precisely percolation of surface water to recharge underground supply, as well as follow the course of water flowing from the Chino Basin to the Puente Hills Basin and out into the San Gabriel Basin.

The 21-year-old Cal Poly senior is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Buchanan of Claremont. She was a 1970 graduate of Claremont High School.

Besides winning the pageant, Miss Buchanan was the recipient of Miss Congeniality award. She will receive $550 in scholarships and will represent the Pomona Valley in the Miss California contest in Santa Cruz this summer.

The first runner-up in the competition was Linda Mattier, 20, of West Covina. Other runners-up were Robyn Whitney, Judy Stallings and Debra Solle.

Shooting victim's condition is 'poor'

ONTARIO — The victim of a shooting at the Friendly Corners Bar early Saturday morning was listed in poor condition at San Antonio Community Hospital.

Hernandez told police that his assailant became angry with him for no apparent reason and when they both left the bar, the man pulled a gun and started shooting as they reached the parking lot of the bar at Bon View Avenue and California Boulevard.

His assailant is described as a Negro, 5-foot-6, medium build with black hair and brown eyes.

Support given landscape plan in Claremont

CLAREMONT — The city Parkway-Tree Commission has recommended to the City Council that the landscaping master plan for the new city yard-police complex be adopted, and that the street tree in front of the police station on the south side of Bonita Avenue be designated as Coast Redwood.

The commission vote was 5-1 with dissenting member Jere French claiming that the redwood and the Victorian box tree, the designated tree for Cornell Avenue, won't mix well.

The landscaping plan calls for redwood trees, prostrate and golden junipers with lily of the Nile and annuals to accent specific areas. Coast redwood will also be planted on Berkeley Avenue, next to the station.

The commission chose redwood because the architectural firm Criley-McDowell and Associates, has used earth-tone, split-face block for thecperimeter wall, and has designated earth-tone buildings accented by dark stained wood.

The commission also has recommended that the council deny a request by Mr. and Mrs. Howard Godlis, 630 Purdue Drive, that a Formose sweet gum not be planted in their front yard.

A purple leaf plum tree was uprooted in the Godlises' front yard during a windstorm last year, and the Godlises have requested that the missing tree be replaced with a similar tree or not at all.

The commission feels that deletion of the street tree could set a precedent and lead to more requests for other trees.

Bicycling club is organized

Cycling enthusiasts have a club of their own in the Pomona Valley, with the informal establishment of the Foothill Freewheelers.

Founding Freewheeler Phil Norton said an organizational meeting held in February ended with a decision not to impose much of a structure on the club.

Twice monthly the group will gather in the parking lot of Montclair Plaza, south of Farrrell's Ice Cream Parlour, to take short and medium bike rides interrupted by a gathering for lunch along the way. Most short rides on the first and third Sundays of the month will cover about 10 miles, said Norton, while the medium rides will be 20 to 25 miles long.

Next ride by the club will be March 19. In April, said Norton, the club will hold its regular rides plus one on the second Sunday in conjunction with the Los Angeles Wheelmen.

Every other month the group will hold a "ride planning meeting." One such session will take place April 9 at Norton's home at 505 California Drive, Claremont. No time is set for the session.

No turnstile justice' for him, says judge in Citrus court race

WEST COVINA — Stating that "turnstyle justice will never have a place in his courtroom," Judge Wintrop Johnson, presiding judge of the Citrus Munnicipal Court, says he will seek another term in office.

Judge Johnson has served the court for more than 14 years. He was elected by his fellow judges to a fourth term as presiding judge this year.

"Having resided in this valley continuously for 28 years, more than half of which I have served on the local bench, I am in close touch with the people of this judicial district and thoroughly aware of the various problems in its respective areas," the judge said.

"I feel strongly that each defendant who comes before me also presents an individual problem which deserves its own experienced consideration and supervision to prevent him from coming back again and enabling him to become a useful citizen."

JUDGE WINTHROP JOHNSON

The judge said he recognizes that "turnstyle justice" does exist but that it will never have a place in his courtroom.

He said his interest in tailoring justice to meet both the human and societal needs has made him instrumental in such innovations as the county work-furlough program which allows jailed offenders to be released from custody during work hours.

"This keeps their families off welfare rolls while serving out their sentences. The program provides that the defendants' paychecks be sent to the county and the cost of keeping the prisoner in custody is deducted before the balance is transmitted to his family."

Judge Johnson spearheaded a program for adequate expansion of the Citrus court facility that enabled the system to stay abreast with the district's growth.

On six different occasions he was selected by the Pomona Valley Bar Association to serve as a delegate to the Conference of State Bar Delegates.

He is a former president of the Pomona Valley Bar Association and initiated the first provision for legal aid service in this area.

Glen Campbell builds his $2 million dream house

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Country boy Glen Campbell has built a home atop a Hollywood mountain that is the grandest of them all.

Already it is being called San Simeon South, Taj Mahal West and Buckingham Americana. Four years abuilding, and still not quite complete, Campbell's home cost nearer $2 million than $1 million.

It is glass and wood and stone with sweeping vistas of Southern California. There is nothing about the place to remind Glen of Delight, Ark., where he was reared, the seventh son in a family of 12 children.

Glen sleepily led the way through his mansion, proud in his own quiet way, of the richness of the surroundings, the highly polished woods, the chandeliers imported from England and Italy.

"I really didn't have much to do with the house," he said. "My wife Billie worked with the architect for months. And then she and the decorator spent a couple of years planning and shopping and buying things.

"I didn't want to get mixed up with the details and wind up with an ulcer. But sure enough, Billie got an ulcer a few months ago and spent four days in the hospital."

Glen said there were 17,000 square feet in the house. He's not quite sure how many rooms there are. All are spacious and airy. The ceilings rise 12 feet high except in the living room and game rooms which soar 35 feet to four-foot beams of laminated oak.

"I like these floors," Glen said. They are parquet, carved oak squares individually laid by hand.

There is a projection room, wine cellar, fur coat storage area, an English country pub with hand-carved bar, and an atrium with a waterfall and exotic trees and plants.

"It keeps things light and bright and cheerful," said Glen.

The children's wing — for Kane, 5; Travis, 8; and Kelly, 12—includes a large game room. The carpet is woven of game boards for checkers, backgamon, Chinese checkers and the like. There is also a bumper pool table and other diversions.

Glen has his own gymnasium —with steam bath—just outside his bedroom filled with the latest in exercise equipment.

Billie's kitchen of red brick tile and richly accented woods is as distinctive as any ever built. It is enormous, and looks out on a swimming pool.

The pool is an immense freeform, rock-walled beauty fed by an elaborate waterfall. Swimmers have a panoramic view of the San Fernando Valley.

Near the pool is a putting green of astroturf. And Glen can drive golfballs into a deep, unoccupied canyon from a tee a few feet away. Flanking the pool is a barbecue area complete with gas grills, refrigerator and comfortable furniture.

On the other side of the house —which sits on seven acres—is a championship tennis court and a pavilion, the latter equipped with refreshment facilities.

A quarter-mile driveway leads to Glen's secluded home. The gates, imported from a castle outside London, weigh six tons. The cost to ship them here boggles the imagination.

But the gates seem only fitting when Billie drives her latest gift from her husband through the portals. It is the only Cadillac Eldorado station wagon in these parts.

If everything about the house has been done on a lavish scale, it also has been accomplished tastefully. Glen's house has enormous warmth and charm.

It has just one drawback. The neighborhood. The Campbell house looks down on Frank Sinatra's place.

Dr. Sabin cites cancer link with environment

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The developer of the oral polio vaccine said recently that since some types of cancer are more prevalent in certain parts of the world, "85 to 90 per cent" of all cancer cases might be prevented by making environmental changes.

"Environmental factors are of the greatest importance" in cancer, said Dr. Albert Sabin, who has been doing cancer research for the past 13 years. "Our way of life needs to be carefully studied.

"If we cut out cigarette smoking we could cut lung cancer dramatically. Smoking definitely causes cancer."

Sabin said development of the polio vaccine was "simple" compared with the problem presented by cancer.

"We must find out why cancer of the stomach is different in Japan, which has a very low incidence, and in the United States, where the incidence is high," he said.

Found new fame in 'Irene'

Jane Powell almost lost chance for second stardom

By DAVID DUGAS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jane Powell is the first to admit she was becoming a candidate for a "Whatever happened to?" story until she replaced Debbie Reynolds in the Broadway musical hit "Irene."

It's been 30 years since she left Portland, Ore., for Hollywood and her first movie, "Song Of the Open Road." She had hardly even heard of her costar, W.C. Fields.

"We had only one scene together and I don't remember what it was," she said with a laugh during a recent interview. "It wasn't on paper. My lines were, but his weren't. I was 14 and had never ad libbed in my life. I just said what I was supposed to say and hoped it came out all right."

Miss Powell went on to become one of Hollywood's most popular singing stars but quit the movies 15 years ago. "Nobody wanted me," she said.

"Irene," her Broadway debut, could change that.

Almost 45

"My agent just called me one day. Then Debbie called," Jane said. "My family talked me into it and I'm glad they did. If it weren't for them I'd still be at home."

Dressed for a winter's day in a bright red turtleneck and skirt with matching turban, she was as slim and trim as in those MGM days when Louis B. Mayer kept thinking she still was 14. There are lines around those blue eyes now but Jane Powell doesn't look as if she'll be 45 on April Fools Day.

Since quitting the movies she has raised three children. She has been married to her manager and third husband, Jim Fitzgerald, for eight years.

She's done night clubs and summer tours in stage musicals and made occasional appearances on television, including a dramatic role in a TV movie last year.

Youngest daughter Lindsey, an 18-year-old Los Angeles high school senior with business ambitions of her own, visited for her mother's opening night. And Fitzgerald's business brings him to New York periodically. Otherwise the actress has her two miniature poodles for company in her rented New York townhouse.

Logical replacement

Debbie Reynolds had taken "Irene" and turned the 54-year-old musical into Broadway's hottest ticket, making her a tough act to follow. But it's hard to think of a more logical replacement than Jane Powell.

Both actresses began their careers in Hollywood musicals. In one of her first pictures, "Two Weeks With Love," Debbie played Jane's younger sister.

"In movies I always played the same girl," Miss Powell said. "At MGM they said 'Never change' and I didn't. I was exactly the same person every time. You know, 'Stay as sweet as you are.'

"I was just so sickening I couldn't stand it, but I didn't want to disappoint anybody so I always said 'Yes, sir' and 'No, sir.'"

Ugga-boo

At age 25, then a divorced mother of two, Miss Powell still was being cast in roles identical to those she'd played at 14. She quit her MGM contract and made a couple of movies elsewhere, her first nonsinging roles in 15 years of Hollywood stardom. In "Enchanted Island" she played a blue-eyed native girl with Dana Andrews.

"Ugga-boo, ugga-boo-boo-ugga. That sort of thing," she said. "I never did that again. I took the part because the script was good and I got to die in the end. But they wouldn't let me die. They said my fans wouldn't let me. I said—well, I won't tell you what I said. But I thought it was so corny." It was her last picture.

Taking over "Irene" from Miss Reynolds was not without trauma. Ten days before her Broadway opening night, director Gower Champion left the show. She had worked with him at MGM and expected he would help her by staying with the show after Miss Reynold's departure.

More love story

"Basically I think I make it more of a love story," Miss Powell said. "I don't sing the songs as fast as Debbie did. I'm not as much of a clown as Debbie. I play it straighter than she did."

Miss Powell's contract calls for her to stay with "Irene" until September. Then she expects to go home to California and the Spanish-style house she and her husband recently bought in Bel Air.

If there is one thing she doesn't love about being a Broadway star it's the hours.

"I'm not a night person," she said. "I get to bed fairly early. I know that's a bit different from most people in the theater but I don't function that way. I like the daytime too much.

"I talked to Debbie last night and she said, 'Thank heaven I'm not working.'"

From drug companies, say salesmen

Doctors' gifts told

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The medications your doctor prescribes may be influenced by gifts from drug company salesmen such as color television sets and home freezers, Congress was told this week.

The pharmaceutical manufacturers also shower down their blandishments at drug stores to assure that the prescribed drugs will be stocked, some former drug salesmen testified at a Senate Health subcommittee hearing.

The subcommittee chairman, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said he plans to hear testimony from eight company presidents next week.

"If the patents of this country were getting only the drugs they needed in the appropriate dosages, then this hearing would not be held," Kennedy said in a statement.

He said the situation described by the former salesmen is improper promotion that "smacks of payola."

Bennett Wasserman, 26, a senior at Hofstra Law School, told the subcommittee he had been a "detailman" for 27 months for Merck, Sharp & Dohme. He charged that the "evils of the pharmaceutical marketing system" lead to a greater emphasis on "selling" drugs to doctors and pharmacists than warning them of the drugs' side effects.

"His (the detailman's), misinformation to the customer —the physician —regarding his products may result in physical injury, pain, suffering, even death to the ultimate consumer —the patient," Wasserman testified.

Another witness said: "During the time period when you have very limited time to see the physician, we tried to emphasize the good effects of a particular drug, and there was a tendency not to have time to point out the adverse effects of the particular drug." The witness, Douglas J. Patton, 33, a former salesman for Eaton Laboratories, added:

"There are other ways ... to impress upon the doctor on using the drugs. Some of these methods were giving them gifts, gimmicks —tickets to sporting events, golf balls, golf tees, rain hats, etc."

The more purchases by a doctor, the better price he could pick in one sales promotion, according to Spencer King, 31, of Towson, Md., formerly of Pfizer, Inc. The prizes included home freezers, color television sets, tape recorders and physician bags, he said.

New Aerogramme for NATO birth

By GUSTAV DETJEN JR.

The U.S. Postal Service announced the design of a new aerogramme commemorating the 25th anniversary of the signing of the North Atlantic Treaty and establishment of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The 18-cent air letter is to be used for use when the new international postal rates become effective March 2.

The North Atlantic Treaty has been one of the U.S.'s most important alliances. It initiated a quarter of a century of peace and security in the Atlantic community through collective self-defense. It has also provided for continuing joint action among its members in the political, economic, social and environmental fields.

The design is a Compass Rose, NATO's symbol that its member nations are steering toward peace. A white circle around the star stands for unity and the blue background stands for the Atlantic Ocean. Blue and white are NATO's official colors.

First day of issue ceremonies will be held in Washington on April 4, the 25th anniversary. Collectors who want first-day cancellations should send requests to "NATO Aerogramme, Postmaster, Washington, D.C. 20013," with payment of 18 cents for each aerogramme wanted. They will be sent under separate cover if you also send your own mailing labels.

"Nature and Environment" is the theme of three 25 cent stamps issued by the Netherlands on Feb. 19. The vertically arranged stamps are printed side-by-side (se-tenant) on the same sheet, a novel formal that emphasizes the interconnection between the different aspects of nature protection.

The design of the stamp on the extreme left shows a bird of prey in flight. The text reads "Vogelbescherming" which means Protection of Birds and marks also the 75th anniversaryof the Netherlands Association for the Protection of Birds.

The center stamp features a tree and represents the Iseful work being done by the State Forestry Service which also observes its 75th anniversary this year. The Dutch legend reads: Staatsbosbeheer which means State Forestry.

The pattern of the tree branches is continued on the third stamp which also depicts the peacefulness of nature and underwater fauna by means of a fisherman and a froh. The text reads: Naturr an Milieu" which translates into Nature and Environment.

Colors of the stamps are deep ultramarine, blue, azure, sea-green, moss-green and black.

As the first of its Nature Conservation Series, Japan will issue a 20-yen stamp depicting an Iriomote Jungle Cat. The stamp will be issued March 25. Information on this issue and older and future ones from Philatelic Agency, Tokyo Central Post Office, Tokyo 100, Japan.

The Canada Post Office has come out with marked improvement the first day cover cancellations. Beginning with the Pacific Coast Indian stamp issue, special cancellation dies will complement the theme of each stamp. In the case of the Feb. 22 issue the cancellation features a stylized teepee. Canadian First Day Covers and information on new issues available from Philatelic Service, Canada Post Office, Ottawa, Ont. K1A 0B5, Canada.

The Franklin D. Roosevelt Philatelic Society, devoted to the collecting of Roosevelt stamps, will hold its annual meeting in the Loire, American Hotel, 52nd St. and 7th Ave., New York City, on Sunday, March 24, 4 p.m. Information on the activities of this group from the FDRPS, Box 150, Clinton Corners, N.Y. 12514.

Three life times of research are represented in the newly published 1974 A.T.A. Handbook No. 82 "Birds of the World on Stamps." Under an original professionally designed cover based on the 5 cent U.S. Audubon "Jays" stamp, birds by order and family name (including English and Latin names), country, Scott catalog number, year of issue and value, provide easy identification with or without catalogs. The stamps are also listed alphabetically. Scott and Non-Scott stamps are listed. 236 bird stamps issuing entities are included and 1,063 species are shown. There are seven pages of representative stamps illustrated. 104 pages. Priced at $6, but introductory orders are filled at only $5. Order from American Topical Association, 3308-D North 50th St., Milwaukee, Wis. 53216.

Vitamin 'E' Discovery Offers Fast Weight Loss

HOLLYWOOD (Special) — New scientific discoveries have produced a Vitamin E diet that quickly works wonders on overweight people, and reportedly is gaining great popularity across the country with glowing reports of easy weight loss "while still eating almost as much as you want."

Those who follow the simple Vitamin E diet report an average loss of at least a pound a day and even more without exercise or starvation. Nutritionists' files are bulging with happy testimonials from formerly overweight people who are now trim and slim again. Best of all, you can still eat almost as much as you want of the "forbidden foods" like steak, chicken, fish, sauces, gravies, bacon & eggs and still lose weight.

Chewable (candy-like vitamin E tablets, as used in the diet plan, contain a new scientific combination of ingredients that guickly curbs and controls the appetite, while also giving the wonderous benefits of Vitamin E which is so essential to good health.

The use of the new Vitamin E Diet tablets and foods prescribed in the plan will, through natural action, act to help your body use up excess fat. According to recent clinical test, a person who is deficient in Vitamin E or Protein "will double the speed of fat utilization" with the use of Vitamin E.

Rx for overweight: a handcraft hobby

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Are you overweight? Try taking up a handcraft hobby to keep your hands and mind busy and away from food.

Dr. L. Melvin Elting, an osteopathic physician in Teaneck, N.J., said many "compulsive eaters" eat out of habit as a background to whatever they may be doing regardless of their interest in food. They don't really taste what they're eating or even realize what they are doing.

"To try to break this insidious pattern, I insist my patients take up a hobby or, rather, I insist that they change their unconscious hobby, food, to almost any other one they can do with their hands," Elting said in a report in the current issue of the journal, Obesity and Bariatric Medicine.

"Since hands must be actively involved, the handcrafts become the logical choice, and many of my formerly fat patients have become happily involved in macrame, mosaics, woodworking, stained glass and, my own choice, metalworking in brass or silver."

He said metal working appears to be specifically suited for persons with a weight problem because it keeps them moving and requires standing as well as sitting.

"While the overweight individual may scarcely appreciate this fact at first, it is a psychological first step toward getting him into a pattern of doing something other than eating while standing," Elting said. "While most fat people take their 'three squares' a day sitting down, they do a considerable amount of between meals eating standing up."

He said a handcraft for overweight people must be something that can be worked at continously for a few minutes or a few hours, but not something that must be completed immediately. Elting said if an obese person feels he must finish a project quickly, "he never will complete it. He'll eat instead."

To be successful, Elting said the hobby should not cost too much because, "no matter how much the obese person spends on food, he will be quick to notice any large amounts of money he has to spend on therapy."

"And a handcraft-hobby should be fun," he said. "That's the whole point of it. At best it can be a family affair with everyone joining in and relaxing together. If this is not possible, certainly it should provide for the obese individual not so much a therapy as a relaxation and pleasure far greater than food."

Elting said another advantage of metal working and many other handcrafts is that they keep the individual's hands dirty while he is working.

"Few individuals, no matter how unbounded their appetities, will care to handle food with grimy hands. Finger or snack foods are especially disqualified — and these, of course, are just the ones most conveniently at hand. Since most people become fat by convenience, that is the ability to have a piece of food at the slightest excuse with the least amount of effort, they are now faced with the necessity of providing an effort (washing their hands) before they can eat," he said.

The federal court suit charges that the agency is run by and for blacks and discriminates against Mexican-Americans. The suit alleges that the agency discriminates in its hiring and promotion policies as well as its distribution of funds.

LOS ANGELES — An exhibition of 52 masterpieces of Chinese painting from the collection of scholar-collector James Cahill will open March 19 in the Ahmanson Gallery of the county Museum of Art.

The exhibition will be presented in two parts: "Chinese Paintings of the Yuan and Ming Dynasties" from March 19 to April 21 and "Chinese Paintings of the Ch'ing Dynasty" from April 27 to June 2.

The Cahill collection is particularly strong in paintings of the Ming (1368-1644) and Ch'ing (1644-1911) Dynasties, but also includes works from the Yuan Dynasty such as the landscape, "Wind and Snow in Pines and Firs," by Kuo Min. From the Ming and Ch'ing Dynasties are the Che School works of Wu Wei and Chang Lu, as well as orthodox paintings of the Wu School such as a mountain landscape by Wen Chia, drawn with delicate brush strokes and refined detail.

The breadth and scope of literati painting which exemplified Chinese humanistic ideals is revealed through works by such orthodox masters as Wang Chien and Wang Hui. In contrast to these artists are the eccentric works of individualists such as Shih-t'ao and the masters of Yang-Chou who, with bold and whimsical imagery and spontaneous use of brush and ink, shattered the conventions of academic art.

The exhibition presents a broad range of works including landcapes, figures, and bird-and-flower paintings executed with strong linear brush strokes, and subtle washes of ink on silk or paper.

Cahill, professor of Oriental art history at the UC Berkeley, has gradually acquired these works since his days as a young art history student. Equipped with a sensitive eye, vast knowledge and an adventurous spirit, he would seek unrecognized masterpieces and unique works by noted artists.

In conjunction with the exhibition, two free lectures will be offered in the Leo S. Bing Theater. The first will be given by Cahill who will speak on "Reflections of a Scholar-Collector of Chinese Painting" on March 31 at 2 p.m. and the second titled "Chinese Paintings from the Ch'ing Dynasty" will be given on April 28 at 2 p.m. by Professor Chu-tsing Li, professor of Oriental art history at the University of Kansas and research curator at the William Rockhill Nelson Gallery of Kansas City.

A free brochure prepared by George Kuwayama, senior curator of Far Eastern art is available, and guided tours are offered Thursdays at 12:30 p.m. The exhibition can be seen Tuesday through Friday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and weekends 10 a.m. to 6 pm. Admission is free.

Squid demand is on the rise

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The multitudinous squid, rubbery creatures that spawn by the billions at the bottom of the sea, may move from delicacy to protein source on America's menu.

Even though few Americans have developed a taste for the 10-armed mollusks, demand is rising fast, mostly for export.

Greeks, Italians, Portuguese, Chinese and Japanese regard squid as a favorite food, and restaurants offer it here. Otherwise, Americans have shown little interest in squid except as fish bait.

"But they will before long—they'll be an important source of protein one of these days," according the Forrest Zielke of Royal Pacific Seafood Co.

"The trouble with Americans is they'll eat squid in restaurants but not at home because they don't know how to prepare it," he said.

People who do eat squid pay about 50 cents a pound retail at San Diego's fish markets, and dealers speculate most of what they sell goes into Greek and Italian dishes.

Royal Pacific, one of three firms which pack squid here, freezes it for shipment and can process up to 20,000 pounds a day. Most of it goes to the Orient.

Zielke said daily catches run as high as 8,000 pounds, and the port has become a major west coast center for handling squid. Three years ago, the port did not report measurable squid landings.

In the past, the squid boats went into San Pedro and Monterey but there are a lot of boats operating here this year," John Barry, a fish and game department warden who checks incoming loads, said. "There must be at least seven to 10 different boats making landings here now."

Squid, related to abalone, clams and other shellfish, have only vestigal shells and can be regarded as being nearly all meat. They can be cooked several ways and often are used in soups.

The taste is pronounced but not fishy, something like abalone, and the texture is firm to tough.

Squid taken off the Southdern California coast run about a foot long, counting the arms that surround the mouth, but a giant variety weighing up to 70 pounds apiece has been caught in tuna fishing areas off Central America.

"We're just setting up a monitoring program now," Ray Ally, marine biologist for the California Fish and Game Department at the research center at Long Beach, said. "Very little is known about what happens to them between spawning and hatching."

The department regards squid as an underfished natural resource, and the state is starting a research program to learn more about it as a possible major economic factor.

Fishing methods vary. Instead of bait, bright lights are dropped into the water during darkness to attract the squid.

On smaller boats, they are taken aboard with hand nets, but more sophisticated fishermen use a large hose that sucks the squid up like a vacuum cleaner.

One problem is season availability. Zielke said the habits of squid restrict fishing to a few months out of the year.

LORD HIGH ADMIRAL — Oregon State Atty. Gen. Lee Johnson holds spyglass as he made an appearance at Dorchester Conference recently in Seaside, Ore., in uniform of Lord High Admiral of the Oregon Navy. Johnson wore the uniform, his old Navy outfit, to show that he was prepared to enforce law recently passed in Oregon placing a 50-mile limit for fishing off the Oregon coast.

McCall in spotlight over action program

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — When faced with a problem, Oregon's Gov. Tom McCall says the best policy "is to do something, almost anything."

In the process of doing things, McCall has attracted a degree of national attention unusual for the governor of a small state tucked away in the shadow of California.

Republican McCall, 60, has even managed to turn his lame duck administration into a slightly serious campaign for the U. S. presidency as the candidate of a "third force."

Most recently, McCall's doings have put Oregon on a voluntary but fairly effective gas purchase plan that has been adopted by several other states and which is seen by federal energy officials as a means of averting coupon-type national gas rationing.

McCall put Oregon in the forefront of the energy conservation effort last fall by first asking, then ordering, businesses to turn off their advertising lights. He was on shaky legal ground but reasoned he could not "stand around waiting for all the answers" while Oregon's industry closed down for lack of power.

The advertising lights used only a small amount of electricity, but McCall's ban gave a psychological boost to the average citizen who was asked to turn off lights in his home, turn down the thermostat and drive at 55 miles per hour. Oregonians saw that McCall was doing something and they responded with an impressive conservation effort.

In 1970, violence threatened as antiwar factions planned demonstrations during the national American Legion convention in Portland. Rather than risk street confrontations, McCall gambled his re-election chances and opened a nearby state park for the young demonstrators. The Woodstockstyle gathering released much of the pressure and the antiwar demonstrations were reduced to tolerable dimensions.

In recent years Oregon has come up with several major innovations. Not all the ideas came from McCall, but they were clearly helped along by him and the "Oregon attitude" he so diligently cultivates.

In this category are laws banning nonreturnable beverage containers, setting aside highway funds for bicycle trails, minimizing the penalty for marijuana possession, opening state and local government meetings to the public protecting reporters from being forced to reveal confidential sources of information.

The dominant theme of McCall's two-term administration has been environmental protection. His recurring nightmare has been that Oregon would suffer the scourge of uncontrolled development that struck California.

That fear led McCall to issue a warning to out-of-state residents.

At first he said it would be tolerable for people to visit Oregon if they just would not stay. Lateer he said even tourism, a major Oregon industry, was threatening the state's well being.

McCall has not fared well in his efforts to revise the state's tax system. In 1969 he proposed a sales tax. "The voters buried me in a thundering avalanche," he recalls.

In 1973 McCall offered a plan for school financing at the state level but the voters rejected that, too. McCall was deeply disappointed and says he "was ready to quit."

Still popular

But Oregonians held no grudge against their still popular governor. Many took time to write him and say they were sorry they had to vote against the complex plan.

A minor misfire occurred last month when the governor, again trying to lead the charge on the energy front, ordered a German-built Audi to replace his gas-guzzling American limousine.

It was difficult enough for McCall to fold his six-foot-five-inch frame into the small import, but the howl from domestic auto dealers did not help. McCall decided the Audi, even with its good gas mileage, would not be an adequate traveling office and it has not been seen since.

McCall began his career as a newspaper reporter. He later switched to radio news and then became a television commentator. He still regards the job of the news reporter "as one of the most delicate tasks in the civilized world."

Wide open administration

That attitude has resulted in a wide-open administration in which even the governor's daily staff meetings are open to reporters.

She's her own best friend

By ERMA BOMBECK

For the last nine months, a book called "How To Be Your Own Best Friend" has led the list of best sellers.

I have purposely ignored the book because the last time I tried to be a friend to myself I took me to lunch, gained three pounds and have been suspicious of me ever since.

My resistance to thinking highly of myself goes back to my childhood when I was taught to take a chicken back and pass the rest on, hold the door open until the entire city filed in-out, always vote for my opponent for row monitor, and run to the end of every line. How could I have respect for the loser like that?

Ironically, my best friend, Mayva, talked me into reading the book. "You are always putting yourself down," she said, "and you've got a lot going for you."

"If I had any more going for me, I'd tell my life story in an Ayds ad."

"There you go again," she said, "making fun of yourself. Just read the book. You'll see on the jacket that Berry Berenson and Nora Ephron loved it."

"No kidding," I gasped, snatching it from her hand.

I sat there holding the book for a full hour trying to figure out who Berry Bernson and Nora Ephron were. Then I began to read.

The next morning when Mayva popped in she said, "You wanta go to Revco? They've got a sale on vitamins."

"I am in command of my own destiny, Mayva. No one tells me what to do anymore. I'm my own woman."

"Terrific," she said. "Have you got gas?"

"You have never appreciated my potential, have you, Mayva? I think it would surprise you to know that I have talents worth dwelling on."

"Yes, but do you have a tank full of gas?"

"There's a child in me, Mayva . . . "

"My God."

"Not THAT kind of child. Let me finish. There's a child in me that is like being born again. I am opening my eyes to my own wonderfulness. From here on in, I am going to listen to my own voice."

El Teatro Campesino

POMONA — El Teatro Campesino, que principio en 1965 entre los huelguistas en Delano, presentara la obra, "La Carpa de los Rasquachis," el Martes proximo, principindo a las 8 p.m. en el auditorio de Pomona Unified School District. Esta presentacion sera gratis.

La representacion sera patrocinada por la Sociedad de Alumnos de la Universidad Cal Poly (ASI) y los estudiantes mexico-americanos como un esfuerzo para promover mejores relaciones entre la Universidad y los residentes del valle de Pomona.

La representacion de el Teatro Campesino habia sido planeada para presentarla en el Mark Taper Forum en Los Angeles cuando el grupo accedio a dar una presentacion especial en Cal Poly.

Debido a circunstancias imprevistas, el acuerdo con el Forum tuvo que cancelarse y el teatro en la universidad no pudo conseguirse en virtud de un compromiso anterior.

El Teatro fue el punto de interes durante las reuniones de cada noche, a traves de la marcha de 300-millas que recorrieron por 24-dias hasta llegar a la ciudad de Sacramento durante la primavera de 1966.

El Teatro principio a viajar, presentando su mensaje y al mismo tiempo recaudando fondos para la union, con el tiempo viajaron por todo el pais. La cualidad unica del drama y mensaje del Teatro fueron reconocidas nacionalmente y en 1968 el Teatro recibio el Obie Award por sus representaciones.

Desde 1971, el Teatro ha trabajado fuera del area de San Jose, Calif., y su repertorio incluye titeres, dramas, peliculas, literatura dramatica, un conjunto de calaveras, actos y su mas reciente produccion, "La Carpa."

"La Carpa" es una combinacion de actos corridos y mitos (la comedia principia con Jesucristo, y termina con el dios mexicano Quetzalcoatl).

La historia es original de Jesus Rasquachis, un agricultor Chicano y sus hijos que siguen la cosecha como la pobreza los sigue a ellos. El jefe, dueno del terreno, es el explotador, pero solo la nonviolencia resultando de un despertar espirittual parece efectual un cambio duradero. dero.

La comedia no ataca a su audiencia pero se encuentra con ellos, antes, durante y despues de la representacion. Hace una demostracion conmovedora de lo que puede hacerse cuando la gente trabaja junta por una causa comun.

The valley's all aquiver over belly dancing

By JON MORRIS
P-B Staff Writer

"Gyrate that belly."

"Yes," Paula English said, "Move every muscle. Make your body work for you."

Miss English, a teacher of Middle Eastern belly dancing, was barking out orders to her class at Ganesha Park Community Center in Pomona.

She is an active participant in the revival of an ancient dance that has caught on in the Pomona Valley, she claims, "like wildfire."

Many valley women are taking up a dance that Miss English says was pioneered in 4,000 B.C. by Mesopotamian love goddess Ishtar.

They may not be moving their frames exactly like Ishtar did, but for most of the women, excellence in belly dancing is not their main purpose. They have found it to be a great form of exercise, and useful in shedding excess weight.

Housewives and other women of all ages are joining city parks and recreation department classes in Pomona, Claremont, Upland and Chino in increasing numbers. Aside from their yearning to be physically fit, many seek to develop their "sensuousness," recreation leaders say.

"They want to turn their husbands on," said one recreation official. "Through this dance, women can make themselves more alluring, and add spark to their marriage."

Belly dancing can be an excellent conversation item at parties also, says Fred Taunton, Upland's recreation director. And if dancers end up giving a command performance, that's fun and "certainly not risque," he added.

Other women find the dance "different" and "exciting," and some even entertain hopes of becoming professional belly dancers.

Contrary to some people's beliefs, the dance definitely is not vulgar and has been elevated from the old "hoochie coo," as it once was called, Taunton says.

"Older women have complained to me, and asked if it could be called something other than belly dancing. But I don't feel it's vulgar, and I don't know anyone taking the class in order to be "vulgar."

Taunton admitted he's received one phone call and two letters complaining about the fact ladies were "showing their navels." He added that when he responded to the letters, they turned out to be false addresses.

"We've had the class for a year and a half," he said, "and have taught about 800 students. We've enjoyed such a great response that we were running seven classes of 20 persons each for a while."

Recreation leaders in Chino, Claremont and Pomona, where classes currently are being held, also indicated they strongly support the program. Only a minor amount of protest has been heard, they say.

"It's been well accepted by the community," stated Sherri Schmid, Pomona recreation supervisor. "We had 70 participants the first time we offered it last December."

Claremont has been holding belly dancing classes for more than a year, and Chino started one last summer. Response to the classes has been overwhelming.

"We get women who continue to sign up," noted Jack Anderson, Chino's recreation director. "They get a kick out of it; it's something to take home to their husbands."

Other valley communities such as Montclair and San Dimas have offered belly dancing in the past, but don't have it now. Recreation officials in both cities expect to offer it again in the future.

Typical class fees, ranging from $9 in Pomona to $20 in Montclair for an eight or nine-week class, are inexpensive. Teachers, such as Miss English, are competent and some have had experience as professional dancers.

Miss English, 21, favors the Turkish form of belly dancing, whereas Charlene Nownam, who teaches in Upland, emphasizes the Arabic.

Both dancers are knowledgeable in history of the dance, and Mrs. Newman has danced professionally at the Seventh Veil in Hollywood and Arabian Nights in Upland.

Interesting perhaps to her students, Mrs. Newnam throws in a little Gestalt (awareness) therapy and certain yoga techniques with the belly dance. "All this makes women more aware of their

Unknown pest control firm could eat away $$

I was visited by some representatives of a pest control company who said they found termites in my house after a short inspection.

They said they could offer what I have figured as a 25 per cent reduction of their usual charge. They said they could save by doing my house at the same time as a group of others in the same neighborhood.

Also, how can I find out where the firm is located since it isn't in the Pomona telephone directory? — R.M., Pomona.

You gave us the name of the firm. Although we looked in several directories, we couldn't find it.

Our advice is to pick out two or three firms with a local reputation to protect and compare prices, even if you have to pay a small amount for an inspection.

Some people we know have been told their homes were infected with termites only to find out later that this wasn't true.

Only their bank accounts were in danger of being eaten away.

My daughter has been separated from her husband. She is going to school to learn a profession so she can support herself.

She has tried to get on welfare for medical aid but was turned down.

Her father and I have been trying to help out with as many of her bills as we can but we also have our own bills to take care of.

She does need to be under a doctor's care so we were wondering: Is she or is she not eligible for medical aid?—Mrs. P.G., Montclair.

Factors which enter into welfare eligibility can be very complex and each case differs. If your daughter was found to be ineligible, we must assume that she was.

When you talked to us about her problems, you said that she is making payments on a 1972 car. This seems to us to be pretty expensive transportation for anyone asking for welfare funds.

Perhaps you can help me with the following — and it may be a bit of a change of pace from landlords and credit problems:

I am trying to locate a travel club named Freelandia. It is supposedly a low cost club with a flexible schedule and itinerary based on members' desires.

Each time I heard the name I tried to locate the address but thus far have not been successful. — M.Y., Claremont.

FOLLOW-UP:

Robert Olin of Olin Construction Co. called to bring us up to date on the proposal for a senior citizen apartment on the old Emerson Junior High School site.

Mrs. P. M. of Pomona wrote to Action Line to find out what she should do to voice approval of housing for senior citizens. We advised her to write to the mayor.

She had read that the project was turned down by the Planning Commission but the decision was appealed to the City Council.

Balconies and patios were among the issues debated by the city planning staff and Olin representatives.

Olin now tells us that his firm has agreed to provide balconies and patios for approximately 50 per cent of the units in the proposed complex.

The hearing date for the appeal is March 18.

Abandoned cars never die but they're now starting to fade away

By L. T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

CLAREMONT — Gradually those abandoned vehicles are being removed from vacant lots, hillsides and front yards.

Since a local abatement program began last August, 63 have been delivered to dismantlers, put out of sight or restored to service.

The California Highway Patrol has been assigned the task of removing vehicles which become eyesores. Officers are being aided in their task by street sweepers, mailmen and citizens who spot and report them.

An estimated 500 to 600 such vehicles are believed to be located in the Pomona Valley, said Capt. W. C. Jones, area CHP commander. These not only include cars and station wagons but also trailers and even motorcycles.

Officer assigned full-time

The Claremont CHP office, geared to process up to 125 vehicles a month, has one full-time officer assigned to the task. He is assisted, however, by other patrolmen who see these cars on their beats.

"Most vehicles are being removed from the La Puente and Hacienda Heights areas," said Jones. "And most are found on vacant lots, backyards or open fields."

The legal process of getting the vehicles removed can be long, tedious and sometimes frustrating.

The officer must locate the owner to determine if the vehicle has really been abandoned. This may involve only a knock on a door or a check of the license number or registration plate.

Letters are sent to some owners asking for waivers of ownership so the vehicles can be removed. Waiting for a reply takes both time and patience.

Once the red tape is cut, local wrecking yards tow these away for the parts and metal they contain.

A case of frustration

But even here, the process can become entangled with frustration. An example involves 11 vehicles removed from a West Covina apartment complex.

The owner contacted the Claremont office to report that a number of cars had been left by tenants on the parking lots, in driveways and under carports.

"He assured us that all 11 cars had been left there for over one year," said Jones. "We then attempted to find the owners through vehicle registrations. Some we couldn't find."

After the mandatory 19-day wait, the cars were towed away. But several hours after the tow trucks had left, West Covina police began getting stolen car reports, he noted. "We had the tow truck hook up four of these vehicles and return them to the apartment complex."

The episode did have a happy ending, declared Jones. It caused the owners to either restore the vehicles to running condition or move them into enclosed buildings.

At present, the abatement program is limited locally to only Los Angeles County. The Claremont office is assigned a service area extending from the San Gabriel River Freeway to the San Bernardino and Riverside county lines.

This excludes the cities of Pomona and La Verne which have their own abatement programs. It does include the communities of Claremont, San Dimas, Covina, West Covina, La Puente, Hacienda Heights, Industry, Baldwin Park, Duarte, Irwindale and Walnut.

Some in canyons

Once the program is extended into San Bernardino County, Jones has already spotted several vehicles in the Mt. Baldy area to be removed. He observed several at the bottoms of canyons while making a recent helicopter rescue of a family whose truck became stuck in the snow. "We can't do anything about them now, but they are at the top of my list when the program is expanded."

Jones believes his office is making headway in removing these vehicles. "We are processing about 12 per month, which is higher than the estimated six to eight abandoned every month."

Vehicle owners have been very cooperative in the abatement program, he reported. "Once they realize their cars may be an eyesore, they will let the highway patrol haul them away or will take care of these themselves."

Some owners may want to restore the autos and will move them into garages.

"Our contact sometimes jogs them into action," he added.

Most vehicles abated are late 1950 or early 1960 models. "Anything older than that might be considered antiques."

Of the 63 vehicles abated so far, 34 were hauled to dismantlers, 23 were enclosed by owners in buildings, and six were restored to service.

Storage firm to build site for residents' use

POMONA — Residents will soon have a mini-warehouse to store those extra odds and ends.

The buildings, with 47,250 square feet of space, are valued at $343,000.

The permits topped Pomona building activity during February, in which the 182 permits issued represented a combined valuation of $840,251. This brought the city's two month total to 301 permits and a $1.1 million valuation.

For the second month, no permits were issued for any residential dwellings.

Residents, however, showed great willingness to repair and expand their present homes. Officials reported issuing 141 permits for dwelling alterations and additions, having a $204,880 valuation.

One permit was also given for construction of a residential garage. The project is valued at $500.

In addition, an apartment house owner received a permit to rehabilitate apartment buildings and garages at 805-819 S. Buena Vista Ave. The cost is estimated at $30,000.

Other major projects last month included:

—Rectory at the Sacred Heart Catholic Church, 1215 S. Hamilton Blvd., $60,000.

—Completion of work started in 1970 for a 264 bed convalescent hospital at 250 W. Artesia St., $90,000.

—One-story structure for Sunday school classrooms at First Assembly of God, 305 E. Arrow Highway, $50,000.

—Alterations of a city recreation building, 865 E. Grand Ave., $11,000.

Permits were also issued for these building categories:

—Swimming pools, one, $2,115; additions and alterations to non residential buildings, eight, $125,235; all other permits, eight, $73,306; signs, 10, $21,900; residential buildings demolished or moved out, six, $2,750; and non residential buildings demolished, three, $6,565.

Colleges relent on cuts in black studies budget

CLAREMONT — Faced with strong opposition from black students, staff, faculty and community members, Claremont Colleges officials have relented in a proposed belt-tightening 9 per cent cut in next year's budget for the Black Studies Center.

E. Howard Brooks, provost of the colleges, said "the colleges have listended to the complaints and have proposed some compromises" which James Garrett, director of the center, is currently considering.

Specifically, Brooks said, the colleges have agreed to fully restore a summer tutorial program for up to 20 entering freshman students and to reduce a proposed $2,850 increase in the cost of maintenance of the center's offices by $1,500.

Brooks mentioned no exact figures on the compromise offer, but said that the colleges "remain in a pretty flexible position" on the amount.

Officials had originally decided to trim the current budget of $216,000 down to $195,000.

In order to meet that figure, Brooks also suggested some possible faculty staff and program cuts. The cuts prompted black students and center supporters to circulate public letters asserting that the actions "may result in the Black Studies Center either closing down or operating on a minimum staff load, beginning in July, 1974."

Center Director Garrett, commenting in an interview earlier this week, said the cuts would make it "difficult to carry on a serious, substantive program." The program would be crippled, he said, precipitating other cutbacks due to lack of student interest.

In addition to the cuts, the students, in their letter, expressed concern over the drop in black admissions and charged individual college administrations with harassing black students in classrooms and dormitories.

A spokesman at the center said cases of harassment were currently being documented and could not relate any specific incidents. The spokesman added, however, that some students had reported being advised not to take black studies courses if they intended to enroll in graduate study.

Brooks said that he had no documentation of black student harassment and that he had "never been able to run down a case of discriminatory advice."

He noted that college presidents have been cautioned to insure students receive nonprejudicial advice on their campuses.

He added that "we are terribly concerned about the decline in minority enrollments." The problem is largely caused by increasing educational costs, he said. The colleges are maintaining their minority recruitment and admissions services and are making efforts to find additional sources of student aid money, he said.

Danger of old fire extinguishers cited

POMONA — The fire department is cautioning residents against the use of the carbon tetrachloride fire extinguisher that often releases deadly gas fumes.

Chief John Fowlkes said the use of the old-fashioned, hand-pumped extinguishers is outlawed because of its hazards to the user.

Persons with this type of fire extinguisher should turn it in at the fire station nearest their home, the chief said.

History's guide to impeachment

The House of Representatives can impeach President Nixon for almost any reason it chooses. In early American impeachements, in fact, the articles were not prepared until after impeachment had been voted on.

But political reality being what it is in this 1974 election year, when all members of the Housé must face gravely concerned voters and explain their actions, Congress most certainly must decide some thorny constitutional questions before a majority will likely be willing to vote yea or nay on indicting the President of the United States.

These are the problems:

Can a president be charged for the actions of his subordinates?

James Madison argues yes. It would, Madison said "... subject him to impeachment himself if he suffers them to perpetuate with impunity high crimes or misdemeanors against the United States, or neglects to superintend their conduct, so as to check their excesses."

But Elbridge Gerry, another framer of the Constitution, disagreed, arguing subordinate officers should bear their own responsibility.

Can a president be removed from office because he has, in the minds of the majority of the House and two-thirds of the Senate, exhibited such habitual disregard of the public interest that his actions have cost him the confidence of the nation to such a degree he can no longer govern effectively?

Time and again, in the 13 instances in which U.S. officials have been impeached, this charge has been made and strongly argued. However, the fact that only four of the 13 were convicted does not speak strongly for the practical effectiveness of this charge.

Can a president legitimately be removed for defying the will of Congress and, if he can, how serious must that defiance be?

President Andrew Johnson was charged with having failed to respect the prerogatives of Congress in removing Edwin M. Stanton as secretary of war; the issue was whether the President or Congress should have the constitutional and military power to make and enforce Reconstruction policy in the South.

In British history, where the impeachment article in the U.S. constitution has its roots, impeachment was used regularly to increase the power of Parliament and to clip the power of the King. That is, Parliament regularly removed those ministers who most effectively advanced the King's will.

Can a president be held liable for impeachment for evading taxes and did Mr. Nixon in fact willfully evade his proper share?

Can a president properly be removed on such difficult-to-define but important charges as subverting the democratic process? If he can, how can such actions be defined. Are the individual charges of great import, or is it rather, as has been held in the number of previous U.S. impeachments, the entire course of his conduct in office.

These constitutional points will be of little importance, of course, if the House determines that Mr. Nixon has been guilty of criminal acts, or has participated in the obstruction of justice.

It should be noted that actual crime will be exceedingly difficult to prove. The constitutional points outlined above are, in the main, so subjective that Congressman, whichever way he votes, will find his actions almost impossible to explain to many of his constituents. It is therefore easy to understand how both Mr. Nixon and former Attorney-General Elliot Richardson can both be convinced that in the end there will be no impeachment.

Light and liability

Americans have responded well to the call to cut back on their use of energy — in some cases too well.

The owners of commercial and residential properties who use the energy crisis as an excuse to reduce lighting excessively "can jeopardize the safety of tenants and visitors and subject themselves to liability suits," warns Leonard M. Ring, president of the Association of Trial Lawyers of America, the nation's largest trial bar association.

The association, says Ring, has received scores of reports from state trial bar associations and individual members telling of a significant increase in injuries and assaults that can be traced directly to insufficient lighting.

Public hallways, stairwells, basements, fire escape exits, corridors, garages and approaches to vending machines and laundry rooms are among the areas that should be properly illuminated, he says.

"Failure to provide adequate lighting in these public facilities can lead to serious personal injuries and be an open invitation to muggers and thieves to lurk in a darkened corner, waiting to prey on unsuspecting citizens."

Noting that there is ample precedence which holds a property owner liable for injuries sustained by tenants because of faulty lighting or a landlord's carelessness, Ring stresses that the meager amount of money that could be saved by cutting back on lighting is far outweighed by the time and funds that can be consumed in a lengthy liability suit.

In other words, a penny saved by landlords on the light bill could means pounds of legal grief.

Probe Legion for White House ties

WASHINGTON — The Watergate prosecutors have been investigating, of all groups, the American Legion on suspicion that the White House used legionnaires to stand up to left-wing demonstrators.

To the bewilderment of National Adjutant William Hauck, who has been a determinedly nonpartisan friend of presidents since 1952, he was called in for interrogation by the prosecutors.

Hauck duly appeared before a stern, young lawyer named Nick Ackerman who, ironically, won the American Legion "Voice of Democracy" award at high school in 1965. Ackerman wanted to know whether the White House had tried to get the legion to bus in members for the funeral of J. Edgar Hoover.

The prosecutors apparently thought the White House tried to recruit legionnaires to square off with left-wing demonstrators at the funeral, thereby stirring up sentiment against President Nixon's enemies on the left. It's known that the Cuban Watergate burglary team was sent to squabble with the demonstrators.

The long-suffering Hauck was also interrogated about the legion's history and its stand on the Pentagon Papers case. He was even questioned, astonishingly, about the White House tapes.

Hauck confided to us that he was "dumfounded" at the questioning. Nevertheless, he patiently denied that the White House had contacted the legion about the Hoover funeral or meddled in legion policies.

He also checked with other top legionnaires and wrote a private letter to Ackerman, stating they also had received no call "urging the influx of busloads of American legionnaires to attend Mr. Hoover's funeral."

At the Watergate Special Prosecutor's office, a spokesman said it was "absolutely wrong" to say the legion was under investigation. "We have asked many patriotic Americans to cooperate with us and regret very much that anyone would assume this meant we were investigating them," said the spokesman.

The spokesman's definition of investigation differs with the dictionary definition and the impression left on the legion.

As described by intelligence reports from the battle zone, the Chinese are led by officers in close touch with Peking.

Their thrusts into the hills and towns of northern Burma threaten not only Burma but Thailand, which has close military ties with the United States. There are no reports, however, that American special forces in Thailand have intervened in the spreading conflict.

The transcript of an unusual Morse radio transmission from the northern Shan states of Burma tells of powerful Communist action against Shan opium armies and troops of the "KMT (Taiwan)," a Chinese Kuomintang force in Burma.

Relayed by Shan rebel army transmitters, the message says: "CPB (Communist Party, Burma) attack KMT (Taiwan) in Mong Sang on Jan. 21, 1974, 0500 hours . . . 15 KMT killed and many wounded." The message claims many weapons were seized by the Communists.

A second message reports: "CPB occupied Mong Sang . . . Shan United Army (a rebel anti-Communist group) and KMT (Taiwan) retreated." More clashes between the Communists and the Shan armies have been reported in the wireless transmissions of Hpa Heing. Chiang Lain, Om Tung, Kat Lof and Wan Ho Nar.

From other intelligence sources, we have learned that the Communists now threaten the Burmese district capital of Keng Tung and may control the only road connecting it with the rest of Burma.

Another message claims that the Chinese guerrillas probably hold "most of the area between the Nam Pang river and the Salween area" — a huge tract of misty mountains and deep gorges in northern Burma.

Rep. Lester Wolff, D-N.Y., chairman of the House International Narcotics subcommittee, has established contacts with the Shan army to keep abreast of the opium trade. He has learned that the Chinese military moves may jeopardize his efforts to free two Russian doctors, who were kidnaped by Shan rebels from a Soviet mercy mission to Burma.

The Russians have secretly asked Wolff's help in getting the doctors back. To Wolff's astonishment, he was called from a sick bed to meet with a soviet diplomat on the matter. Wolff promised to do what he could.

The congressman has used his contacts to seek the doctors' relief. The intermediaries, as a gesture, tried to smuggle two bottles of vodka to them via caravan routes into northern Burma. The vodka, Wolff has learned, was intercepted. But he has received unconfirmed reports that one of the doctors has now been sent southward in a jade caravan to freedom.

The other, as far as can be determined, remains in Shan rebel hands without his vodka. He is being held hostage as part of a bizarre scheme to get talks going on Shan independence from Burma.

FOOTNOTE: A Socal spokesman told my associate Jack Cloherty that the memos are "obviously accurate" but that Socal still contends its wells are "geologically independent." He called the preliminary injunction an effort to "stand in place for awhile" so the judge could study the complex case.

DEATH THREAT: For almost a month before his January 28 grudge fight with Muhammad Ali, former heavyweight champion Joe Frazier was haunted by a death threat from black militants.

His bodyguard was bolstered and special precautions were taken at ringside, all unknown to the sell-out Madison Square Garden crowd.

The threat was made after New Year's Day while Frazier was training in a Philadelphia gym. The pay phone rang and trainer William Neil answered. What followed, as Frazier's lawyer Bruce Wright recounted it to us, was a vicious diatribe against Frazier.

The caller, who said he represented an organization of ghetto blacks, castigated Frazier in gutter terms. "We're going to kill you!" he snarled.

Neill immediately informed the ex-champion who shrugged and said with a sigh: "Here we go again." He was referring to similar calls, which preceded his 1971 triumph over Ali. At that time, a tight security cordon was thrown around both Frazier and his family.

Although Frazier affected a stoic shrug, he took the new threat seriously. Attorney Wright said the threat had not caused Frazier to lose the 12-round fight. But he suggested that the steady drumfire of unfair "Uncle Tom" charges had a negative psychological effect on Frazier.

Wright discounted rumors that the Black Muslims, of which Ali is a member, have been behind the "Uncle Tom" talk. As for the death threat, Wright figured it came from "some lunatic fringe group" of blacks.

Gossip for today

If nothing else, these trying times have definitely demonstrated that it isn't political know-how but rather man's inhumanity to man that makes it possible for us to exist in today's troubled world. First it was the truckers who banded together and made the government say uncle.

Then the gasoline dealers said: "To heck with our political masterminds! We'll just sell all our gasoline and then shut down if government doesn't give in."

Not to be outdone, the coal miners claim they can turn America's lights out on a moment's notice if Congress doesn't meet their demands.

The dairy interests are planning to raise the price of milk and will revise their slogan to read, "Every body pays."

The politicians urge American motorists to cut down on the amount of gasoline they use and then they allow the oil companies to raise their prices because sales have fallen off.

And now the Fertilizer Institute has decided to get into the act and is threatening us with a fertilizer shortage.

So it is not surprising that these days more and more ordinary citizens are wistfully asking: "Who is running this country anyway?" —Well, it's easy to see it isn't the folks we elected to do the job. They're far too busy proposing to spend half a million dollars in an attempt to define litter; setting up a commission to determine what has happened to the mercury in fish or, as has already happened in Louisiana, declaring anti-prostitution laws unconstitutional on the grounds that they discriminate against women.

OUR MAN IN WASHINGTON

Uncle Sam still largest employer

By RICK GOTCHER
P-B Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The federal government receives almost 2 million job applications each year. Of those, 175,000 are hired. And of those, roughly 3.5 percent are part-time or "flexible-hour" employes.

In the Senate, a bill has been introduced by Sen. John Tunney (D-Calif.) that would increase civil service part time employment to 10 per cent over a five-year period.

Tunney says his legislation would "expand part-time employment opportunities . . . for the millions unable to work a standard forty-hour week."

The senator also contends that many women, educated and talented but tied to housework, would be able to enter the federal work force.

Also, civil servants and others approaching retirement would find it possible to ease out of work by moving to a comparable part-time position with the government. Handicapped and those in need of work therapy would be able to find additional jobs.

And the government would realize increased efficiency and could choose more able employes from an enlarged work force.

Discounting the military, the federal government is still the nation's largest employer. More than 2.4 million people work full-time for Uncle Sam.

The Postl Service hires the biggest number. And it employs more than two-thirds of the total part-time help.

Raymond Jacobsen, Civil Service director of Policies and Standards, says making available part-time opportunities will vary with different jobs and requirements.

Jacobson notes present part-time employment practices within the government work well, and the people involved contribute greatly to the federal effort. But Jacobson does not want a quota system.

"The establishment of the kind of requirements that this law would seem to lay on the Federal agencies, to put a uniform requirement on all agencies at all levels, to have certain fixed numbers of part-time positions available, is simply unrealistic," he said.

Jacobson is right. A quota system probably would not work. Examples of quota systems have shown them to be quite often counter productive. Civil rights legislation, which requires set percentages of minority workers has caused instances which show that many times fully qualified people are passed over in favor of filling the quotas.

In some cases, students, applying for government loans or scholarships, find themselves rejected solely because the quota must be served.

It is impossible to guess what effect a part-time employment quota system would have on the federal job market. But the past performances of comparable situations indicate the effect would not be in the best interest of everyon concerned.

With some reworking, Tunney's bill could become workable. The government certainly is capable of more active use of the part-time labor market. It cannot be estimated if government employment costs would go up or down. But with 1974 costs figured to be $22.5 billion, any chance to cut back should be fully explored.

It appears logical that if the government holds its hiring quotas — which should be the only quota adhered to — to the numbers it says, then an increased percentage of part-time help would have to make the total cost go down. And it would help eliminate a certain number of full-time people who only work part-time, anyway.

SAY IT SLOWLY

Albert Ochoa, Ronnie Perry, and Darla Baggett, students at Danbury School in Claremont have fun learning with volunteer aide Mrs. Jean Toepfer. The aides have patience in helping students at the orthopedically-handicapped school, where volunteers are greatly appreciated for their hours and interest.

Claremont's secret weapon

500 school volunteers

By GEORGE MacLAREN
P-B Staff Writer

CLAREMONT — Operations run more smoothly in the Claremont Unified School District's 11 schools because of its more than 500 volunteers who donate well over 700 hours a week.

What do the volunteers do? Everything. They are involved in every facet of school operations.

They include housewives and mothers, college students, retired persons, career women and professionals, businessmen and business women who take time off from their regular jobs to help children.

At Claremont High, the nurse's office is manned two days a week by registered nurses who volunteer their time.

Volunteer clerical aides at Claremont High have become employed as substitute clerks and some as fulltime clerks. Some have gone on to other jobs in the community and used the volunteer aide work as an experience factor.

The tremendous job of mass mailing at the high school of 2,200 students is done by volunteer aides, who also assist as clerks, in the library, homemaking lab, or as foreign language tutors, nurses, in the business lab, resource center, attendance office, and tutor in the reading clinic.

Mrs. Leone Norris and Mrs. Virginia Nimmons are co-chairmen of the Claremont High volunteers.

Mrs. Norris who does such jobs as answering the telephone in Principal Alex Hughes' office has been a volunteer for eight years, and when asked if she would help next year, she answered, "Yes, if they need me."

Mrs. Jan Phares has volunteered her time in the attendance office for five years.

Mrs. Phares' only complaint is that it is difficult to see the A's for absences in the weekly reporting cards students return to school Monday mornings. Mrs. Phares would like the district to print "scarlet A's" on the cards.

In December, a group of volunteer mothers took over Mrs. Dori Hart's primary class for a day. They handled all lessons, all details, and all problems. Mrs. Hart sat as an observer. This was a special "gift" from the mothers.

Vista School has attracted volunteers who have aided in teaching probability and statistics, carpentry, motorcycling riding, judo, skin-diving, gymnastics, investments, soccer, horsemanship, wrestling and aircraft.

At Danbury all volunteers are working because they want to be involved. They have no children enrolled at the school. They supervise play, help to prepare for arts and crafts, painting, and the clean-up afterward. They read stories and tutor children at the school for the orthopedically handicapped.

Condit School has an extremely devoted volunteer in Mrs. Ruth White of Pilgrim Place, now in her 70s. She has assisted kindergarten teacher Frances Scott since 1970.

At Sumner School, volunteers type, put up bulletin boards, take groups to the library, run the ditto machine, and accompany students on field trips.

School district teachers and officials are thankful for their volunteers from Pilgrim Place, Webb School, La Verne College, Citrus College, Cal Poly, as well as a large number of senior citizens and Claremont High students.

Tree removal issue before council

POMONA — The City Council Monday night will continue its deliberations on whether to permit the removal of two mature camphor trees from a parkway in front of a residence at 358 E. Pasadena St.

Officlas at Mel Bunnell Chevrolet, 363 E. Holt Ave., located one block south of Pasadena, have requested permission to remove the two trees as part of a plan to demolish an existing residence and expand parking facilities for the firm's body department.

The Parks and Recreation Commission held a hearing on the proposed removal Feb. 14 without hearing public opposition and recommended approval.

At its meeting Feb. 25, the council discussed the recommendation but decided not to take action until more information was known about the condition of the trees and whether removal was necessary.

Since the council meeting, Miss Diana D. Smith, 415 E. Pasadena St., representing the Pasadena Street Camphor Tree Association, has written City Hall protesting the proposed removal.

Also on the agenda for the council's 8 p.m. meeting are matters:

—Hearing on proposed modification of the special business tax for the Central Business District.

—Resolution appointing election officers and designating polling places for the special municipal election April 16.

—Resolution adopting plans and specifications for storm drain and sewer improvements in the vicinity of the Pomona Financial Center under construction.

—Resolution authorizing an agreement with the City of Ontario for mutual aid and the protection of police officers.

—Two resolutions confirming summary abatement taken at 896 Collingwood Drive and 2268 Concord Ave.

—A resolution stating the council's preference in the establishment of a priority list of expenditures and the distribution of funds from a state beach, park, historical and recreational facilities bond proposal which will appear on the ballot in June.

—Report of Mayor Ray J. Lepire on his trip to Washington, D.C.

—Request of the National Little League to hold rummage or yard sale at Montvue Park March 23 and 24.

—Petition of residents for alleviation of problems brought on by activities at Ralph Welch Park.

—Recommendation of City Administrator Jerrold Gonce for placement of an "interim community facility" at Kennedy Park.

—Proposal to provide residences in the vicinity of Ganesha High School with city sewer services provided property owners agree to annex to the city. The residences lie within an "island" of unincorporated county territory.

—Request of Cal Poly University for city participation in the installation of signals, turning lanes and signing on Temple Avenue near the campus.

—Recommendation for purchase of seven subcompact automobiles for various departments.

body so they can manipulate it," she said.

The dance is not easy, and there are several steps students must learn, says Harriet Lisak, another teacher who handles Chino classes. Basically, she notes, there is an opening and closing, dancing with and without veils and dancing with small cymbals.

"It's a definite art form," declared Mrs. Lisak. "It has also the style and grace of the ballet, even though there are more torso movements."

Every muscle is exercised in the belly dance, she adds, and this perhaps is the main reason women show up in droves for classes.

Marla Vander Meer, a 19-year-old housewife and one of Mrs. Lisak's pupils, says she enjoys the dance "for exercise and to learn something new. I also like to shock people."

Rosemarie Benrock, 35, another Chino student, said her husband told her to take the class because "he thought I'd become more sensuous."

One of Miss English's pupils, Tori Hall, 18, said she was interested in possibly becoming a professional belly dancer. And Dorothy Roy, another housewife taking the class, said she signed up "as an excuse to get out of the house."

"I took it for exercise and fun," said Charlene Jackson, 26. "It's better than sitting home watching TV."

One middle-aged student best summed up the situation: "The exercise from dancing has improved my figure, and developed femininity. And my husband likes my new shape."

MSAC classes for gifted youths slated

WALNUT — Thirty-three classes in such subjects as astronomy, geology, chess and photography will be offered by Mt. San Antonio College for mentally gifted children, beginning March 18.

Cosponsored by the college and the Gifted Children's Association of Pomona Valley, the 4 p.m. classes for children from first grade through high school will be taught by MSAC faculty and other professionals.

Additional information may be obtained by calling association coordinators Mrs. Sharon Olsen, 595-3774 or Mrs. Judy Mercer, 626-6944.

Walnut High needs pianist

WALNUT — Wanted: One accomplished pianist to help make music at Walnut High School.

Once a salary schedule is determined, the Walnut School District will be advertising for a part-time accompanist to play for choral classes, rehearsals and public engagements. Specifications of the job were approved this week by the district Board of Trustees.

Not only must the selected person be a capable sight reader that is, be able to pick up a piece of music and play it well the first time through—but also a musician capable of memorizing selections, interpreting them, reducing recorded music to piano reproduction, and following a conductor or soloist.

Although minimum educational requirement is high school graduation, the accompanist must have "extensive study in piano." Use of a gifted Walnut High student was ruled out because scheduling would be too restricted.

District officials estimate the accompanist will have about two to three hours' daily employment.

The doctor comments

Nasal decongestants are habit-forming

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am hooked. For the past five or six years I have had to keep a bottle of nasal spray in my possession 24 hours a day.

I have talked with other people who have the same problem. Someone suggested taking large quantities of vitamin C, but this was to no avail. If I don't have the nasal spray 'nasal passages stay clogged.

I have also heard that the long-term use of antihistamines was detrimental. Help, please.

Dear Reader — Yes, you'll need more than vitamin C for that problem.

Your case is a good illustration of the dangers of using nasal decongestant sprays too often. They work because the midicine in the sprays constricts tha small blood vessels and causes the nasal membranes to shrink.

The problem is that these medicines wear off and then a rebound reaction occurs and the membranes swell more than they were swollen in the first place.

If you use these medicines for just a few days during swelling from a cold they are all right, in limited amounts. But, you should never continue these medicines on your own for more than a few days.

They cause a chemical reaction to the nasal membranes, and then you have a new and more persistent problem. It usually requires the help of a specialist in ear, nose and throat problems to help you get off the habit or you can get help from your family doctor.

No doubt you will have to tough it out with a stuffed nose until your membranes can recover, and that may take a while.

For the rest of my readers, I would say take heed, and don't let this happen to you.

A word about sprays, if you must spray use a squeeze bottle or a squeeze bulb. The aerosol sprays into the nose and back of the throat can be dangerous in my opinion, and I don't think you should use any aerosol sprays into the throat.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a girl, 16. Lately several people have noticed that I've been breathing heavily. I never used to. It could be due to my weight. I'm five feet four and weigh 130 pounds.

It might also have to do with the fact that I just had a nose job a few months ago.

I'm a bit worried. Could you please tell me what causes this?

Dear Reader — Most likely it is from the nose job. In reducing the size of the nose the air passages are usually narrowed. The result is that the breathing through the nose is often not as easy. Forcing the air through the smaller passages results in more noise, just as water running rapidly through a narrow channel makes more noise. I'd ignore it unless you feel uncomfortable. If you have too much breathing difficulty, you may need to have the nasal passages enlarged. Some small noses are more of a decoration than a functional organ.

Sen your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of The Progress-Bulletin P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on losing weight, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Losing Weight" booklet.

IT'S TOO HOT — With temperatures reaching an unseasonable high 84 degrees last week, two polar bears at the St. Louis Zoo find plenty to complain about as they think back on cooler days.

Road atlas tips of '26 up to date

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Share your gas with the man who is stranded far from a filling station."

This advice is being given to motorists today as an untold number of car owners find themselves out of gas on a busy street or highway, unable to make it to a service station.

And it also was given to motorists almost half a century ago when gasoline was plentiful but fuel gauges on the autos of those days were not always accurate.

The share-the-gas appeal appeared in the "Courtesy of the Road" section of the 1926 edition of Rand McNally's Auto Road Atlas of the United States.

Rand McNally has reprinted a facsimile edition of the 1926 edition in observance of its 50th anniversary in road map making. The company was unable to find the first edition, which appeared in 1924, and settled for the earliest obtainable in a nation-wide search.

In 1926, Rand McNally mapped 184,000 miles of national highways. The 1974 edition shows about four million miles of U.S. and Interstate routes.

The facsimile 1926 atlas, which can be purchased wherever road maps are sold, shows that some states, especially in the south and west, had few paved roads —even between such large cities as Birmingham and Atlanta, indicating more than a day of travel would be needed to complete such a journey.

In the "Things Worth Knowing Section," the atlas suggests:

"Women drivers of motor vehicles should be given special consideration —and watching";

"Most cities this is required by ordinance rigidly enforced";

Pure vinegar will clean celluloid in the curtains of your car";

"It takes gas to propel a vehicle. Profanity won't do it";

"The most obnoxious animal in the world is the road hog. He is as objectionable as any other hog and you can't eat him."

Protection ordered for Flournoy, Brown

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State policemen in street clothes have been assigned to protect two gubernatorial candidates because of threats to their safety, sources reported.

The agents were assigned to Republican State Controller Houston I. Flournoy and Democratic Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. Official spokesman for both candidates refused to comment.

A UPI survey of other major gubernatorial contenders disclosed that none of them are receiving such protection.

30th ceramics exhibit on agenda at Scripps

CLAREMONT — The 30th annual ceramics exhibit at Lang Gallery, Scripps College, will open with a public reception at 8 p.m. March 19. The Scripps Fine Arts Foundation will be host.

The exhibit will be open to the public without charge, 1 to 5 p.m. daily through April 26, except April 6-15, when it will be closed for spring vacation.

The exhibition will feature the first public showing of the Fred and Mary Marer collection of more than 200 ceramic pieces of American, European and Japanese artists.

The Fine Arts Foundation is sponsoring the show's catalog which will have eight color reproductions and over 50 black and white photographs of the ceramics.

Marer, professor of mathematics at Los Angeles City College, began the collection in 1954 when he first met Peter Voulkos, then teaching at the Otis Art Institute. Marer was so intrigued with Voulkos' work that he became a frequent visitor to the studio, meeting many of Voulkos' students and colleagues. He began purchasing ceramic pieces and through the years has continued acquiring work from unknown artists whose names are now prominent in art circles.

Voulkos, now a professor at UC Berkeley, is represented in the collection by 22 pieces, ranging from sculpture to platter and bowls. Credited with revolutionizing the use of clay as a medium, Voulkos and his group were caught up in the excitement of abstract expressionist painting with its emphasis on action.

A number of Voukos' students have works in the collection. John Mason, professor of art at Irvine, is represented with vases, sculptures and bowls, as is Kenneth Price, who now has a studio in Taos, Nim.

Scripps professor of art Paul Soldner, another of Voulkos' students and one of the first to use raku as an art medium in the United States, is included with four works. Jerry Rothman, head of the ceramics department at Cal State Fullerton, has four platters and two sculptures in the exhibit.

Other American ceramists whose works are included are Rudy Autio, Billy Al Bengston, Thom Collins, Philip Cornelius, Ellie Fernald, Michael Frimkess, Magdalena Frimkess, Chris Gonzales, Jean Griffith, Wayne Higby, Jennifer Masterson, John McCuistion, James Melchert, Ann Stockton, Vincent Suez, Kazuye Suyematsu, Henry Takemoto, Vaea, Patti Warashina, Laura Andreson, Suzanne Klotz, Beverly Magennis, Malcolm McClain, Peter Meloyy, Ron Nagle, Antonio Prieto, Edwin and Mary Scheier, Margurite Wildenhain and Beatrice Wood.

Six European potters, including Bernard Leach, are also represented.

The works of 15 Japanese ceramists are also included. Two—Shoji Hamada and Toyo Kaneshige—were designated living national treasures of Japan. Hamada is director of the Japanese Folk Arts Museum. Kaneshige died in 1967. Mutsuo Yanagihara, who taught at Scripps College in the fall of 1973 and now teaches at Osaka University, has a sculptural vase in the

CLAREMONT — The Claremont Community School of Music will present a scholarship benefit performance of the puppet show, "Hungry People," in Holmes Hall, Pomona College, at 8 p.m. March 29 and 30 and at 3 p.m. March 31.

The production was written and directed by Debby Paul.

A Pomona College theater major, Miss Paul directed "Theater with Children" in Los Angeles last summer under a grant from the city's department of parks and recreation and has a wide variety of theater and film credits. In addition to directing the production for the CCSM, she will also be a guest instructor for the children's theater classes.

The cast will be made up of students from school, college actors and community members. The acting company will perform various roles, operate the puppets and provide sound background.

Work has already begun on the construction of the puppets which range in size from small hand-operated stick puppets to 12-foot marionettes that will be operated from the ceiling.

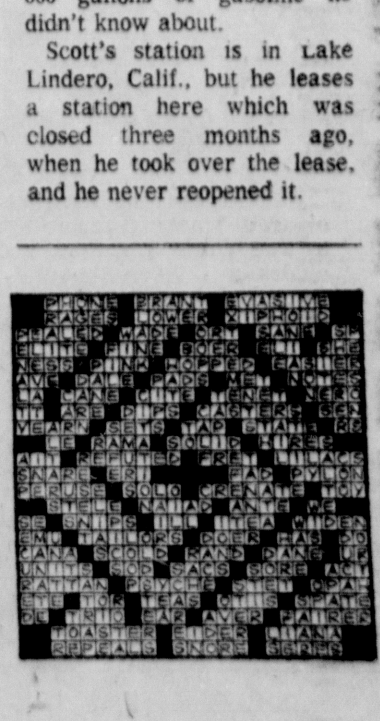
"The visual elements of the production such as the gigantic size of the puppets and special lighting effects will add an exciting theatrical dimension to the production," Miss Paul said.

Proceeds from the event will go to the school's scholarship fund which will give more students an opportunity to become involved in music, dance and children's theater. Tickets for the production will be on sale at the Claremont Community School of Music, 624-3012, and at the door.

Closed station has tanks full; they'll reopen

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (UPI) — Clarence K. Scott, a service station operator, discovered Tuesday he has 45,000 gallons of gasoline he didn't know about.

Scott's station is in Lake Lindero, Calif., but he leases a station here which was closed three months ago, when he took over the lease, and he never reopened it.



Lady lawyer challenges Texas governor once again

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Frances Tarlton Farenthold, 47, a lady lawyer affectionately known among Texas liberals as "Sissy," is tackling the political strongman of the state in a second attempt to become governor.

Just as they did two years ago, political experts say she doesn't have a chance, and attribute her candidacy to a Kamikaze instinct she developed fighting for reform in a scandal plagued 1971 legislative session.

She defeated some of the state's most promising young Democrats in 1972, and lost to Gov. Dolph Briscoe in a runoff for the party nomination for governor. A few months later, she was runnerup to Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., in the Democratic nomination for vice president.

This year, Mrs. Farenthold waited until six hours before filing deadline to announce she'll once again challenge Briscoe, a millionaire rancher-banker who raised $600,000 in a single appreciation dinner last year —something even Lyndon B. Johnson never matched in Texas.

"It came down to this," she said. "If I didn't challenge the governor, no one would, and we would have four more years of this no-record, do-nothing caretaker government in the midst of the most complex national crisis of our lifetime."

Files suit

Within hours of announcing for office, Mrs. Farenthold filed a $2.5 million suit against Briscoe, accusing him of illegally raising campaign funds before he designated a campaign manager.

A hearing on that suit is set for April 8—less than a month before the May 4 party primary.

Briscoe called the action "political mudslinging in the courts," and said if Mrs. Farenthold understood the campaign law she'd know he did nothing illegal.

Two other candidates in the race—a former bareback bronc rider who wants to legalize marijuana and prostitution, and a Harris County undertaker— stand little chance.

Texas Republicans, who normally handpick a candidate to challenge the Democratic nominee, also face a contested race this year. Former State Sen. Henry Grover of Houston, a party maverick who won the 1972 nomination, is opposed by former Lubbock Mayor Jim Granberry.

Gathering funds

Most party notables have already endorsed Granberry, but Grover still is considered the favorite.

No other state races even threaten to share the spotlight with the Farenthold-Briscoe rematch.

For the past year, Mrs. Farenthold has headed the National Women's Political Caucus and taught at the Texas Southern University law school.

Now, she's gathering what funds she can to take on Briscoe's well financed organization.

Paper tiger

"I challenge Dolph Briscoe in the conviction that he is the paper tiger of Texas politics— that the people are more knowing than the politicians who say he can't be beaten—and that this is the year for the big change in Texas," Mrs. Farenthold said.

Briscoe backers said the governor has done nothing on which a challenger can fault him. Mrs. Farenthold says he has done nothing at all.

The primary issue in 1972 was reform. This year it appears to be Briscoe's record. But in any event, Sissy Farenthold has made it clear she'll fight to the end to prove the political experts wrong and become the second woman to govern the Lone Star State.

Lurleen in Hall of fame

Gov Lurleen B. Wallace has been inducted posthumously into the Alabama Women's Hall of Fame. She served as Alabama's only woman governor from 1967 to her death in May, 1968.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Recent actions against cigarette smoking, according to The World Almanac, includes a Civil Aeronautics Board decree that U.S. airlines institute compulsory non-smoking sections on all flights. The Arizona legislature banned smoking in all public buildings. A motel chain is testing the idea of a ban on smoking on some floors. Also, several car insurance companies have begun to offer lower rates to non-smokers.

Tomcat may resist new living pattern

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: How can I safely move a healthy, aggressive five-year-old tomcat from a ground floor, woodsy apartment into a second floor apartment where he won't be free to roam? He loves the woods behind the apartment where we are now, chasing squirrels and rabbits and vice versa. (One time I observed a terribly agitated rabbit chasing him!)

Dear G.S.: Your tomcat's transition to strictly indoor living will be a strain, undoubtedly. First on the list of aids to accommodation is surgery. Neutering him, even at this age, will help. Keep his nails trimmed and provide him with a scratching post and show him how to use it. Give you cat as much freedom to roam within the apartment as possible. Provide plenty of supervised playtime to help relieve boredom.

If you can't provide enough — and that is possible — a new (female) kitten, carefully introduced and their playtime supervised initially, could help him to keep his thoughts at home (even a platonic playmate can help considerablyl. Feed him frequently but don't overfeed him. Several small meals during the day help break it up. Finally, for those first few difficult days, a comparatively safe tranquilizer, prescribed by your veterinarian may be helpful.

DEAR DR. MILLER: We finally gave Mike to my brother though we hated to part with him. Pat and Mike are brothers themselves, Irish terriers, who grew up together here and started to fight when they got older and kept it up. Several times they had to have many stitches costing great vet bills because of the fights. They almost killed each other. My sister said we should have just let them fight it out because they are just like children who get into fights and then it is over. Were we wrong to separate them? — D.M.

Dear D.M.: Terriers tend to be among the most determined fighters and among the most aggressive of dogs with each other. Usually one dog will dominate the other after a fight or two and future contests, if any, will tend to be mock battles in which the submissive male will quickly yield. Your two were apparently equally matched and equally determined. If you had continued to leave them together the issue might have been determined only by one actually doing away with his brother. You found a practical means of concluding a conflict that could have ended fatally.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You will get a sudden urge to get in touch with one you haven't seen lately. Do so. It will prove exciting.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Doing for others will give you the greatest pleasure today. Be willing to serve. There's a surprise in store.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Someone interesting and unusual is likely to cross your path. There will be very good vibes between the two of you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Though you may be spending today around the house it won't be dull or uninteresting. A "fun" friend will pop in.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It will regenerate you if you can find some time today to work on your favorite hobby or something of a creative nature.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Continue to keep your eyes peeled for situations where you can turn a profit. They're available. Keep looking.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Someone will be telling of a good thing they have some inside information on in advance of others. Hear them out.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll get a bright insight today regarding an improvement you can make for the home. It should please your mate as well.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A person you care a great deal for would be very pleased to be surprised today with a little remembrance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Benefits will come to you now from a task you find rewarding mentally. It appears difficult to others, but not you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Kind words from you have a much greater effort on one who admires you than you realize. This person treasures your praise.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be prepared for a change in your schedule today. You won't do what you planned. You'll have more fun if you make the switch.

your birthday
March 10

Unexpected, sudden changes will occur this year, much to your liking. A wonderful new friendship will be established with one who will inspire fresh interests.

For Monday, March 11

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be selective as to whom you tell your good news to today. A certain friend isn't all that happy for you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A close companion is putting himself out today to do you a favor. Be sure you acknowledge his help in front of others.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be satisified at this time with your present status. Don't jump from something successful to something uproven.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) One you take for granted would be upset if he knew you are doing something on the sly for another who takes YOU for granted.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll make a promise to your mate and have every intention of keeping it. Later, something will change your mind.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It's not like you to be lazy and neglect your responsibilities, yet that's exactly what you'll be doing today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This can be a profitable day if you keep your mind on business. Put off the pursuit of pleasure till another time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're lucky today with speculative situations provided your moves are based on sound judgement. Don't exceed your limits.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It will somehow take the edge off things if you toot your horn about how you belped another. Let her do the boasting.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A friend is going to profit from something she learns of from you, but you won't appreciate the way it's done.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) An opportunity of a material nature is now available. However, it looks like you won't develop it as well as you should.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Rely solely on your judgment today. Do things as you feel they should be done, rather than try to guess what would please another.

Your birthday March 11

More opportunity than usual will come your way this year. It should not be taken for granted. This is the time to build for the future.

Getty takes lumps from the champ

LONDON (UPI) — Billionaire oil man J. Paul Getty wanted to be a professional boxer as a young man and asked Jack Dempsey for his opinion.

Dempsey put his thoughts into a couple of rights and lefts that dumped Getty on the canvas. Getty changed his mind and went on to become one of the richest men in the world.

That incident of nearly 60 years ago was recalled by Getty as host of a luncheon to "my old buddy" Dempsey at his stately home outsine London. The former heavyweight champ was in Britain as guest of the Ladbroke and Hertford Clubs.

Getty told the guests who included Mrs. Dempsey, her daughter Barbara and some Japanese oil men, how he had gone to Dempsey's training camp.

"Jack", I told him, "we're friends but I want to be a professional fighter. So I want to put on the gloves with you and try to knock you out. In turn I want your promise that you'll do your best to knock me out. This will be the test of whether I've got enough to make it in the ring."

After getting up for the third or fourth time Getty said he thought he would look elsewhere for fame and fortune.

"So you see," Getty said, "how much I owe Jack."

Jack said after the lunch that "I hit him hard enough to convince him he didn't have much chance as a professional fighter but not hard enough to really hurt him."

And as the party broke up Dempsey told his old friend:

"The oil business hasn't done too badly for you, has it?"

Secretary of State Kissinger

What makes Henry run?

By JOHN BARTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Anyone hoping to make a fortune by discovering and marketing the source of the incredible energy of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger may as well forget it. There are no secrets and no gimmicks, according to the people who know him best.

"There are no special foods or diets or exercises," said a high-ranking confidant of the Secretary. "The only physical exercise he does that I know of is coming to work.

"He is simply a man of extraordinary energy. He has the greatest built-in energy system I have ever seen. He's a dynamo."

Kissinger never ceases to amaze his colleagues, whether he is hopscotching around the world seeking solutions to such complex problems as peace in the Mideast, detente with the Soviet Union and China, or simply receiving an endless stream of foreign and U.S. leaders at his White House or State Department office.

He works 18 to 20 hours a day, seven days a week. If anything, his pace speeds up on weekends, sometimes to the dismay of foreign service officers who complain they almost never see their families anymore, except perhaps for a quick meal before rushing back to the office.

Compulsive need

One associate ascribes Kissinger's drive to a compulsive need to get things done.

"You know, if you really want to get ahead in this world, you have to move faster and work longer than others," the associate said. "Henry moves faster and works longer than anyone else.

"He doesn't even suffer from jet lag. In fact, he doesn't seem to suffer from any kind of lag. He's more than just a self-starter. He just never seems to run down."

But occasionally even Kissinger gets the message that not everyone has as unlimited a supply of energy as he does. A case in point was the recent visit to Washington of Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmi and Saudi Arabian Foreign Minister Omar Sakkaf.

The weekend in question, Kissinger made a 24-hour roundtrip to Key Biscayne, Fla., to discuss the energy crisis with President Nixon before returning for the Fahmi-Sakkaf meetings. On impulse, he included a four-hour meeting with Chairman J. William Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in Little Rock, Ark., hardly on a direct line between Washington and Florida.

Wears out Arab

On his return, the Secretary ordered the presidential jet he was using to land at nearby Dulles Airport instead of Andrews Air Force base, the usual practice, and rushed to meet the arriving Arab diplomats and inform them he had planned a working dinner within the hour.

Fahmi and Sakkaf thanked him for his hospitality but told him it was the equivalent of 2 a.m. EDT when they began their day. They said they were exhausted from their transatlantic flight and would see him the following morning.

Kissinger, who is not used to be being stood up, took it well. Instead, he invited several senior State Department officials to join him at dinner, which was just being removed from the ovens in the department's kitchen. The result was an unceremonious exodus.

"I mean no disrespect, sir," said one of the departing foreign service officers, "but this is the first night in several months I will be able to spend at home with my wife and in time to see my children."

No rancor

While Kissinger's seven-day work week has inconvenienced top aides, it has produced surprisingly little rancor.

"You can't criticize a man who is more demanding of himself than he is of others," one official said. "He is hard on us, but he is harder on himself."

Some critics contend Kissinger works so fast he is disorganized. "That simply is not true," a confidant said. "He is well organized and he knows how to tell people what to do."

Occasionally as he zips across the time zones trying to solve a rainbow of the world's problems on an itinerary that wolld be a travel agent's nightmare, Kissinger will catnap in the bed on his big jet.

"But only after instructing his staff what reports he wants when he awakens," the official said. "He might sleep then, but rarely. His staff never does. And he has instantaneous pickup. He will wake up and ask immediately for the reports, digest them and bound out of the plane ready for fullscale negotiations wherever he is."

Watches weight

Kissinger does have to watch his weight. "When I get into difficult negotiations, I tend to overeat," the Secretary told reporters on a recent Middle East trip, patting a rotund stomach to underscore his remark. He said he also consumes a lot of soft drinks under such circumstances.

When he is not traveling, Kissinger's normal day begins with breakfast at the State Department, never later than 8 a.m. An official said it invariably is "a working breakfast, either with some visiting official or with some senior staff members."

Then he is off to the White House, where Kissinger says he has daily meetings with the President. Later he returns to the State Department where he either has lunch on a tray in his office or presides over a working lunch for visiting dignitaries. Dinner is held in late evening under similar circumstances.

"Most of us eat our meals in order to refuel our bodies and give us time to ponder over the events of the day and our lives," an aide said. "Not him. Henry doesn't need a diversionary meal."

Pals caught by parents

By JEAN ADAMS

CAUGHT: (Q.) My best friend's parents went on a trip to Arizona. They were planning to be gone three days. The second day we were not in a mood for school so we stayed home—at my friend's house. Her parents came home unexpectedly and found us cutting school.

They told me I didn't have to tell my parents what happened, but I did anyway. Now I am grounded for a week. I can't go anywhere but school.

My friend and I are also afraid our parents may tell us we must end our friendship. What should we do? — Afraid in Pennsylvania

(A.) If parents are going to impose a penalty they usually do it immediately. A penalty has been imposed upon you and I have a feeling that will be the extent of it.

Your friend's parents probably see that they made a mistake in leaving her unsupervised, and your parents probably do too. In the future try to be more trustworthy.

LEFT DANGLING: (Q.) I met Bernie last summer. He seemed to like me and I gave him my telphone number. But he didn't call me until last Thursday night. He said he wanted to take me out Friday night and I said yes.

We talked a long time, then he said his mother had to use the phone and he would call back later to make plans. But he didn't call me that night or Friday or Friday night either.

Should I call him to find out what happened? I want to ask him to take me to our sophomore hop.—Puzzled in Pennsylvania

(A.) No, don't call him or invite him any place. He doesn't sound as if he has learned responsibility or good manners.

Endodontic implant is new dental possibility

NEW YORK (UPI) — False teeth may be about to go the way of the five cent beer.

Probably not within the immediate future, but some day artificial roots routinely may be implanted. That would eliminate the need for false teeth.

When it will happen for everyone without teeth is a matter of conjecture at this time. But undoubtedly, the development will be a reality for all who want it some day.

That prognostication is from Dr. Carlos M. Giro who spoke at the annual meeting of the Greater New York Deneal Society, the world's largest dental educational seminar.

Giro told his fellow dentists that the endodontic implant — or stabilizer —has been employed successfully for more than 20 years in South America, and slightly less in Europe.

"It has been used with ever increasing satisfaction by a small group of dentists in the United States for the past 11 years," he said.

Some of the disciples of oral implantology remain controversial. But Giro described procedures for the endodontic implant, a rigid inert nonelectrolytic rod. He considers the implant methodology simple and practical.

Here's how it is done: a rod is inserted through the root canal of a periodontally weakened tooth into the adjacent bone. The tooth is wobbly in a way due to the breaking down of support provided by failing gums.

The purpose of the rod is to fixate or stabilize the tooth by artificially increasing the length of its root.

Giro paid tribute to pioneers of this discipline of implantation, saying he believed the dental profession at large should be aware of its possibilities.

"Indeed," he said, "the prescription for removal of teeth can and should be changed to that of the insertion of endodontic stabilizers in many of the following situations: advanced cases of root resorbtion; accidental horizontal fracture of roots; cases where certain orthodox treatments would result in inadequate bone support for affected teeth.

"There are many pertinent oral, systemic and emotional conditions that would preclude the safe use of the procedure," he said.

However, in cases where it has been practical it has proved most rewarding to the discriminating dentist and his grateful patients who were relieved of the threat of the dreaded "full dentures."

Pediatrician offers suggestions for new freedom in child-raising

By PJATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Make way for a book that allows a little freedom in child-raising. For the parents—and child.

"New Wives' Tales" (Prentice-Hall) by Dr. Lendon H. Smith, a pediatrician, even entertains and tickles ribs. It also fills you full of common sense, solutions to problems — be they in the area of the potty, playpen or sandbox.

Dr. Smith has been in pediatrics since 1951 in Portland, Ore. He is professor of pediatrics at University of Oregon Medical School and has written other books for parents.

He says there is a need for new wives' tales for a simple reason. The old ones don't apply to present-day situations.

There are some ground rules when you take the child to the doctor. To wit:

—Ask for the doctor's help. Appeal to the Albert Schweitzer humanitarian sometimes latent under the scientist.

—Never state the diagnosis; that is his job and the main reason he stays in business.

—Try to list the problems separately and in their order of appearance.

—Let the doctor decide if the patient needs to be examined.

Some of the new wives' tales:

—"When all else fails, treat the doctor as a sane, intelligent human being who may be saddled with a few old wives' tales himself."

—"Take pictures of the baby; he'll never be that cute again." (The old wives' tale about this was that bright lights from a flashbulb will damage a baby's eyes.)

—"Eyes cross if they are going to cross." (The old wives' tale was that a baby gets crosseyed if objects are placed too close to his face.)

—"There are about 20 causes of colic. Cold hands and feet may be one cause, but usually they are but a sign that colic is present." (The old wives' tale held that colic is due to cold feet and hands.)

—"Babies may have sore gums when they are teething, but most fevers are due to viruses." (The old wives' tale was that babies have a fever when they are teething.)

—"If the floor is fairly clean, your toddler does not need to wear shoes." (Old wives' tale held that babies must have stiff shoes when they first walk or they will become flat-footed.)

—"Beating a child for poor school performance is like scolding him for getting the mumps." (Old wives' tale—use the hickory stick.)

—"If Edison had not been thrown out of school, we might still be using candles." (Old wives' tale—if you want to learn anything, you must sit still, keep your mouth shut and listen.)

—"The only light to worry about is the strong rays from direct viewing of the sun." (Old wives' tale held that a child with measles should be kept in a dark room.)

—"If your child grows up to be happier than you, he may also be smarter." (This replaces the old wives' tale holding that if a child does not go to college he will be a failure.)

— "Children should learn when it is appropriate to laugh and when it is appropriate to cry." (This takes over for the old wives' tale saying you should never let your child see you cry.)

Spare the rod and spoil the child is another old wives' tale nixed by Dr. Smith. The new wives' tale goes like this:

"Do spoil. But call it programming for mutual trust."

Children of divorced parents are insecure — another old wives' tale. The new one:

"A man with a short attention span may not be able to remain married very long."

"My Ulcer & Arthritis Are Well Now"
Says Mr. D. Rosa: For a whole year I took all kinds of remedies and pills, some which aggravated my stomach yet my arthritis was not better. I got tired of fooling around and getting no help so made up my mind to fly to L.A. and see Dr. Wing. Today my stomach and shoulder are both well without the use of drugs, surgery, shots or hospitalization. I am in fine shape and eating again.
"ULCERATIVE COLON GONE"
Says T. L. Henson: "I had ulcerative stomach and colon trouble as shown by X-rays. I went to several doctors but did not receive any help. I went to Dr. Wing for 5 weeks and was better. After two months, I went to another doctor. The X-rays showed the ulcerative colon and stomach was cleared up.

Ehler-Miller rites vows are exchanged

MRS. DELBERT L. EHLER

The Little Chapel of Flowers in West Covina was the setting for the marriage of Margie Lynn Miller and Delbert L. Ehler.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Whittaker of El Monte. Parents of the groom are Mrs. and Mrs. Herbert Ehler of Pomona.

The bride wore a floor-length gown of candlelight satin with a bodice of imported lace and pearls. The chapel-length train was enhanced with lace. A pearl and lace headpiece held the bride's silk illusion veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of glamellias and ribbons.

Mrs. Ann Myers was matron of honor and Sandra Hill was bridesmaid.

Chuck Jackson was best man and Chuck Bakke served as usher.

Susie and Becky Myers handled the guest book during the reception at the chapel's Magnolia Room. One hundred guests attended the wedding and reception.

The newlyweds will reside in El Monte.

Mrs. Ehler is a graduate of Arroyo High School and Mr. Ehler graduated from Damien High School.

Ask Dr. Brothers

Ducking the blame

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband used to blame me for everything that went wrong in his and our life and now my grown son is doing the same thing. Whatever goes wrong is either my fault or his wife's fault, according to him. My son has had many educational advantages and because of these, he has gone to the top of his profession. He has two loving children, a good wife, and a very good salary yet it is never enough. He is never happy and because he is so driven he makes everyone else's life miserable. I realize it may seem unmotherly to say this, but it's true.

Sometimes when my son intimates that something is really my fault, it worries me so much that I'm unable to sleep. When I do sleep I have nightmares. I inherited some money from my husband who died several years ago and I'd like to get away from this family strain for a while, but whenever I mention it, my son behaves as though I'm deserting him at some special time of need or crisis. There are no crises other than those he creates, but I don't know how to convince him of this. — B.K.

Dear B.K.: Usually, the habit of blaming others begins early in childhood and it is possible that your son learned this from observing his father's behavior. He probably also observed that because you seemed to accept the blame, the game seemed to work successfully.

The blamer, disappointed that his expectations are not met, feels angry and decides to blame someone else rather than accept or reevaluate his own weaknesses or the unreality of his own expectations.

Dr. Martin Shepard has pointed out that many people use blame to avoid self-examination. All criticism may be countered by blaming the person who is criticizing. Blaming reactions tend to run in families, for they are imitated just like other behavior patterns. The thing for you and your daughter-in-law to realize is that it takes two to play the game. If you and she refuse to accept the blame when it is not warranted, your son will gradually look about for some other scapegoat.

A good way to start refusing to accept the blame is to follow through on your desire to get away. The more outside interests you have, the harder it will be for your son to use you as you describe. You will also probably be doing his wife a favor, for she may learn from your example.

If you get away from the pressures you feel with your son and if you leave your anxieties behind you, you would begin to sleep much better. Sleep patterns vary and everyone needs a different amount of sleep but there's no question that problems such as you seem to be having will affect your sleep. Usually as people grow older they need somewhat less sleep.

If you find that nightmares continue to destroy your sleep, then you might try daytime naps. Studies reveal afternoon naps bring much sweeter dreams that night sleep.

Make a belated New Year's resolution to break the habit of allowing yourself to appear to accept blame that doesn't belong on your shoulders. Since you don't enjoy being a martyr, let your son know it and stop playing the role.

Well Baby Clinic opened

Through the cooperation of the Pomona Health Center and Walnut Junior Women's Club, Walnut now has its own Well Baby Clinic.

The clinic will operate on the second Monday of each month from 8:30 to 11 a.m. at the Optimist Club building, 19813 Camino De Rose.

All babies must be registered and charted at the Pomona Health Center before an appointment can be made. This may be done by calling 623-6811, extension 508. Records already at the Pomona center may be transferred to Walnut by calling the same phone number.

First woman on exchange no libber

CHICAGO (UPI) — The first woman to trade on the floor of the Midwest Stock Exchange and invade a 91-year-old men-only bastion says she is there "to do business", not to further the cause of women's liberation.

"I don't mind sticking my neck out for a cause. But if I played woman's libber, I'd be out of business," L. Kim Brown said.

"I'm here to do business. Use your foxiness. Use your brain. There are certain times your femininity can help."

The 22-year-old representative of Kenneth J. Brown and Co., Muncie, Ind. (she's Kenneth Brown's daughter), was the third woman admitted to membership on the exchange, but on Jan. 14 became the first woman to actually trade on the exchange floor.

Miss Brown, standing in front of her exchange cubicle, told how she's been received in a men's world. Trading was over for the day and the cavernous hall was emptying out. Several brokers stopped by to chat and joke.

Like a fraternity

"Everyone's really great. It's like a fraternity or a football team.

"I think most of them were happy I had this opportunity, but I think they wonder if I'll use this to the fullest advantage.

"Some kind of expect me to fail," she said.

"I have not been concerned with woman's liberation," Miss Brown said.

The attention her membership in the exchange has received prompted her to delve into the issue and articulate her viewpoint. She said it was somewhere "in the middle of the road."

Felt hemmed in

"I think a lot of women in women's liberation are trying to take it without earning it. They won't have the respect of the people they're working with," she said.

"When you look back in time, women haven't been out long. If you're good at what you're doing, this will come out in the wash."

But the Indiana native said she personally felt hemmed in by her hometown where "if you weren't going steady or engaged, you were out of it socially."

About two years ago she came to Chicago. "I started waking up to the fact there was more to life than a little house and babies. And then I found taking care of myself wasn't that hard."

All in the family

Miss Brown more or less grew up in the stock brokerage business and has worked in the field at least during school vacations since she was 15. When her father needed a floor broker on the exchange, he chose his daughter.

"I was a logical choice, keeping it (the exchange membership) in the family. Someday it (the business) may be mine."

She said she originally chose her career because "someday if I was needed, I would be able to take over if necessary."

Hatfield bill aims at mail list abuses

Hatfield said Wednesday he introduced the bill, similar to one he proposed in 1971, because he believed the "indiscriminate use" of mailing lists was "a serious invasion of personal privacy."

Half of today's business growth tied to inflation

NEW YORK (UPI) — How much of the current American business affluence is mythical— due entirely to inflation?

A study made for United Press International by Bernard Gelb, an official of the Conference Board, an independent New York business research bureau, shows about half the growth results from inflation if the reported profits and sales of a large group of major corporations in their domestic operations are restated in the 1957 dollar. That dollar is the constant dollar used by the federal government in making economic measurements.

Gelb found the $62.5 billion in earnings reported by these companies for 1973 shrank to $40.9 billion when stated in 1957 dollars and the 159 per amounted to only 70 per cent in constant dollars.

UPI also asked Gelb to restate in 1957 dollars the earnings and sales of some representative companies who have reported 1973 earnings. The results were similar.

The measurement of inflation of earnings is not as reliable as that of sales because many changes in the operations of individual companies have occurred and some costs have gone up for reasons other than inflation.

Most cost increases are due to inflation. Nevertheless, the inflation of volume of earnings may or may not affect profits when stated as return on capital or yield on sales. And it may or may not affect profit margins on goods. This should be borne in mind.

Labor spokesmen and economists have pointed out for years that large portions of annual wage increases are offset by inflation.

Comparison of corporate sales and profits in current and constant dollars is relevant because of agitation in Wall Street to get companies to report results in both kinds of dollars.

In a recent article in the Wall Street Journal, Prof. Irving Kristol said the reporting of earnings only in current dollars saddles business with a credibility gap.

Even sovhisticated persons, Kristol said, are confused and angered when a company boasts it has just had the most profitable year in its history and, in the same report, says it isn't earning enough to insure survival. He said this is dangerous, and he warned that companies should consider the political effects. The blunt fact, Kristol said, is that 1973 was not a very profitable year for American business in spite of the big numbers in the sales and earnings reports and the public ought to be advised of it.

Al Russell, controller of Indiana Telephone Corp., of Indianapolis, agreed. He told UPI his company has been reporting earnings and revenues in both current and constant dollars since 1954. Since 1957 it has used the 1957 dollar as the constant dollar just as federal agencies do. "We only have about 250 stockholders, so the great value of constant dollar records is to our own management," Russell said. "It keeps us from selfdeception about how fat we are growing and prevents us from making a lot of mistakes we might make if we relied solely on keeping our records in inflated current dollars."

The proposal to report corporate results in constant dollars has drawn adverse comment. A Notre Dame University professor said union leaders might be unhappy about it because revelation that profits have not gone up as fast as the current dollar reports indicate might force unions to scale down some of their demands. Other critics said taxing must be based on current dollar reports because taxation on the basis of constant dollar reports would be so complicated Congress might have to redraft all tax schedules.

Among specific examples, Gelb included only one oil company, Conoco, and only its earnings for comparison since at the time of the study Conoco's sales had not been reported. It since has reported sales of $4.5 billion.

Conoco reported earnings of $242.7 million in 1973. Restated in 1957 dollars that shrank to $158.2 million and compared with $47.465 million reported by Conoco for 1958, still a substantial growth.

Armco Steel Corp. reported earnings of $107.5 million for 1973 on sales of $2.39 billion. In 1957 dollars that amounted to sales of $1.514 billion and earnings of $70.35 million. For 1958 Armco reported earnings of $57.512 million on sales of $867.39 million.

Eagle Picher Co. had sales of $312.9 million and earnings of $14.766 million for last year. But in 1957 dollars, that amounted to sales of $195.1 million and earnings of $9.63 million. In 1958 Eagle Picher earned $2.09 million with sales of $98.132 million.

General Motors' reported 1973 earnings of $2.398 billion shrank by almost $800 million to $1.569 billion when converted to constant dollars, and the sales of $35.8 billion were reduced to $22.686 billion. Back in 1958 GM earned $633.63 million on sales of $9.522 billion. Incidentally, 1958 was not an especially good year for GM.

Gulf & Western Industries' $89.216 million 1973 earnings and $1.927 billion sales amounted to only $58.385 million on sales of $1.22 billion expressed in constant dollars. In 1958, Gulf & Western was a pigmy that lost $730,000 on sales of only $8.4 million.

United Air Lines reported $51.128 million in net income last year on sales of $2.06 billion. Put into 1957 dollars that shrank to a net of $33.46 million on revenues of $1.305 billion. But it still was a big growth from 1958 when the airline had revenues of only $320 million and earned $14.2 million.

PPG Industries, Inc., had earnings of $104.4 million last year on sales of $1.53 billion. In constant 1975 dollars that amounted to $68.385 million in earnings on sales of $969.6 million. But PPG had sales of only $513.65 million and earnings of $32.07 million in 1958.

Pacific Gas & Electirc earned $243.6 million last year on sales of $1.49 billion. In constant dollars that amounted to a net of $159.4 million on sales of $944.2 million compared with 1958's $85.07 million net on revenues of $534.8 million.

Richardson-Merrill's 1973 net of $41.4 million on sales of $505.4 million slimmed down to $27.09 million in constant dollars and the sales thinned to $320.3 million. In 1958 Richardson-Merrill, then known as Vicq Chemical Co., earned $26 million on only $115 million in sales.

Optimism hits Exchange; prices show real upswing

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stock prices rallied in stepped up trading on the New York Stock Exchange this week as Wall Street expressed optimism that the Arab oil embargo is nearly over.

With motor tourism, glamor and oil stocks leading the upswing, the Dow Jones industrial average rose 26.13 to 878.05. The gain was highlighted by a 19.24-point advance on Tuesday when the Saudi Arabian oil minister said the oil embargo had served its purpose and should be lifted. It was the biggest single gain by the Dow in two months.

Although the rest of the week produced baffling contradictions on when, where and if Arab oil ministers would meet to discuss the ending of the oil stoppage, investors maintained their high hopes.

On Thursday, however, those hopes seemingly were dealt a blow by reports the Arabs might not necessarily agree on a joint resolution to lift the embargo. Further, Arab sources differed as to the time and place of a planned meeting to discuss the lifting of the embargo. The Dow suffered its only loss of the week that day, tumbling 10.79 points.

The latest reports, coming after the close Friday, indicated the meeting of Arab oil ministers, originally set for Sunday, will begin next Wednesday in Tripoli, rather than Cairo. And there were signs of strong opposition in some Arab quarters to lifting the embargo at this time.

Since the beginning of the year, the Arab oil embargo has been Wall Street's most sensitive issue.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index climbed 2.39 to 97.78. The NYSE index added 1.38 to 52.38.

There were 1,238 gainers, 562 losers, among the 1,992 issues traded.

QUINTESSENCE

by
Florence Minto

Just returned Sunday, March 3, from a delightful cruise on the "SPIRIT OF LONDON" from Acapulco. We were invited along with a few other travel agents and travel writers to discover firsthand that P & O's newest offspring meets the demands of the discerning and travel-wise American public.

Menus have been revised and daily one can choose between Roast Cornish Game Hen, Prime Roast Loin of Beef Au Jus, or Grilled Pork Chops Hawaiian. Yet they retain the "very British" dishes of Honeycomb Tripe and Onions, Poached Rainbow Trout garnished with Shrimp and Truffles, plus some Goanese Indian Specialties, Kofta Curry and Rice, and Mulligatawny Curry Soup . . .. as options for those who wish to experiment. A special order of English Fish & Chips, Green Salad, and Cold Beer can be ordered. Hip! Hip! Extensive surveys revealed to them what we all know from childhood that Californians like Green salads as a separate course and Easterners want salads as a side dish served with the main course but all Americans like salads. So a variety of tossed greens, or fresh vegetable or fresh fruit salads are offered every day. An assortment of at least 8 cheeses with fruit are offered and it's amazing how many guests partake after having eaten a six course meal. Midnight arrives so early that if you are not careful you will miss the buffet. Nightly entertainment is divided between professional acts and an English Comedy Revue which has some hilarious moments featuring members of the crew.

The ship was ordered to be the sister ship to the "SOUTHWARD" on the Caribbean but when it became available, P & O bought it. So it is truly just two years old, not rehulled, not refurbished, not renamed, just Brand NEW. Maintenance is good and decor is warm and pleasant. Another innovation is the Double-bedded room although all twin-beds can be converted.

Dining Room and Cabin Stewards are all Portugese speaking Catholics from Goa, India, whereas Deck crews are Muslim Indians and Engine Room crews are Muslim Pakhistanian. Crews of a feather working together maintain a harmonious family under the precise management of the English officers and staff. It adds spice to be on a "foreign" english-speaking ship with an international (and friendly) crew.

Rates start at $535.00 per person for the 10-day cruise and $375.00 per person for the 7-day cruise.

We brought back actual daily menus and copies of the program of activities and news sheets. Just "Ask and ye shall receive" a copy. Pomona Travel Agency, 623 6474.

(If you would like to visit on board the "Spirit" call and we will set up a time.)

ROCK GROUP?—Country Britches may sound like a new rock group but it's really a sportswear division of an old established firm. Here is a "Mini-Bal" jacket that reverses to donegal. Worn with cavalry twill jodhpur pants with boots, it's the perfect answer for the active sportsman.

Men's wear

Saville Row aghast at young newcomer

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Savile Row, that bastion of expensive English hand-tailored clothing, is expanding its horizons in the United States. The latest entry is Tommy Nutter whose shop at 35a turned that staid and sometimes stuffy thoroughfare upside down.

Nutter, now 30, was the first newcomer to Savile Row in decades and the old line shops that lined the street were aghast at his audacity. They also were aghast at some of his modern style innovations but he soon became known as one of the smartest tailors in London.

Movie stars and world celebrities flocked to 35a not just for what the British refer to as gentlemanly "bespoke" tailoring but to seize upon some of the innovations —wild and weird mixtures of fabrics in a single suit, for example. Most are seeking the dash that has put Nutter on most of the world's best-dressed lists.

His emissary in America is Edward Sexton, also 30, a partner from the start and the original cutter when the firm was founded in 1969. The cutter is the key man and on his handling of the scissors depends whether a firm will be just another tailoring shop.

In coming to the United States Sexton will be following the time-honored traditions of Savile Row —an expensive hotel suite in some first rate hotel and then extensive fittings before the finished garment is airmailed from London.

Anthony Sinclair has done it in the past. So have most of the other famous of Savile Row. The most recent arrival is Michael Skinner whose claim to fame is to have made the wedding dress uniform worn by Capt. Mark Phillips on the occasion of his marriage to Princess Anne.

You hear a lot about men designing men's wear. Now there are a couple of women doing it —Pinky Wolman and Dianne Beaudry of a firm called Flo Toronto, Ltd, and winner of a Coty award in 1972. They have picked chintz for men's spring fashions.

Chintz shows up in a solid double-breasted suit and a bird and leaf print jacket available with solid chintz pants. They use a gauzy fabric in a tweed effect for a short jacket and make up some drawstring pants to match. Another spring number is a safari style suit in shantung, but perhaps the most successful is a white cotton pique blazer.

An odd thing about boutique type operations is that names of firms sometimes sound like rock groups. The distinguished clothing firm of Joseph and Feiss Co., looked around and selected "Country Britches" for its new designer collection.

You might think that meant britches to be worn in the country, but no, designer Salvatore Cesarani uses it for suits, sportscoats, outerwear, and, of course, trousers. One outstanding design was an Alpine coat in loden cloth with a great pleat down the back to give it a lot of swing. A hooded windbreaker was in poplin but reverses to donegal, and there is a removable catch-all pocket that goes clear across the front.

Most outstanding in the collection was a Mini-bal jacket that also reverses to donegal. It has bellows pockets and is cinched at the waist with D-rings. But what made it spectacular was that it was shown with cavalry twill jodhpur pants to be worn in or out of the boots —the first time jodhpurs have been seen around Manhattan in years.

One of the important trends to emerge from the spring men's wear collections is towards cool clothing in preparation for a energy-conscious summer when there might be trouble keeping the old air conditioner humming at full speed.

Clubman, possibly the largest privately owned clothing company in the world, showed several cool-looking items in its spring and summer collection. One was an airy double-knit blazer in navy accented by white stitching and pocket trim and worn with trousers carrying a nautical motif.

A multi-colored plaid sportcoat was in lightweight texturized woven polyester for coolness and with a three-dimensional effect in the weave. A white blazer suit was in a woven polyester that permits air to move in and out, and a very informal suit was in a brash tartan pattern on a woven polyester with the feel of linen.

Involvement in Indian affairs urged on church

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For 15 years, Dr. Paul Boe was a church bureaucrat toiling in the national office of the 2.3 million member American Lutheran Church. Wounded Knee changed all that.

Now Boe, 59, divides his time between attending the trial of Indian activists who occupied the South Dakota hamlet of Wounded Knee for 71 days, and pleading on the church lecture circuit for more involvement by the nation's churches in Indian problems.

"I'm not going around as the great white fixer," Boe said in an interview, "but I can use the Wounded Knee event to draw attention to Indian problems."

For Boe, Wounded Knee—where he spent 10 days as a confidante of the occupying Indians—was something like the Apostle Paul's conversion experience on the road to Damascus.

"It was a profound and moving thing for me," Boe said. "It changed my life in so many ways that I'll never be the same.

Brush with jail

"At Wounded Knee, I had an opportunity to be with a group of people who were willing to die—not eager to die, but willing to die—so that their aims might be achieved.

"You can't go away from that without being changed, without be profoundly changed."

Boe's 10 days at Wounded Knee and his refusal to tell a grand jury what he had seen there, transformed a genial, moderate man into a militant on the Indian issue.

He concedes it was his own brush with jail and the raising of the issue of "clergy confidentiality" that has given him his platform across the country.

The issue arose because of the nature of Boe's stay in Wounded Knee. He has been associated with the American Indian Movement (AIM) for five years and helped channel church money into AIM programs.

Refused to testify

In the spring of 1973, leaders of AIM "invited me to come to Wounded Knee on the second day of the occupation to see for myself."

One AIM leader said "the church has been with us all these years" and that it was important for it to be present at Wounded Knee.

After the occupation, Boe was subpoenaed to testify before a federal grand jury. He refused on the groumds that what he saw and heard at Wounded Knee was privileged.

Boe was cited for contempt and ordered jailed for the duration of the grand jury's deliberations, but an appeals court overturned the citation but left the legal issue of confidentiality unresolved.

He concedes his involvement with AIM at Wounded Knee "made the church realize that it can be involved in controversial issues without threatening its survival."

Church stance

"I'm quite encouraged about the stance of the church," he said. "The strong endorsement of the church bureaucracy concerning the rightness of my being in Wounded Knee is encouraging. The bureaucracy of the church has usually been quite timid about facing controversy."

"People have become more thoughtful about the issue," Boe said. "People are beginning to take a harder look at the systems of society."

It is the "systems," Boe says, that Wounded Knee was all about — the treaty system, where promises continue to be "bent and broken"; the tribal government system, which he likened to "a high school student council where you elect leaders who have no power"; and the system of justice where Indians "are picked up and jailed for things for which we would be given a polite warning."

Boe said Indians perceive the church as one of the most oppressive systems in society, as "the handmaiden of the government."

And he criticizes contemporary Indian concerns programs of the church—even some he in the past has been involved in— as "remedial" and "still in the missionary framework."

"The church ought to be involved in changing the systems that hurt people," he said. "But very little is being done to bring about change in those systems as they affect Indians—mostly, I think, because the aggressive tactics of the Indians who want change put people off."

"White people and Indians must sit down and listen to each other. When it comes to action, contact the Indians and see what they want you to do."

Coast is clear for Cal 500 today

By KEVIN CLOE
P-B Staff Writer

ONTARIO — After a week of hassling with the rain, it finally looks like Ontario Motor Speedway gets a break.

With perfect weather predicted, OMS will present the fifth running of the California 500 today, beginning at 11:30 a.m.

Last Saturday, rain postponed time trials for five hours. Then Sunday, the Twin 100 qualifying races were delayed for two hours because of early morning drizzles.

Thursday was set aside for carburetion tests, but a driving rain forced United States Auto Club officials to run the tests two days later than scheduled.

The pre-race tests were finally held Saturday afternoon, with all 33 entrants making an appearance.

The rain was a big factor this week, but it didn't overshadow the performance of the great A.J. Foyt.

Foyt, who will be sitting on the pole this morning when the green flag is waved to start the 500-mile ordeal, did almost everything one driver could do in preparation for the USAC championship car opener for 1974.

First he was the "speed leader" for three of the four practice days prior to the time trials last Saturday. His fastest lap in those three days finally ended up at 190.904 miles an hour.

Then Saturday afternoon in the two-lap qualifying run, bidding for the pole position, Foyt shocked everybody by running faster than his practice speed even with a manifold pressure restrictor on the car.

His two-lap average of 190.617 miles per hour was five miles an hour faster than any other driver's speed. With that he obviously won the pole position.

A.J. Foyt

And then Sunday, Foyt piloted his No. 14 orange Coyote-Foyt to a convincing victory in the first of the two Twin 100 qualifying races. His finished 17.6 seconds ahead of second-place finisher Bobby Unser and averaged 176.873 miles per hour for the 40 laps.

Saturday afternoon in the final day of practice, A.J. was again the fastest. In an official clocking by USAC officials, the winningest driver in USAC history flew with a 185.950 mark.

Needless to say, Foyt is the heavy favorite to win the fifth Cal 500 and become the first driver ever to win races in all three of USAC's 500-mile championship car events.

He has won the Indianapolis 500 three times, and he claimed the Pocono 500 title last year.

Joining A.J. in the front row this morning will be Johnny Rutherford in the No. 3 bright orange Team McLaren Offenhauser and Bobby Unser in the No. 48 Olsonite Eagle Offy.

Unofficially, he was clocked at over 188 miles per hour during the final day of practice Saturday.

While Foyt won the pole with an average speed of over 190 miles per hour, Rutherford could only come up with an average of 185.989 and Bobby Unser managed only a 185.797 average.

The second row will consist of Carruthers in the No. 21 Cobre Eagle-Offy, Steve Krisiloff in the American Kids Racer Eagle-Offy No. 18, and Lloyd Ruby in the No. 9 Unlimited Racing Eagle-Offy.

The big question this year in the Cal 500 is whether the cars can complete the 500 miles before using up their 280 gallon limit of methanol fuel: The amount of fuel restricted to each competitor was trimmed by 60 gallons this year, forcing the cars to slow down while also creating a token gesture during the so-called energy crisis.

Johnny Rutherford

It's been figured out by most of the drivers that the cars will have to average about 1.8 miles per gallon in order to finish the race. The average speed projected for the race considering the fuel situation has been somewhere between 180 to 185 miles per hour.

That would be the average if the yellow lights and the pit stops were not included — in other words, running average.

Foyt has pointed out early last week that he thought there was a possibility that a driver might go all-out for 400 or 450 miles, pick up lap money, and deliberately use up his fuel alloment early.

But most of the drivers said it was a far-fetched idea, that a driver would rather finish than just lead the race and then run out of fuel.

It should be interesting today anyway to see if there will be a driver who figures he doesn't have a chance to win. He might then deliberately put too much "boost" into his engine, try to lead as many laps as he can, and run out of fuel.

After Sunday's qualifying races, OMS officials found out it didn't have a full 33-car field to start the race. There were two spots still left open, so they extended invitations to Al Loquasto and Johnny Parsons Jr. to fill the field. Obviously, both accepted.

Loquasto had been practicing for two days prior to last Saturday's time trials, but blew an engine on the last day of practice and couldn't find a new one by the qualifying deadline.

There was another big announcement made Saturday.

Mike Hiss, who finished second in the 1972 Cal 500 after replacing the injured Mark Donohue in the No. 66 Sunoco Special McLaren-Offy, might take the place of Lee Brayton in the No. 28 Eagle-Offy.

Brayton was scheduled to start the race on the inside of Row 10, but if Hiss replaces him the car will be moved to the back of the field.

Brayton's crew didn't have to make the final decision until this morning, just before the race.

It's the Bruins in a rout—Trojans die quickly, 82-52

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — UCLA should be going into the National Basketball Association playoffs rather than the NCAA Tournament.

The Bruins would probably find more competition in the pro ranks than they will face in the annual UCLA Invitational.

Only the rankings say the Bruins aren't No. 1 entering the collegiate cage championship classic.

Don't you believe it.

UCLA simply destroyed cross-town rival USC, 82-52, here Saturday night in what was advertised as the showdown of the Pacific-8 Conference crown.

USC, which entered the game tied with the Bruins in Pac-8 play and for the season, must have felt as if it was a victim at a mass execution.

UCLA, obviously highly emotional, simply tore the Trojans apart in rolling up an incredible 47-13 halftime margin thanks to a pair of consecutive points streaks of 12 and 14.

Premature reports of UCLA's death because of three losses this season didn't take into account how the Bruins play in pressure games.

Nobody in the country could have beaten the Bruins Saturday night and that might include the pros.

Mr. Basketball, Bill Walton, is especially hard to stop in big games.

Walton, playing his final collegiate game in Los Angeles, was as awesome as ever and clearly displayed why he was named College Basketball Player of the Year for the third time earlier Saturday.

When Walton is fired up, he is the greatest of all times.

The 6-9 senior from La Mesa made 9 out of 10 shots and two of three free throws for 20 and grabbed 16 rebounds in UCLA's devastating first half.

The big redhead ended up with 26 points in making 12 of 14 plus 20 rebounds.

UCLA (23-3) will open its defense of its many national championships Thursday night against Dayton in the NCAA West Regionals at the Unversity of Arizona in Tucson.

USC (22-4) will probably accept a bid to the new Collegiate Commissioners' Association Tournament in St. Louis for second place teams.

"Our first half was outstanding," UCLA coach John Wooden said. "All of our player played well and when Walton is doing well, he is an inspiration to the rest of the team. We were in an excellent mental, physical and emotional state for this game."

UCLA did a remarkable job on defense against SC's new offense. "Our defense played away from the ball," Wooden explained. "When you do that, it makes it easier when you man gets the ball. I can't remember a better defensive half. We didn't give them time to get set up for their shots."

"We didn't play our kind of ball," USC coach Bob Boyd said. "I can't emphasize that enough even though I don't want to be taking anything away from the Bruins. You put their alert play with our poor execution, you get a mismatch."

It's hard to believe that USC once led, but it's true. Gus Williams stole a UCLA pass and drove the length of the court for an easy layup (2-0) to send Trojan fans into ecstasy. USC supporters were noticeably quiet after that.

UCLA scored its next 12 points to take early command of the game. Its later 14-point spurt made 43-10 to bury any Trojan hopes.

UCLA's Keith Wilkes (52) hits the floor after a collision with USC's Clint Chapman, but gets a pass off anyway Saturday night as the Bruins routed the Trojans for the Pacific-8 championship.

Flyers, Lobos win openers

By P-B Wire Dispatches

Dayton and New Mexico scored victories in the NCAA Western Regionals at Pocatello, Idaho Saturday and will advance to the Western finals at Tucson, Arizona Thursday.

New Mexico will face WAC champion University of San Francisco while Dayton has the unenviable task of meeting Pac-8 titlist UCLA.

Tommie Lipsey was high for the Diablos with 22 points. Billy Mallory, who fouled out accounted for 14. Farmer Chino High and Chaffey College player Darcy Bailey had four points for CSLA in a sub-role.

Fourteenth-ranked New Mexico beat Idaho State 73-65 in the second game at Pocatello. Lobo Bernard Hardin led all scorers with 19 points.

Idaho State refused to yield to New Mexico in the second half, coming within two points of the lead several times. But the Lobos stayed ahead to clinch the NCAA playoff win.

Mark Saiers had 18 for the Lobos, while former Mt. San Antonio College star Dan Spindler and Kevin Hoyt each had 14 points to pace State.

Burleson's 38 points lifts top rated Wolfpack in o.t.

GREENSBORO N.C. (UPI) — Seven-foot-four Tommy Burleson scored 38 points Saturday night to lead top-ranked North Carolina State to a 103-100 overtime win over fifth-ranked Maryland for the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball championship and a berth in the NCAA playoffs.

Burleson scored 24 of his points in the second half as North Carolina State, down by as many as 13 points in the first half, and 55-50 at the intermission, rallied for a 97-97 tie in regulation time.

All-America David Thompson added 29 for the Wolfpack.

State led briefly in the first half by one point and twice in the second half but never by more than three points until they went out front 97-93 with 2-12 left in regulation play.

Tom Roy pulled the Terrapins to within two with 1:43 remaining and the Terps tied the score with 1:12 remaining on a shot by Len Elmore.

The Terrapins got possession after Roy's basket when John Lucas tied up Moe Rivers and tipped the tossup to Elmore.

Maryland had a chance to win in regulation after Tom McMillan stole a Wolfpack pass with 36 seconds to go.

The Terps played for the last shot and Lucas tried a 25 footer with one second to go and it missed.

Maryland moved out front in the five minute overtime period when Elmore sank a foul shot 1:10 into the period. Burleson put the Wolfpack back out front 15 seconds later. Maryland's final points came on a pair of free throws by Moe Howard who was fouled by Thompson with 2:45 left.

Phil Spence gave N.C. State all the points it needed with a basket with 2:04 to go, and Monte Towe sealed the victory by connecting on two free throws when Maryland's Billy Hahn made a desperation foul with six seconds remaining. Towe, with 17 points, was the only member of the Wolfpack besides Burleson and Thompson in double figures.

UPI Player of Year? -- One guess

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bill Walton of UCLA, the introspective "Giant of Westwood" who has been the most dominating force in college basketball for the last three years, Saturday was named winner of the James A. Naismith Trophy as the United Press International's Player of the Year for the third consecutive season.

The 6-foot-11 center from La Mesa, Calif., who has led UCLA to 82 victories in 85 games over the past three seasons, joins Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati (1958-60) as the only men in the 20-year history of the UPI Player of the Year voting to win the award three times.

The Naismith Trophy, given annually since 1969 by the Atlanta Tipoff Club to the nation's outstanding college player as selected by UPI, will be presented to Walton at a dinner in Atlanta on March 31.

Walton, like he has been the past two seasons, was a runaway winner in a balloting conducted of 241 sports writers and sportscasters from across the nation. The redheaded senior collected 168 votes and beat out junior David Thompson, who had 54 votes, for the second year in a row.

The only other players to receive at least two votes were All-Americans Marvin Barnes of Providence (4) and John Shumate of Notre Dame (3).

Even though UCLA was not quite the awesome power it was in the two previous seasons, Walton was still the most devastating big man in college basketball. Although suffering a back injury in an early season game which forced him to miss three contests, he still managed to average 14.7 rebounds and 18.9 points per game while connecting on 67 per cent of his field goal attempts.

As usual Walton was at his best in the so-called "big" games. In an early season showdown with North Carolina State at St. Louis, Walton, plagued with foul trouble early in the contest, came off the bench in the second half and almost singlehandedly ended the Wolfpack's visions of an upset.

Perhaps his best effort, however, came against Notre Dame at Los Angeles only one week after the Irish had snapped the Bruins' 88-game winning streak. In the rematch, won by the Bruins, Walton scored 32 points to avenge the only loss he had suffered in 139 games dating back to his junior year in high school.

Thompson, a 6-4 junior, was the Atlantic Coast Conference's Player of the Year for the second successive season. The two-time All-American from Shelby, N.C., averaged 25.7 ppg in leading the Wolfpack to a 241 regular season record. Thompson was at his best against ACC-rival Maryland, averaging 39.5 ppg for the two games.

Barnes, a 6-9 senior from Providence, R.I., led the nation in rebounding with an 18.8 per game mark while Shumate, a 69 junior from Elizabeth, N.J., scored 23.5 ppg in leading Notre Dame to a 24-2 regular season record.

Weiskopf, Devlin tied for lead in Doral Eastern Open Tourney

MIAMI (UPI) — Tom Weiskopf and Bruce Devlin, both fighting back from slow starts this year, grabbed the lead at 13 under par Saturday in the $150,000 Doral Eastern Open Golf Tournament.

Weiskopf had a 69 and Devlin shot a 67.

The two veteran pros held a two-shot lead over Jerry Heard, who fired a 72 for an 11-under-par 205, and Buddy Allin, who shot a 68.

Weiskopf, who had been plagued by a mysterious thumb ailment earlier this year, said he did not play quite as well as he did in the first two rounds of the tournament.

"I hit the water twice," he said. "But I guess overall I'm playing as well now as I did last summer."

Weiskopf was a seven-time winner last year, and at one time won five tournaments over an eight-week stretch.

But in just three outings this year he has missed the cut twice and finished 32nd once. He said he somehow hurt his thumb at the Phoenix Open, and the pain finally subsided after cortisone treatments two weeks ago.

Weiskopf had the lead for much of the day, overtaking Heard, the leader after the first two rounds, on the ninth hole. Weiskopf hit an eight-foot putt for a birdie on the 14th and a 35-footer for a bird on the 17th.

He also saved par on the 18th after hitting his drive off to the right and putting his second shot into a sand trap. But he blasted to within 10 teet and sank the putt for par.

Meanwhile, Devlin was charging down the back nine with birdies on the 10th, 11th, 14th and 16th holes. He had two birdies and a bogey on the front nine.

It was Devlin's fifth tournament since last Labor Day and he said that earlier the lack of competition had hurt him. But he said Saturday he felt he was getting his competitive edge back.

Jack Nicklaus had one of the hottest rounds of the day, a 66 that included six birdies and no bogeys. He was still back in the pack with a seven-under-par 209, but said he was playing well.

"I just have to get off to a little better start in these tournaments," he said. Nicklaus' only win this year was at the Hawaiian Open.

Bruce Crampton, who shot a 67 to join a logjam at 10 under par, shot a hole-in-one on the 225-yard fourth hole with a five iron.

"I think it went in on the second bounce," he said of his seventh ace. "I was saying 'bite' and it disappeared."

The ace came as a surprise to tournament official Wade Cagle, who set the pin placements for the third round. "There's no way anyone can make a hole in one where the flag is today," he said when he heard of Crampton's shot.

'Hen Spikers rout Tech

POMONA — Hurdler Steve Smith and weightman Ray Fogg posted double wins Saturday in pacing Pomona-Pitzer's track team to a 98-47 victory over Caltech in the Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference opener.

Smith captured the 120 high hurdles with a 15.1-second clocking, and also won the 440 intermediate hurdles in 55.5 seconds.

Fogg copped the shot put with a heave of 55 feet, and hurled the discus to a winning 140 feet-10 inch distance.

In Pomona-Pitzer's winning mile relay team, anchormen Bill Taylor and Dave Wiggins came up with 48.9 and 49.1 splits, respectively.

Fogg's winning shot put effort set a meet record, along with Randy Luce's 3-mile winning performance in 14.40.7.

Pomona-Pitzer, now 2-0 for the season, hosts La Verne next Saturday.

Evans' homer downs L.A.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Darrell Evans, who hit a career-high of 41 home runs last seasons, connected for a game-winning shot in the 10th inning Saturday as the Atlanta Braves won their Grapefruit League opener by defeating the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3.

Evans broke up the game by hitting a 2-1 pitch from Dodger rookie Rex Hudson over the right field fence with one out in the 10th.

Braves first baseman Mike Lum slugged a two-run homer in the the three-run Atlanta seventh inning, while Bill Buckner and Willie Crawford produced run-scoring singles for the Dodgers and Steve Garvey homered in the eighth to tie the game 3-3 and sent the game into extra innings.

Valentine, Rivers lead Halos to Cactus loop win over A's

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Bobby Valentine was a perfect 3-for-3, and Mickey Rivers chipped in with two doubles, to lead the California Angels to 5-1 Cactus League victory over the Oakland A's Saturday.

Oakland led briefly 1-0 in the first inning when Bill North walked, stole second, was sacrificed to third and scored on a single by Reggie Jackson.

The Angels tied the game 1-1 in the bottom of the first on Rivers' first double, a sacrifice by Denny Doyle and Valentine's single.

California broke the tie in the fourth by scoring two runs on a leadoff walk to Mike Epstein, a single by Ollie Brown, a run-scoring double by Richie Scheinblum and a sacrifice fly by Ellie Rodriguez.

The Angels iced the game with two more runs in the eighth. An error by Oakland reliever Darold Knowles was followed by Lee Stanton's single, Oakland's third error, by Ted Kubiak, and consecutive fly balls by Rick Stelmazsek and Rudy Meoli.

California pitchers Bill Singer, Rudy May, Skip Lockwood, Dick Lange and Dave Sells limited the defending world champions to four hits. May was the winner, while the loss was charged to John Odom.

The win was the first for the Angels in two spring games while Oakland's record fell to 11.

Rosenbloom won't match $500,000

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Los Angeles Rams' owner Carroll Rosenbloom said Friday he has told Heisman Trophy winner John Cappelletti to accept a reported $500,000 offer by the Philadelphia franchise of the new World Football League because "he won't get it here."

Rosenbloom and Rams' General Manager Don Klosterman met Friday with Cappelletti, the Rams' No. 1 draft choice from Penn State. Earlier in the week, the Philadelphia team said it had offered the star running back a $500,000 multi-year contract.

"I am advising him that if he has a bonafide $500,000 offer from that club, he should take it," Rosenbloom said. "My feeling is that any rookie who can sign such a contract should run to take it. He won't get it here."

Cappelletti arrived here Thursday night, went through a physical exam Friday and worked out at the Rams' practice field before meeting with Rosenbloom and Klosterman. Cappelletti was accompanied by his attorney.

"My preference is with the established league," said Cappelletti, a native of Upper Darby, a Philadelphia suburb, "but if it can't compete in dollars and cents, I'd prefer to stay where I grew up."

Commenting on statements by officials of the Philadelphia franchise that the Rams won't offer Cappelletti as substantial an offer, Rosenbloom said, "I'm not going to destroy our football team by giving an inflated contract to an unproved rookie. In the Ram budget, most of the money goes to the players who have proved they can win for us—not to youngsters who may win for us some day.

"Our first obligation is to our veterans."

Cappelletti gained 1,522 yards in 286 carries for Penn State last year, scoring 17 touchdowns.

UOP garners PCAA Swim title

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Powerful University of Pacific surged toward its second straight Pacific Coast Athletic Association swimming and diving title Friday by capturing four of six events in the second day of the three-day competition.

The Tigers piled up 409.5 points in two days, well ahead of second-place Cal State Long Beach, which had 221.5.

UCLA races to tri-meet track win

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Seven lifetime bests by UCLA, highlighted by Clarence Taylor's 53-11 ¼ triple jump, enabled the defending NCAA track champion Bruins to whip Arizona and San Diego State Saturday in a triangular meet.

UCLA rolled up 90 points to 57 for Arizona and 32 for San Diego State.

The powerful Bruins defeated Arizona 87-53 and San Diego State 106-38 for their 18th and 19th straight dual meet victories.

Steve Williams of San Diego State, co-holder of the 100-yard dash world record at 9.1 seconds, breezed to easy victories in the 100 and 220 with 9.3 and 20.7 clockings.

The Aztec speedster ran his typical races. He was last off the blocks in the 100, but cut loose with a burst of speed at the halfway mark to win going away. He ran the 220 in almost the same fashion.

Rory Kotinek registered a triple for UCLA by winning the javelin at 225-7, the high jump at 7-0, and placing second in the long jump at 24-6 ¼.

Roger Freberg helped the Bruins by winning the shot put at 60-7 and the discus at 180-8. His shot put mark was a personal best.

Ed Arriola of Arizona also turned in a pair of victories winning the mile in 4:05.4 and the 880 in 1:51.2. Both times were personal bests and meet records.

Arriola caught teammate Ed Mendoza 70 yards from the tape with a blazing kick that carried him to an eight-yard victory.

Bruin freshman Jerry Herndon won the long jump with a personal best of 25-7 ¼, while another UCLA freshman, Jim Neidhart improved his best in the shot put with a 50-11¼ heave, finishing third.

Other lifetime bests by Bruins were Gary Nitti, with a 4:08.9 mile for fourth place; Rich Gunther, a 167-3 for second place in the discus; and Sam Albanese, a 16-0 for second in the pole vault.

Notre Dame, Marquette win openers

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (UPI) — Second ranked Notre Dame, behind the hot first half shooting of guard Gary Brokaw, outclassed Tennesse's Austin Peay 108-66 Saturday to move into the Mideast NCAA semifinals and set up a showdown with the Big Ten champion.

In the first game of the regionals here at Indiana State, ninth-ranked Marquette threw a full court press at Ohio University and scored an 85-59 win to gain a spot in the other semifinals bracket. The semifinals will be held next week in Alabama.

Brokaw scored 10 of the Irish's first 14 points to stake Notre Dame to an early 14-6 lead. He finished the first half with 21 points. The Irish, now 25-2, led 54-34 at halftime.

All-America John Shumate and freshman forward Adrian Dantley took over the scoring in the second half as the Irish coasted to victory. Brokaw finished with 25 points, Dantley with 22, 14 of them in the second half, and Shumate with 20.

Austin Peay's big man, James "Fly" Williams, was the game's high point man with 26 points—18 coming in the first half. Most of Fly's 13 baskets came on long jumpers as Dantley and Shumate blocked the middle.

Indiana and Michigan, the Big Ten co-champions will play Monday night to see who will face Notre Dame in Thursday night's semifinals in Tuscaloosa.

Notre Dame scored on 50 of 83 shots from the floor for a 60.2 percentage while Austin Peay connected on only 25 of 70 shots for 35.7 per cent.

Austin Peay, the Ohio Valley co-champion, finished the season at 17-10.

In the first game, the Marquette Warriors, led by All-America Maurice Lucas with 19 points and 15 rebounds, hit on an even 50 per cent of their shots from the floor to extend their season record to 23-4. Ohio, the Mid-American conference champion, shot a cool 40.4 per cent from the field and finished the season 16-11.

Marquette coach Al McGuire ordered a full court press midway through the first half after the the two teams traded leads for the first 10 minutes. The press helped force Ohio into 14 turnovers for the game.

The Warriors held a 37-28 halftime lead and extended their lead to as much as 34 points with 3:45 to play before coasting home.

In the second half, it was Lucas, the 6-foot-9 junior, and his two front line teammates, Earl Tatum, a 6-5 sophomore, and Bo Ellis, the 6-9 freshman, who dominated the scoring and the boards.

Lucas got 12 of his game high 19 in the second half. Tatum and Ellis both scored 16 points for the game, each hitting on eight field goals.

Marquette, which has had its troubles in post season play in the past, now goes to Tuscaloosa, Ala. for the mideast semifinals and will play Vanderbilt on March 14.

Wolverines, Hoosiers win

By P-B Wire Dispatches

Charged-up Michigan dumped arch rival Michigan State 103-87 at East Lansing Saturday, while Indiana squeaked by Purdue 80-79 at Bloomington, thus setting up a playoff showdown Monday night for the Big 10 crown and a berth in the NCAA playoffs.

Michigan's rout of the Spartans was spearheaded by Campy Russell, who scored 36 points. Indiana needed two free throws by John Laskowski in the final eight seconds to best stubborn Purdue.

The wins by the Big 10 schools give each a 12-2 conference mark. The Big 10 title will be decided Monday night in a special playoff game between the Wolverines and the Hoosiers to be held at Illinois.

The winner of that clash wiil advance to the NCAA mideast regionals against Notre Dame at the University of Alabama.

TWO FOR THE IRISH — Notre Dame's Gary Brokaw (25) scores in Saturday's NCAA playoff with Austin Peay. The Irish won the Mideast Regional opener handily, 108-66, as Brokaw canned 25 points.

Pomona Valley baseball:

Broncos, Stags, Owls win

Despite gray skies, local college baseball teams still had a chance to shine Saturday.

Cal Poly Pomona snapped a six-game losing string in big fashion at San Luis Obispo, as Vic Bernal's no-hitter and Steve Herter's two home runs led a 4-3 and 4-0 sweep of Cal Poly SLO.

Claremont-Mudd also chaulked up a twinbill sweep in league action, thundering to a 18-1 win over Cal Tech in their opener and receiving a 9-0 forfeit victory in the nightcap over the beleaguered Beavers.

In junior college Citrus College got back on the right track in the Mission Conference, outslugging San Bernardino 12-5.

In Cal Poly's opener, Mike Heinen survived a three-run homer by SLO's Dave Hardin to spin a five-hit victory. Herter tied the game up at 3-3 with an eighth inning homer, while Steve Ludewig got home Dave Chapman with a suicide squeeze bunt to win the game for the Broncos in the 11th.

After Poly had put together a three-run rally highlighted by Herter's second homer of the day in the first inning of the nightcap, it was all Bernal.

The junior righthander blanked the rugged Mustangs on no hits, the only SLO runners reaching via three walks Bernal allowed.

It was the first win of the year for Bernal, who fanned seven in the seven-inning contest. Ludewig saved the no-hitter with a diving catch at third base in the fifth inning.

The two wins evened Poly's CCAA league mark at 2-2, the same as SLO. Overall, the Broncos are now 6-9 on the season.

Claremont-Mudd had it easy gainst Cal Tech. The Stags won the opener 18-1 with a 12 hit, 12 walk attack against Beaver hurler Ed Rea, who went all the way.

Ed Matta picked up the win by fanning 11 in five innings, while reliever Scott Baker had four more K's in two scoreless frames.

Gary Burger led the hit parade for the Stags with four hits, including a double and triple. Gary Rattel had three RBI's and three runs scored, while Bob Turek had three hits.

The shell-shocked Beavers then forfeited the nightcap to the Stags due to a lack of pitchers. The two wins give Claremont-Mudd a 3-0 SCIAC league mark, and advance their season log to 7-1.

Citrus dumped SBVC behind four-hit performances by Jerry Waters and Phil Doktor. John Freedman had four RBI's for the Owls, as Citrus totaled 18 hits on the afternoon.

Quack, Ancient Title vie for richest purse

ARCADIA, Calif. (UPI) — Quack, Ancient Title, Tri Jet and Prince Dantan battle it out for Santa Anita's richest prize of the meeting today—the $170,000 Santa Anita Handicap.

Quack, assigned the highweight of 126 pounds, is co-holder of the world record for the mile and one-quarter of 1.58 1-5. Last season Quack scored a victory in the San Bernardino Handicap here and followed up with three impressive efforts at Hollywood Park.

Quack has only raced once this season, finishing third in a one-mile allowance event two weeks ago. Don Pierce, gunning for his fourth win in the Santa Anita Handicap, will be aboard Quack.

Ancient Title, who became the first horse in 15 years to sweep Santa Anita's Strub stakes this year, has been given a 125-pound impost. Only three others—Mark-Ye-Hell in 1953, Round Table in 1958, and Prove It in 1961—have captured both the Strub Stakes and the Santa Anita Handicap in the same year. Laffit Pincay will ride Ancient Title.

Tri Jet, in at 123 pounds, won the mile and one-quarter Hawthorne Gold Cup last summer and captured the San Pasqual Handicap this season. Braulio Baeza will be aboard.

Prince Dantan, which will be ridden by Ron Turcotte, finished third in the Strub Stakes but captured the San Antionio Stakes for his third victory of the year.

Rounding out the field are the combined entry of Forage and Astray, with Jacinto Vasquez named as the jockey; Crusading, ridden by Howard Grant; Dancing Papa, Steve Valdez; Kentuckian, Bill Mahorney; El Extrano, Alvaro Pineda; and Linda's Chief,

APC plays in nationals

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Azusa-Pacific College opens play this week in the 37th annual NAIA basketball tourney, and the Cougars' competition for the national title should be keen.

Heading the list will be Fairmont State of West Virginia. The Falcons were ranked No. 1 in the final UPI small-college ratings, and finished the regular season with a 27-2 mark. Fairmont is top-seeded in the tourney.

Second-seed went to Kentucky State, who holds a 24-4 mark, while Gardner-Webb of North Carolina received the third seed.

First-round games will be played Monday and Tuesday with the winners advancing to Wednesday's action. Quarterfinals are Thursday, semifinals Friday, and finals Saturday.

Azusa-Pacific will be in action on Tuesday morning as they meet Indiana State of Pennsylvania.

Rick Reed of the Cougars ranks high among top scorers in action at Kansas City. Reed will carry his 25.2 average per game into tourney action.

Jim Heard of Huron (S.D.) heads the list with a 27-point average, while Tom Turner of West Georgia has a 26.4 average going into tourney play. Bob Rosier of St. Thomas (Minn.) sports a 23.7 scoring figure.

DALLAS (UPI) — Defending champion Virginia Wade, despite slicing open a toe early Saturday in her motel room, came back to defeat Nancy Richey Gunter in the semifinals of the Maureen Connolly Brinker tennis tournament and set up a title match against Chris Evert.

Miss Wade, the bubbly Britisher who is trying for her second straight Virginia Slims tour victory, defeated Mrs. Gunter, 3-6, 6-2, 6-4.

The top-seeded Miss Evert had troubles with her own serve before disposing of Francoise Durr of France, 6-4, 6-3.

HAMPTON, Va. (UPI) — Top-seeded Ilie Nastase of Romania, utilizing his unorthodox style to rattle his opponent, defeated Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia, 7-5, 6-2, Saturday to advance to the finals in the Coliseum Mall international tennis championship.

Nastase will face second-seeded Jimmy Connors of Belleville, Ill., who defeated Baulez Taroczy of Hungary, 6-3, 6-1, in the other semifinal game Saturday.

ORLANDO, Fla (UPI) — Tony Oliva agreed to accept a $3,000 cut in salary Saturday when he agreed to terms for his 1974 contract.

Tee to cup

Once around the green:

Three big high school golf tournaments are on tap next month, including the Chaffey High Invitational which will be played at Ontario National.

Others including the Inglewood Tournament at Griffith Park, April 6, 7, and 8, which is open to boys and girls 14-17. The Burbank Tournament, April 11, will be played at De-Bell Golf Course in beautiful downtown . . . you guessed it.

Don Nelson is running the Chaffey event which will be played at Ontario National April 8.

Speaking of Ontario National . . . the Cal 500 celebrity tourney there Friday was played in the rain . . . Jack Garner, brother of actor and tournament chairman James, won the trip to Hawaii by dropping his tee shot three-feet from the pin on the 185-yard, par-3 17th hole . . .

NEW OFFICERS have been elected in the Los Serranos Women's Golf Club, reports publicist Jeanne Schlick, who by the way, tipped us off on Tommie Wood's hole-in-one, which appeared in last week's Tee to Cup . . . Mrs. Wood called to thank us for mentioning it . . . she was welcome.

New officers include President Loreen Stone, 1st Vice President Helen Sprague, 2nd Vice President Mary Takanabe, Secretary Janet Kaufman and Treasurer Alice Hudson.

THE TWO-YEAR-OLD, four-team National Professional Golf League announced plans this week to go international with as many as 16 teams competing in the United States and overseas by next year.

George Palmerton of Seattle Wash., chairman of the league's expansion committee, headed the first meeting of the newly-organized World Professional Golf League here this weekend in Las Vegas.

He said the WPGL plans to field teams from eight to 10 cities in the United States during a 12-week season beginning in June and to have 16 teams in action by next year, including several from foreign countries.

Palmerton said the WPGL players committee, headed by Billy Casper, has reached working agreements with the Professional Golf Association's Tournament Players Division.

The WPGL format calls for one-day matches each week between six-man teams with Nassau-point scoring in singles and best-ball match play competition.

Each team will have a roster of 15 players from which to draw, he said.

THE RED HILL Thursday Team, under the leadership of captain Vern Murray, clinched the group XI title in S.C.G.A match team play and will move into the first round of playoffs. Opponent and site were unknown at press time.

Playing home and home matches against teams from Big Canyon, Santa Ana and Hacienda, the Red Hill wrapped up its second consecutive title without playing its final match.

Big guns for the local team were Bill LeGrand who averaged 2.6 points per match (3 points possible); Lou Catalano, 2.5; Dick Carr 2.4; Loe Mangiagli, 2.25; Vern Murray 2.25; Claude Ellena, 2.2; and Chuck Jenkins, 2.0.

MARSHALL CANYON Women's Golf Club recently held a two-day home and home best-ball-foursome tournament.

The winning foursome was Kay Liscom, Kay Wilson, Nancy Bobier and Jean Van Way. Two foursomes led by Ruth Erickson and Marion McGrath tied for second place. Mrs. Erickson won the prize for driving closest to the pin on the par 3 No. 6 green, placing her ball 16 inches from the cup.

MSAC Relays

Al Fuerbach returning

WALNUT — On a cold, overcast Saturday afternoon late in April of last year, burly Al Feuerbach stepped into the Mt. San Antonio Relays shot put circle for his first attempt of the day,. He then proceeded to arch the 16 lb. steel ball 70 feet 9 inches for the second best throw ever in the history of the sport.

Feuerbach predicted then that better efforts were yet to come. Just a week later he achieved his prediction with a 71-7 world record that eliminated the oldest field standard in the books, Randy Matson's 71-5 set in 1967.

Now Feuerbach is preparing for the 1974 Mt. Sac Relays, set for Friday, Saturday and Sunday, April 26, 27 and 28, and already his record is in jeopardy by George Woods, the 290 lb. muscle man who was second in the Relays shot put last year.

Woods has already bettered Feuerbach's outdoor mark with a 72-2¾ indoor world record recently in Los Angeles.

The anticipated match-up between the two giants of shot putting is just one of many exciting events on top for this year's Relays, according to its founder and director, Hilmer Lodge.

"We are expecing a great field of individuals again in '74 at the Relays, and this year, the collegiate entries represent most of the major universities on the West Coast," boasts Lodge.

Following tradition, the Relays will open Friday morning with College events. The high schools and junior colleges share the billing in the afternoon and Friday night.

Saturday is the big day with university and open competition along with invitational events in all categories.

The first day of the two-day decathlon competition also is set for Saturday.

On Sunday, the women take over with a full day of age-group and open events. The conclusion of the decathlon is also on Sunday.

Tickets for th Relays are now on sale at Mt. San Antonio College, 1100 North Grand, Walnut, 91789. Ticket information can be obtained by calling (213) 339-7331 or (714) 595-2211, Ext. 288.

Boys trying to liberate girls' teams

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Mich. (UPI) — Two high school boys in this Detroit suburb are fighting to liberate the volleyball courts.

In a reversal of recent cases in which girls have played on male interscholastic teams, Jeff Waalkes, 18, and Steve Thomas, 17, joined the previously all-female varsity volleyball team at Andover High School.

The girls think the addition of two boys is great, but opposing teams aren't of the same opinion.

The boys were forced to warm the bench at a game against Clarenceville High School when coach Tom Teeter refused to play unless they sat out. The coach at Bloomfield High School says her team will not play Andover next week unless the boys are removed.

Besides facing antagonism from other teams, Waalkes and Thomas say they feel pressure from their own teammates.

"We get razzed twice as much if we miss a shot," Thomas said.

Rival coaches claim the boys have an unfair advantage in the female league, because regulations are more rigid for male teams.

"I believe in equal rights for men and women," said coach Linda Denstaedt of Clarkston High School, "but at the same time it is not equal for a man to play a sport and have an advantage."

The directors of the Wayne-Oakland League decided Wednesday that the boys will be allowed to complete the season, but if the league's coaches have their way, women-only teams will prevail again next year.

Poly now looking for cage recruits

POMONA — His first season as head basketball coach is over but for Cal Poly mentor Don Hogan the recruiting season has just begun.

Armed with a seven-foot long list of seven footers, Hogan and his assistant, Allen Van Winkle, who has done a large part of the Bronco scouting this year, will now attempt to convince junior college and high school cage flashes that they should continue their basketball careers at Cal Poly.

Van Winkle, unlike his ancient relative of Catskill Mountain fame, has not been sleeping this season and has a glowing report of prospective players who might be enticed to become future Broncos.

Hogan's heroes of 1974 finished the season with victories in three of their last five CCAA conference games and nearly pulled off a major upset before losing to conference champion, Cal Poly San Luis Obispo, in an exciting overtime tussle to wind up the season.

Four Broncos — Lee Roy Williams, Alphonso Adair, Richard Reid and John Carrillo — are departing seniors from the squad which finished with a 9-17 record and a fourth place spot in the final conference standings.

But a host of others who saw considerable action will return and hopefully they'll be supported by the newcomers Hogan and Van Winkle plan to recuirt.

Included among the returnees are Horace Aubrey, Cal Poly's top scorer, and Paul Newton, second leading rebounder. Both are sophomores as are Malcom Kennedy, David Kennedy and Brian Thomas. Juniors Art Williams, Bill Bunker and Arlis Garner along with freshman Frank Prince also will be returning.

"We'll try to get immediate hlep from junior college players and we'll shoot for high school players to help in the long range program," Hogan says, explaining his recruiting plans.

"I'm proud of the way the team finished. We made many adjustments during the season and I'm gratified with the growth we displayed. We had a good bunch of kids and I feel that while the season was not a winning one the team presented a good image for Cal Poly and that is important."

Olympic shows Foreman fight

LOS ANGELES — The March 26 world heavyweight championship fight between George Foreman and Ken Norton will be shown in color at the Olympic Auditorium, promoter Mrs. Aileen Eaton has announced.

Foreman will be making his second defense in Caracas, Venezuela. He won the title a year ago by knocking out Joe Frazier in two rounds and has successfully defending once.

All seats at the Olympic will be reserved and are priced at $10.00 and $7.50. They are now on sale.

Custom car show slated

LOS ANGELES — The 14th annual Custom Car and Motorcycle Show will be held at the Los Angeles Sports Arena April 18-21.

The show is the largest of its type in the nation and will showcase more than 1000 exotic vehicles.

Among the machinery to be shown are customs, hot rods, motorcycles, boats, trucks, vans, dune buggies, racing cars, dragsters and sports cars.

Co-sponsors of the event are Cycle World Magazine and the Tridents Car Club.

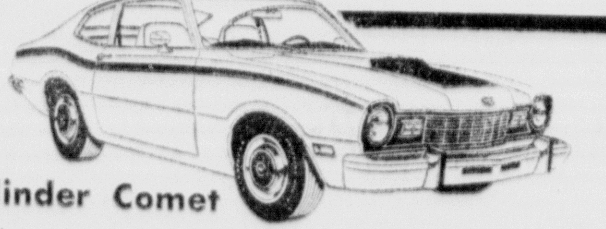
Two Lincoln-Mercury MILEAGE CARS
A 6-cylinder Comet and 4-cylinder Capri put to the test.

MILEAGE RESULTS
COMET	26.6 mpg
CAPRI	32.4 mpg



6-cylinder Comet

4-cylinder Capri

February 19, 1974: In a 387 mile test through Arizona and California, supervised by General Environments Corporation, a Comet and a Capri with standard engines and transmissions delivered the kind of gas mileage you'd like to get. Each car was broken in the equivalent of 6,000 miles and driven by non-professional drivers, never exceeding 50 mph. You yourself might actually average less, or for that matter more! Because mileage varies according to maintainance, equipment, total weight, driving habits and road conditions. And no two drivers, or even cars, are exactly the same. Stop at your Lincoln-Mercury dealer's Small Car Headquarters and see what kind of mileage you can get.

Not concerned about 20 wins

Sutton just like Ford

VERO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — If they ask Don Sutton the same question again this year, maybe he can have a new answer for them.

Maybe he can tell them about Whitey Ford.

Don Sutton, after all, has become baseball's most celebrated non-20 game winner since Ford, and if you are as good as he is and don't win 20, people begin to wonder.

Sutton always has an answer.

"Pure and simple," he says, "winning is out of a pitcher's hands. You can go nothing-nothing for 27 innings and not win."

That has been known to happen to the Los Angeles Dodgers, but it still doesn't satisfy everyone who looks at the "W" column, and there Sutton has another answer.

"I'm being paid very well for making it tough on the other team to score runs," he says. He insists he never has been concerned about that seemingly magic number of 20 which consumes most pitchers.

Ford, elected to the Hall of Fame in January, toiled 18 seasons for the New York Yankees and while he usually won 17 or 18 games, he never hit 20 until his 12th season. By then he was 32 year old.

Sutton, who won't be 29 until next month, will earn $114,000 from the Dodgers this season, the most ever paid to a pitcher who never has won 20 games, but he's still rankled by anyone who criticizes his won-lost record.

"How many of those games did you see?" Sutton pointedly asks a questioner who refers to his 18-10 recorn in 1973. He points to the fact the Dodgers won 21 of the 33 games he started last year, expects to start more games in 1974 and says, "I'll guarantee if I don't win 25, the club will win 25 I start."

"Alston (Manager Walt) has faith in me because he knows he can count on me for a good job every time out," says the Dodgers' righthander. "I just want to be remembered for being one of the most dependable pitchers this club has produced."

A 21-year-old rookie when Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale pitched Los Angeles to its last pennant in 1966, Sutton has matured to become the No. 1 man on the National League's best pitching staff. In the last three seasons he has totalled 54 victories with earned run averages never above 2-55.

Never before this season, however, has Sutton set himself up with a target victory goal but this time around he's shooting for 25 and believes he can get it.

"You're just kind of wandering around aimlessly if you don't set some goals," he said while getting his arm worked on in the Dodgers' spanking new spring training clubhouse.

"And I think you have to set your goals high enough so that without the help of others, or divine intervention, you can't possibly make it. I'd rather set a high goal and fall short than accomplish a little one."

A 25-victory year also would propel Sutton toward recognition of another sort he seeks.

"We are all realistic enough to know Tom Seaver is head-and-shoulders above every other pitcher in the league," Sutton says. "I don't think there's another pitcher in our league who can dominate a game like Tom.

"My ambition is to be known as the second best pitcher in the National League."

Ben Jipcho visits L.A. for Pro Track Classic

LOS ANGELES — Ben Jipcho of Kenya, 1973 track and field "athlete of the year," will make his Southland debut when he runs the mile in the Vitalis Pro Track Classic at the Sports Arena Saturday afternoon, April 13.

Jipcho, along with American Olympic hero Dave Wottle, is among the newest converts to the run-for-pay ranks.

The 30-year-old Kenya distance star ranks as the second fastest miler of all-time at 3:52.0. Only Jim Ryun, who'll be matched with Ben, has run faster.

Jipcho was a solid choice for track "athlete of the year" in 1973. Aside from his 3:52.0 mile, he also set a new world record of 8:14.0 for the 3000-meter steeplechase and recorded the second fastest 5000 in history.

Jipcho is in fabulous form, having won the 5000 and the steeplechase in the Commonwealth Games in New Zealand and then placing third behind Filbert Bayi's world record 1500 clocking.

The Kenyan, who ran for years in the shadow of his famed countryman, Kip Keino, has been doubling successfully in some of the pro meets held to date.

Doyle uses simple system: Action, reaction. repetition

HOLTVILLE — His glove has been compared to a magic wand.

Denny Doyle is a spirited little fellow: 5-10, 165 pounds with a coat on. Veteran observers have described him as one of the top second basemen in the majors; perhaps the best at turning the double play.

The Doyle system is simple: action and reaction, repetition and unity.

"Repetition is the best instructor," says Doyle who will battle Sandy Alomar for the Angels second base job. "You have to be willing to work and work on a play until it becomes a matter of reflex. A player has to know subconsciously how he will make a play before he gets the ball. Sometimes there's isn't time to think. It has to be an action-reaction response."

Toiling in the warm desert sun in Holtville, an hour after the rest of the squad had finished, Doyle and three other Angels newcomers were going through the routine of making the double play.

While coach Salty Parker threw ground balls and manager Bob Winkles and coach Whitey Herzog looked on, Doyle showed why he is considered one of the best at making the vital pivot.

"A lot of double plays can be turned by the shortstop and second baseman if they have action together," he said later. "I've always enjoyed watching other players make the play. It helps. As for the shortstop-second baseman combination, the two have to be willing to work 35-40 minutes a day on getting their timing and angles to make throws, etc.

"A lot of people used to ask how Larry Bowa and I (the two were with the Phillies) learned to work together in one major league season. They didn't remember we had worked four years together in the minors."

Acquired from the Phillies Dec. 10 in exchange for pitcher Aurelio Monteagudo and Chris Coletta (completing an Aug. 15 deal that sent Billy Grabarkewitz to Philadelphia), Doyle admits he probably won't impress anyone with his power. He did hit three home runs and bat .434 (23-53) during his final 13 games of the 1973 season, but missed the last part of the schedule with a back injury. He carries the 13-game batting streak into the 1974 season.

"A batter has to relax at the plate and psychologically be ready to hit the ball," he says. "During the final part of the 1973 season I knew what I was doing right. Contrary to some reports, my wife did not give me batting tips. It was a case of eliminating some mistakes and becoming more confident I could hit the ball."

Doyle almost quit baseball following the 1968 season. He had played basketball as well as baseball at Morehead State College and thought about a career in coaching

"I wasn't too enthused about returning to baseball," he recalls. "The Phillies had Tony Taylor and Cookie Rojas and I couldn't see a major league career directly ahead. I coached at Caverna High School in Kentucky and enjoyed it."

But he returned to baseball the following spring and batted .310 for Eugene in the Pacific Coast League. He was selected the league's Most Valuable Player and Rookie of the Year.

He worked his way into Nolan Ryan's career early in 1970 (against the Mets) getting the only hit as the first batter in the game.

"That was a strange feeling," he recalled. "Nolan pitched a nine-inning no-hitter but gave up a hit—to me."

Asked where he would like to bat in the lineup, Doyle replied: "Anywhere between one and nine and I'll be excited."

Poly boosters plan Hawaii sports trip

POMONA — Cal Poly Pomona Associates, a group developed at Cal Poly for the promotion of athletics, is sponsoring several overseas sport explorations to Hawaii.

These excursions are scheduled for June and July. Individuals, both Cal Poly students and faculty, who are in good physical condition are invited to participate.

Activities on the nine-day trips include beach backpacking, swimming, and volcano exploration on the Island of Maui. A separate group of Scuba divers will journey to the Kona Coast on the Island of Hawaii.

The cost of these trips, the exact dates, and any further information may be obtained by phoning Ray Daugherty at (714) 598-4618 or Otto Gasser at (714) 598-4627.

Garcia fights Bob Mashburn

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Jose Luis Garcia of Venezuela, the only fighter ever to knock out Ken Norton, will meet New York's Bob Mashburn at the Olympic Auditorium next Thursday.

Garcia, who is managed by Willie Ketchum, has a 26-5 record with 14 knockouts. In his last start, he knocked out Charlie Polite in six rounds last Dec. 6.

Sports parade

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Calvin Griffith, the man who operates the Minnesota Twins, looks over at first base where 37-year-old Harmon Killebrew is bouncing around like you'd never believe and it reminds him of a story which maybe you'd also never believe.

"When Harmon first came up and had been with us a little while, his manager told me he'd never make it," says the Twins' owner.

"I won't mention the manager's name because there isn't any point in it, but I told him 'you keep playing him until he proves he can't make it.'"

Now, 20 years and 546 home runs later, it can be safely said Harmon Killebrew has made it.

The manner in which he did provides part of the reason why baseball really still is the national pastime no matter what anybody says.

"I remember when he first started hitting all these home runs of his," says Griffith going back to the days the team was the Washington Senators, not the Minnesota Twins. "Everybody was talking about 'the new Babe Ruth,' he was getting all this publicity and they were hailing him as the All-American Boy. I called him in my office and said 'I hope all this doesn't go to your head and make you conceited. You'd be making a big mistake if you let that happen.'

"He said 'Mr. Griffith, you don't have to worry about me ever getting conceited.' He was absolutely right. He's the same fine person now as when he first came up to us, the only difference being he has matured and he has much more common sense.

"You don't run across many people like Harmon Killebrew. We get a letter that someone's dying, a kid's on his last legs or an old woman is going to a nursing home, and they'd like to see Harmon, he goes in a minute. We've had people in wheelchairs come out to the park in Minnesota and tell us they came just to see him.

Going out a hero

"He had that operation on his knee last July, and you know why he's trying so hard now? He's going to go out a hero, not a bum. I know that's the way he's thinking."

Calvin Griffith happens to be 100 per cent correct. Harmon Killebrew admits that.

"I don't want to go out on a sour note," he says.

Seldom does a clubowner speak about one of his ballplayers the way Calvin Griffith talks about Harmon Killebrew. Horace Stoneham talked that way about Willie Mays and Gussie Busch about Stan Musial.

"When he leaves," Griffith says about Killebrew, "I'll feel like an old man. I'll feel like I've had it. He's meant so much to this organization, to the entire Griffith family. He's helped us stay around. All we've got is baseball and he helped us make it in baseball."

Owners don't ordinarily talk that way.

But there is an unusual rapport between Griffith and Killebrew so that they can talk completely straight with each other whether they're talking salary or how much longer Killebrew can go.

"Harmon is just so honest that there never is any problem," says Griffith. "He came in and said to me 'the day I prove to myself I can't do it, I'm hanging 'em up.' I told him 'it's up to you. You're the boss.'"

Killebrew has undergone five different operations since first joining the club. The Twins have a situation whereby The Killer has to play, he can't be designated hitter because Tony Oliva has that job and no club can afford the luxury of carrying two such high-priced performers who wouldn't be able to at least cover some position in the field.

Harmon Killebrew isn't thinking at all in terms of being a designated hitter, he's thinking solely in terms of playing first base.

And you ought to see the way he's been playing it lately.

The way he's doing it reminds Calvin Griffith of a story you'd never believe.

ABA may offer Pondexters deal

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Long Beach State is worried about losing its super freshman, Clifton Pondexter, but not to another school.

Lute Olson, the 49ers' coach who isn't sure he'll be back next season, thinks the American Basketball Association may attempt to lure the Pondexter brothers —Clifton and Roscoe —away with big cash.

Long Beach was hit by an NCAA probation during the season and Roscoe may be ruled ineligible to play his senior season with the 49ers.

"The thing that concerns us most at this point," said Olson, "is the possibility of some kind of a package deal for the Pondexter brothers from the ABA.

"I would think from the ABA's standpoint it would be a pretty good move. From Clifton's standpoint, I think it would be a bad move."

Led by the burly 6-8, 230-pound freshman center from Fresno, Calif., Long Beach had its best record in history —24-2 —and won its fifth straight Pacific Coast Athletic Association title.

Because they're on NCC probation, though, the 49ers had to pack their bags at the end of the regular season.

Clifton, one of the nation's most sought after high school players a year ago, was named to UPI's all-Pacific Coast team.

Olson, who replaced Jerry Tarkanian at Long Beach this year, calls him "the best freshman in the country and you can't convince me otherwise."

"Clifton's given me no indication what he plans to do," said the 49ers' mentor. "He's a great player who is going to make it in the pros without any question.

"For him to consider transferring to another school would be jeoparidizing his career. The real question is whether the ABA will come up with some kind of deal. That's the biggest fear we have.

"Clifton has indicated whether Roscoe is back next year will not be a big factor in his decision."

Olson thinks his talented freshman will make more money in the long run if he stays at Long Beach.

"He needs, I feel, more time to develop from the standpoint of maturity," he remarked. "Mental maturity more so than physical."

Of his own future at a school that can go nowhere — athletically for at least two more years, Olson said:

"I haven't decided whether I'll be back next season. I'm going to spend some time deciding it."

Japan, Korea women show volleyball skills

LOS ANGELES — In a renewal of their titanic Olympic struggle, the women's vollyeball teams for Japan and Korea (silver and bronze medalists at Munich) will meet for the first time in the United States on Friday night at Pauley Pavilion on the UCLA campus.

The two international powers will be in Los Angeles for the short stop-over on their whirlwind tour of the Americas.

On the same bill, UCLA, the perennial collegiate powerhouse, will face the Gauchos of UC Santa Barbara, this year's pre-season favorite to win the NCAA championship. UCLA will play UCSB, starting at 6 p.m., and the women's match will begin at 8 p.m.

GREAT EXPERIMENT — Southern California Racing Association embarks on what has to be termed one of the state's great racing experiments tonight at Los Alamitos.

The first Sunday 'night' racing card in California history begins at 6:30 p.m. with the eyes of many track managements carefully affixed to the results.

"We sincerely hope Sunday night racing will meet with the approval of our patrons," says S.C.R.A. General Manager Tom Baker. "With a 6:30 start, we should have our fans out of the plant no later than 10 p.m.

"There's no question that it is an experiment," Baker admits, "but I think our fans will accept it."

CALIENTE HOPE — You can't really blame the Caliente Future Book people for pulling for Prince Dantan to stage an upset in today's $145,000 Santa Anita Handicap at Santa Anita.

The Future Book, which began accepting wagers on the Big 'Cap early this year, didn't list Prince Dantan because the horse wasn't originally nominated for the race.

He was later supplemented by trainer Frank Martin for $5,000.

So, should the 'Prince win, Caliente would get a 'free ride.'

GAS KEY QUESTION — Joe O'Brien, harness racing's Hall-of-Fame driver who ranks among the top three of all-time in races and money won, says the current gasoline crisis may hamper his commuting schedule for the S.C.R.A. meeting at Los Alamitos.

"Right now, I'm planning to drive at Los Alamitos as much as I possibly can," says O'Brien, "but the gas problem has me somewhat baffled.

"Last year, I trained horses at my ranch (in Shafter near Bakersfield) in the morning, drove to Los Alamitos late in the afternoon and returned home after the races.

"Now, I'm not sure how I'll work it."

The Shafter-to-Los Alamitos and back to Shafter round-trip was logged by O'Brien last year at 330 miles.

"I was even considering some sort of commuter air service between Bakersfield and Orange County, but on a regular basis the cost is prohibitive."

ANOTHER 'BUG' CHAMP — Is the nation's leading apprentice rider due to be unveiled this week at Santa Anita? Could be.

Octavio Aviles, who has registered an amazing 110 victories since reaching the victory circle for the first time last August 18 at Mexico City's Hipodromo, began his U.S. riding career this week at Santa Anita. At the Hipodromo, action is limited to three days a week.

Camilo Marin, one of the best-liked and craftiest agents in the business has just returned from Mexico with young Octavio, a well-educated, and hard-working 18-year-old whom Marin reports "has it all."

Aviles, whose father was a top rider in Mexico, can make 103 pounds and has impressed below-the-border horsemen with his riding talents. Paul Bouffier, breeder of the one-time California three-year-old flash Finalista and a respected horseman in Mexico alerted Marin to the newcomer.

"I really expected Octavio to be going great guns by the time Hollywood Park opens," Marin says hopefully. Camilo reports his new find has been galloping horses and he feels the shy, brown-eyed youngster has the right temperament to become a top rider. "He's finishing up a 10-day suspension. It's his fourth," says Marin, indicating Aviles is not to be intimidated on the race track.

Marin has been spending considerable time with owner Fred W. Hooper and since the Florida sportsman has signed pacts in the past with such latin stars as Pincay, Baeza, Velasquez and Tejada, it could be young Octavio might spend much of the year sporting the Hooper blue-red-and-white colors. Aviles will ride with the "bug" through August 28.

ANOTHER MILESTONE BID — Bill Shoemaker's quest for lifetime $100,000 win No. 100 continues on the frustrating side for the world's winningest journeyman.

He'll try for the 8th time to hit that magic plateau today in the Santa Anita Handicap with Linda's Chief.

Shoe missed a shot last Saturday in the $100,000 Santa Margarita when favored La Zanzara finished out-of-the-money and muffed another opportunity Monday in Florida when his Florida Derby mount, Pat McGroder, went unplaced.

Since winning his 99th hundred grander closing day last year at Hollypark in the Sunset Handicap aboard Cougar, Shoe has missed with Groshawk in the Del Mar Handicap, Cougar in the Marlboro Cup, Cougar again in the Woodward, Groshawk in the Oak Tree Invitational, Linda's Chief in the Strub and the aforementioned two attempts with La Zanzara and Pat McGroder.

For the record, however, Bill has tallied in 20 $100,000 races since 1968.

BOXCAR SPECIALS — More than a few Santa Anita racing fans did double-takes the past few weeks upon scanning the results from New York's Aqueduct Race Track.

Many horses that raced at Santa Anita and had trouble locating the winner's circle, had little difficulty once returning to the home front in New York.

Just a sample:

Frank Martin saddled such winners as Magic Story ($28.40), Pleasant Brook ($15), and Blue Spring ($6.00); Laz Barrerra sent out Royal Quester at $23.60 and River Fire $10.80; W. P. King scored with Special Legend ($38.20) and Bold Merit at $19.60, while other Santa Anita refugees to win included Anniversary Gift, Sacred Soul and Everton.

FRESHENING UP — Jack Hogan reports he'll give his new acquisition, Baccalaurate, a little freshening up before the son of Outing Class makes his western bow.

"He arrived in good condition but we'll probably wait until Hollywood Park to start him," Hogan reports. Shortly after his purchase for a reported $180,000, Baccalaurate raced to victory in the Canadian Turf Handicap for Hogan, the one-time "giveaway" king.

Brownell shoots for national crown

POMONA — While the United States Auto Club's championship cars will be racing at Ontario Motor Speedway today, Herbert Brownell will be down in Holtville shooting for a national championship in the Formula Vee class.

He's racing in the Southern Pacific Division of the Sports Car Club of American (SCCA), and looks to be the favorite to win the national title in his division.

Brownell, an insurance broker in Pomona, is presently holding the lead in the Southern Pacific Division after four national races and two points races this year.

Herb, who is the 28-year-old son of former Pomona mayor Richard Brownell, is teaming with Mario Panzarella this season, a team manager-driver combinations that looks tough to beat.

Brownell started racing sailboats at the age of 12, started following the sports cars when he was 15, and a short time later began racing motorcycles.

He started racing Formula Vee's at 22. And then through the years 1968 and '69, he won 10 of the 30 races he competed in. He was supporting himself (without a sponsor) for those two years, but still continued racing.

He made the logical progression from Formula Vee's to Formula Ford the following year, won the divisional championship, and placed sixth at the nationals.

But the following season he was still unable to find a sponsor and got out of racing cars and went back to motorcycles.

That's when Panzarella came on the scene.

While Herb was thinking his auto racing days had come to an end, Panzarella was looking for an experienced Formula Vee driver to pilot his newly-prepared car.

He chose Brownell.

So now the team is making it big on the SCCA circuit.

The interesting thing about Brownell's future is that he doesn't plan to into any kind of racing that tops the speeds of the Formula Vee.

"I haven't heard of a fatality in Formula Vee since its inception in the early 1960's," said the Pomona insurance broker. "The fastest these cars go is about 111 miles per hour. Anything else that goes faster is too fast for my blood."

Herb's thinking about the safety factors in high-speed racing, and about his family. A father of two children, he thinks racing at 200 miles per hour would be too hazardous.

With a successful year, Brownell and Panzarella hopefully will make the trip to Georgia in November to compete in the American Road Race of Champions at Road Atlanta.

The results of that race will determine the national championship. With any amount of luck, the champ will be the driver of the white No. 3 machine — Herb Brownell.

Thurmond out with injury

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Center Nate Thurmond, who reinjured his left arch in Thursday's 97-95 victory over Milwaukee, will probably miss the balance of the Golden State Warriors' current five-game road trip, the team announced Friday.

Thurmond flew back to the Bay Area for treatment by team physician, Dr. James J. Raggio.

The 6-11-½ Thurmond originally injured the arch three weeks ago in a game against Atlanta.

Track boosters announce drive

POMONA — The Pomona High Boosters Club has scheduled a paper drive for March 16 and a white elephant sale for April 6, the club announced recently.

Persons interested in donating newspapers to the paper drive may drop them off at the high school or call Mr. or Mrs. Abernathy at 623-0085.

The white elephant sale is scheduled to be held at the Lincoln Avenue Reformed Church at the corner of Lincoln Avenue and Indian Hill Boulevard.

THE NORTON SIMON FOUNDATION and the Norton Simon Museum have decided to sell their collections of drawings and watercolors and concentrate on paintings and sculpture. Boston Ballet group to perform in area

RIVERSIDE — The Boston Ballet Chamber Company, touring wing of the Boston Ballet, will perform in the University Theater of UC Riverside at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The artists will spend Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in residency on campus participating in classes offered as part of UCR's program in dance.

The chamber company is composed of the lead dancers of the Boston Ballet, founded in 1963 by Virginia Williams, now the ballet's artistic director.

Miss Williams said that because American dancers can adapt to a variety of dance styles, "I have selected a repertoire that blends traditional and contemporary classical ballets."

Performed at UCR will be the "Baroque Concerto," based on the music of Gottfried Stolzel with choreography by Norman Walker. "The Dolly Suite," which is based on the music of Gabriel Faure, was choreographed on commission by John Taras.

The program concludes with "Speed Zone," danced to "Kammermusic No. 1" by Paul Hindemith. Choreography for "Speed Zone" is by Samuel Kurkjian, the company's choreographer-in-residence and ballet master.

Dancers are David Brown, David Drummond, Anamarie Sarazin, Tony Catanzaro, Elaine Bauer, Kaethe Devlin, Ellen O'Reilly, Leslie Woodies, Alfonso Figueroa, Edra Toth, Woytek Lowski, Janet Moran, Robert Steele and Laura Young.

Tickets for reserved seating at $5, $4 and $3 are available at the University Commons central ticket office. Students and senior citizens will be admitted at half price.

Wolf-Rottkay art displayed

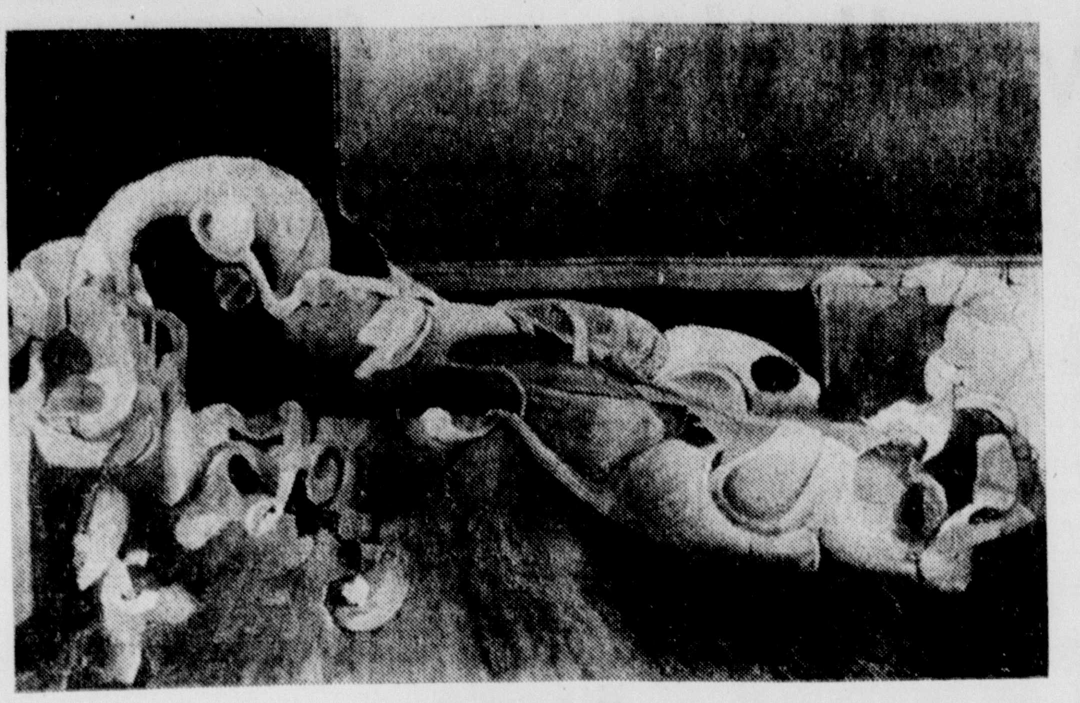
SAN BERNARDINO — The work of W. R. Wolf-Rottkay, a young Los Angeles sculptor, is now on display in the Fine Arts Gallery at Cal State San Bernardino.

The sculpture of stainless steel and welded metal is mostly of non-objective figures, some with a suggestion of recognizable form and simple geometric shapes.

The German-born Wolf-Rottkay is considered by many to be one of the upcoming, important sculptors, said Don Woodford, art gallery director.

He's also showing at Los Angeles County Museum of Art, beginning Friday. One of his large pieces will be shown at the Spokane World's Fair.

The public is invited to view the show through March 23. Gallery hours are Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 3 p.m.; Wednesday and Thursday, 6:30 to 9 p.m.; Saturday, noon to 4 p.m.; and Sunday, 1 to 5 p.m.



LIBRARY EXHIBIT — "Grass to Grasshopper," an acrylic on canvas by Los Angeles artist Astrid Preston, is among a collection of her paintings now on exhibit at the Pomona Public library.

Ken Decker shows work Wednesday

ONTARIO — California artist Ken Decker will give a demonstration of watercolor paintings at the monthly meeting of the Associated Artist at the Ontario Public Library at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday. The public is invited.

Although Decker's works also include oils and drawings, he says he prefers the fluency and challenge of watercolors. After graduating from art school, he worked as a commercial artist for more than 15 years. Now he devotes his time to paintings, teaching art classes, lecturing, demonstrating and judging shows. His work hangs in private and public collections throughout the West.

Children who don't speak learn

HONOLULU (UPI) — A little girl who spoke only in grunts a few months ago smiled prettily and said "juice."

A boy who once screamed for hours sat quietly and asked for "bread."

Weary parents beamed as their baffling children were finally learning to communicate, through cooking. The children are baffling because their primary symptom is inability or unwillingness to speak, with no diagnosed cause.

"Keiki House" is a colorful cottage filled with cheerful toys and playthings where children break out of their unexplained world of silence into speech.

Mrs. Lynne Alevy, director of the program at Kauikeolani Children's Hospital, explained that "there is no obvious reason why the child brought to Keiki House isn't talking."

Any physical problem the child may have isn't serious enough to preclude speech, Mrs. Alevy said, but for some reason, he doesn't talk. Her unusual program is designed to transform these youngsters from screaming, disobedient children to communicating and cooperative girls and boys.

"We don't know which came first," Mrs. Alevy said, "whether the baby was slow and the parents catered to it or whether the parents babied the infant too much and he was never encouraged to develop.

"The child becomes increasingly unmanageable, maneuvering his parents by crying and screaming, so that by the time he is referred to us the parents are beside themselves."

A youngster is usually referred to Keiki House by a pediatrician who can find no physical reason to justify the behavior. Mrs. Alevy said it is the unfortunate youngster whose parents keep denying the problem until the public schools detect it and label the youngster mentally retarded, emotionally disturbed, learning disabled or slow learning.

"Five per cent of the school age population has speech and language problems," Mrs. Alevy said, "but many of these can be eliminated if they're only spotted early enough."

Children attending Keiki House range from 18 months, when they should be saying some words, to five years old. Mrs. Alevy explained that the program is unusual because it concentrates on producing the desired behavior rather than dwelling on the emotional reasons for it.

It is not unusual for the youngster to spend his first three weeks crying and screaming, knocking things over with flailing arms and expecting the staff and volunteers to respond as his parents did. But Mrs. Alevy said eventually the child realizes that negative behavior is ignored and positive, constructive behavior, particularly speech, is rewarded with generous praise and attention.

The new child sees the others enjoying themselves while his crying is ignored. Once he has quieted down and is ready to join the group, emphasis is placed on sparking spontaneous speech.

Cooking has turned out to be an excellent way of getting the children to communicate. The delighted youngsters make frankfurters, juice, toast, Jello and other simple foods, using a small oven and child-sized refrigerator.

All the while the speech pathologist, social worker and student volunteers encourage them to speak by asking simple questions and praising responses.

"By having them cook, they develop a variety of skills," Mrs. Alevy said. "They learn concepts of wet and dry, hot, cold and done, soft and hard, not in a drill way but in a warm way."

The children are asked to say the word before they are given the treat. Each child has a turn at stirring juice and pronouncing "stir" and there's talk about numbers, minutes, hot, cold, done.

"Instilling confidence is the key," Mrs. Alevy said. "By learning to do things themselves, they develop a feeling of independence. They learn to share, speak and follow directions."

Arab diplomat optimistic on embargo end

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An official of the Arab League said Tuesday there is a better than even chance that the oil embargo will be lifted at a meeting of Arab oil ministers beginning in Libya Sunday.

Many Arab governments favor resumption of oil shipments to the United States and the probability of an end to the embargo is now "above 50 per cent," said Clovis Maksoud.

"I think we are closer to that position than we were before Dr. Henry Kissinger's latest visit," Maksoud told a news conference.

"Inasmuch as this is a collective Arab decision, it has to be collectively done, and there is an opportunity for such a collective decision at the oil minister's conference next week'' in Tripoli, Mksoud said.

Maksoud is a former editor of the Egyptian newspaper AnNahar, and a formerj ambassador of the Arab League. He is traveling the United States on a public relations tour that was ordered by the Arab conference in Algeria last November.

Civic pride grows in Brooklyn

BROOKLYN, N.Y. (UPI) — "I'm from Brooklyn—ya' know, Brooklyn, New York."

In Hollywood, they call it a pat line. A slight twist in inflection and up pop images of Canarsie and Flatbush, ill-tempered cabdrivers and a funny dialect that gave the nation its "dese" and "dem."

"Heah ya, heah ya, heah ya!" recited the court clerk recently at the opening of the Mitchell-Stans trial. "All poysons having business with the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, drawr near, give your attention, and ye shall be hoid."

No doubt where that clerk came from.

Brooklyn—a perennial patsy on the stand-up comic circuit, always good for a laugh, a hometown as belittling as Peoria or Hoboken. One just doesn't acknowledge his birthplace as Brooklyn.

Unabashed boosterism

Yet strange things are happening in New York City's most populous borough. In a time of rising sexual, ethnic and racial consciousness, Brooklyn's civic pride is growing. Unabashed boosterism, if you will.

"Welcome to Brooklyn—the fourth largest city in the nation," reads a sign on one of the borough's approachways. Brooklyn's 2.6 million population falls only behind that of the rest of New York, Chicago and Los Angeles.

It was in 1898 that the then city of Brooklyn was dissolved and attached to Manhattan to form with the other boroughs an entity known as "Greater New York." The consolidation was approved, after failing several times, in a referendum which many contend resulted from conniving by the foes of Manhattan's Tammany Hall. Some Brooklynites continue to demand a recount.

One of them is Louis Singer, operator of a newspaper distributorship who is a long-time Brooklyn resident and a history buff. Singer began conducting tours of "The Land of Brooks" some four years ago as a hobby. Today, the demand is such he averages nearly six tours a week and has bookings well into the fall.

Singer also conducts a newly created adult education course entitled "Brooklyn—Past and Present" at Brooklyn College.

Chauvinistic guide

"More and more Brooklynites are becoming interested in just what makes up this borough," he said. "They're learning that if you walk the streets with what I call a 'seeing eye', you find a fantastic amount of beauty."

Singer's tour brochure reads like a slightly chauvinistic Michelin's guide:

—Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian Church "with its immense chapel aglow with 18 glorious Louis Tiffany windows."

—Park Slope "with its wealth of 19th Century townhouses and, of course, the Montauk Club, still looking as though Lillian Russell and Diamond Jim were about to walk in."

—Cobble Hill "where George Washington stood and watched as his brave Marylanders were killed as they held off General Cornwallis' troops."

—Crown Heights "where Norman farmhouses nestle next to Viennese palaces and Parisian chateaux."

—And Prospect Park South, "once a private enclave, still an unbelievable vision, with its Japanese house and antebellum Southern mansions."

"I don't see why so many people have to go off running to Europe," Singer said. "Say it's church tours you want, we have enough cathedral-like churches and synagogues here in Brooklyn to easily fill a tour day."

Singer, who believes he has accumulated as many "miscellaneous tidbits" about Brooklyn as anyone, maintains a continuing commentary as his tour buses make their way through what was once known as "the city of churches and homes."

Included are such assertions as that Brooklyn was the site of the first regular use of the steamboat (the Fulton Ferry), the nation's first formal birth control clinic (on Amboy Street), the first New World village founded by a woman (Lady Moody's Gravesend chartered in 1645) and the world's longest suspension bridge (the Verrazano).

But closest to Singer's heart (the living room of his cooperative apartment overlooks it) is Fort Greene Park and its Prison Ship Martyrs' Monument.

Heroes' shrine

In the park, white marble steps climb a steep hill to the top and what is described as "the tallest Doric column in the world." Atop the column burns an eternal flame.

Within the hill, accessible by a doorway cut into the stairs, is a large crypt divided into 13 parts, one for each colony. It contains the remains of some 12,000 Americans who perished on prison boats maintained by the British in a Brooklyn bay during the Revolutionary War.

"There are 12,000 heroic Americans buried there," Singer said. "It should be a national shrine."

With a past so deeply rooted in the development of this nation, how is it that Brooklyn acquired an image that invariably produces a smile?

Singer blames, in part, Manhattan-based sportswriters and sportscasters, during the old Brooklyn Dodgers days when the inhabitants of the no longer existing Ebbets Field were known as Dem Bums.

Comedians' contribution

Not helping much, he believes, were the dozens of Brooklyn-born comedians who worked their hometown into their routines, albeit intending to evoke laughter based on love.

James Hurley, director of the Long Island Historical Society (Brooklyn is on Long Island) agreed, adding that the foxhole humor of World War I as depicted in newspaper cartoons and, later, radio situation comedies, also contributed. In both, the so-called Brooklyn accent played a sometimes prominent role in the quest for laughter.

According to both men the Brooklyn accent such as it was, is largely disappearing these days. In fact, Hurley said, the historical society is concerned about the disappearance of Brooklynese and hopes to begin a project soon to record the voices of those who still speak it, so the dialect will be preserved for posterity.

FRIENDLY POLICEMAN — Officer Alex Cerasoli, a 22-year veteran of the Hartford, Conn., police department, is warmly greeted by second grade students of Bachelder School as he goes about teaching the fourth R — respect — in Hartford public schools.

Policeman teaches fourth R—respect

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Officer Alex Cerasoli is teaching the fourth R in Hartford public schools—respect.

Cerasoli, a traffic policeman for eight years, thought that a policeman ought to be making more friends in the community he serves.

And he found one place to make friends was in the schools.

"I used to ask kids what they thought a policeman's job was and I couldn't take their answers—'arrest people,' or 'jail people,' the 22-year veteran of the department said. "To many youngsters, policemen are not human. They are, as they say it, pigs."

Under a program he helped initiate in January, Cerasoli and two fellow officers, Hector Marrero and Carl Henderson, are working fulltime with school children to break down the barrier between cop and community. They are pounding their new beat in 34 public and parochial schools in the city.

Officer friendly

In the classroom, the men in blue become "Officer Friendly." They hope the children will come to know them as among their best friends.

While Cerasoli strives to cast the policeman in more human terms—his pupils range from kindergarten on up—he also reminds them of the more serious side of his job, enforcing the law.

And when he clamps a pair of handcuffs onto the wrists of a boy and a girl, he gets screams.

Cerasoli gets pin-drop silence when he calls headquarters with his walkie-talkie and the officer on the desk tells the children to keep an eye on traffic when crossing the street.

Guns aren't toys

Guns are part of a policeman's job and the officer has to live with their awesome power. But, he tells the children, they aren't toys as he flashes a slide of a gun on a screen.

"A gun can hurt or kill you or your loved ones. Don't toy with it," Cerasoli tells the class. "If you see one at home, don't touch it."

For their first classroom visits, the three Officers Friendly are just out to introduce themselves to the children.

"We want first of all to erase the stigma of a cop," Cerasoli said. "We ask them not to judge policemen harshly and that if they're arresting people, they're just doing their job."

The officers have scheduled two other visits to each class this year, and they will be talking about the children's own safety; how to cross the street, what to do when approached by a stranger, who to call in case someone gets hurt or killed.

Reaching parents

In between classes, Cerasoli managed to fulfill speaking engagements for civic and business groups and says they afford him a chance to reach parents.

"Parents have a lot to do with children's attitude toward policemen," he said. "If we can educate them, we would be more effective."

Cerasoli, a high school dropout, obtained his high school diploma at the age of 34. He attended New Haven College and took courses in child psychology at Manchester Community College.

He says it's too early to assess the result of the Officer Friendly program.

"These kids would be in college before we see any real improvement in police-community relationship," he said.

Cerasoli, however, says he hopes vandalism in school could be reduced as a result of the course.

"I think it's already a success. Children, when asked about a policeman's job, no longer just say 'arrest people.' They also say they help people," Cerasoli said.

Poll reveals more now watching TV

PRINCETON, N.J. (UPI) — Nearly half of participants in a recent Gallup poll, 46 per cent, said their favorite way of spending an evening was watching television. The figure was the same when Gallup posed the question in 1966, but there were differences in other activities listed as favorites.

Those who favored engaging in family activities at home has increased from 5 to 10 per cent since 1966, and going to the movies or theater rose in popularity from 5 to 9 per cent.

But the second most frequently listed pastime, at 14 per cent, was reading. Reading topped the list with 21 per cent in a similar Gallup poll in 1938, dropped to 10 per cent in 1960 and rose to 15 per cent in 1965.

Television was listed as the favorite activity by 28 per cent of those polled in 1960, rising to 46 per cent in 1966.

Dancing has dropped from 12 per cent in 1938 to 4 per cent at present.

Music educators plan convention at Anaheim

ANAHEIM — More than 12,000 musicians from all over the United States will attend the annual convention of the Music Educators National Conference (MENC) at the Anaheim Convention Center March 22-26.

The Los Angeles section of the American String Teachers' Association will man a booth at the convention. President of the section is Kenneth G. Fiske of Claremont, former Pomona College professor of music and conductor of the Pomona College Symphony Orchestra.

MENC will present special awards to Yehudi Menuhin, George Bornoff and Vera Barstow. The orchestra of the string teachers association will present a concert featuring a new work by Grant Belarian.

The conference will also include sessions in classic guitar, a program by students of the Menuhin school, and a concert by the San Bernardino County Youth Orchestra, conducted by Fiske.

Information on the conference can be obtained from Fiske at 626-1719.

Scholarship art show on agenda

Pomona — The 22nd annual Student Scholarship Art Show of the Pomona Valley Art Association will open with a reception for the winners at the Cal Poly library at 8 p.m. Monday.

The exhibition of work by art students at local high schools and junior high schools will continue through March 29.

The student competition is sponsored annually by the Pomona Valley Art Association and Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan Association. Judges for the event were Charles Frederick of the Cal Poly art faculty, and Bob Ronketty of the Mt. San Antonio College art faculty. Ronketty was himself a one-time winner in the show.

Students whose work was selected for this exhibit include: Jennie Annem, Kathy Telles, and Joe Lacore, students at Pomona High; Ron Davis and Gary Lett, Garey High; Scott Fletcher, Pioneer Junior High; Janice Granich, Pomona Catholic High; Cindy Rudolph, Claremont Collegiate School; Vicki Borba and Mary La Porto of St. Margaret's, Chino; Sherry Batelaan, Barrie Dickerman, Janette McAlexander, Ed Peacock and Robin Walker of Los Altos High; and Linda Crawford, Nancy Noreen, Patty Pierson, Heidi Sage, and Betsy Saulsburg of Alta Loma High.

The winners will receive art lessons awarded by the Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan. Dick Ryerson of the MSAC art faculty will be the instructor. The winners will also receive one-year memberships in the Pomona Valley Art Association.

Mae Augarten of Diamond Bar was the organizer of this year's competition.

Overseas market:

Search out castle to spend retirement years

By DOROTHEA BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Your dream castle in Spain is just that —a dream, something for the wealthy jet setters, not a middle income American family.

Not necessarily so, according to Arthur D. Little, Inc., Cambridge, Mass.

"While wealthy Americans long have been buyers of vacation and retirement homes abroad, now their less affluent countrymen also are in the market,". says Winslow Martin of the research firm.

"It's a combination of factors," he explains. "Jet travel, for one thing, has brought foreign real estate closer, made it more accessible. It also has made the cost of travel more attractive over the last decade.

"Another factor is the increased leisure time which Americans have today. A third thing is soaring real estate prices at popular U.S. resort areas, which only the wealthy can afford."

For this reason, Martin says, Americans with more modest incomes are looking abroad, buying villas, renovating castles, monasteries, churches, old farmhouses, lighthouses, and, particularly, buying condominiums.

Condominnium most popular

The fastest growing segment of the foreign vacation-retirement home market, a Little study found, is the condominium priced from $10,000 to $50,000. "The most popular developments are in Spain and Portugal," Martin said, "although Ireland, the Canary Islands, the Caribbean Islands and the northern coast of South America have their share of American buyers.

"In these locations," he said, "vacationers and retirees find an ideal climate and a living cost that is relatively low, of particular interest to those on pensions."

Most of the condominium developments are part of an "urbanization" or "international community," first conceived to attract middle income European families, Martin explained. These communities, largely self-sufficient with shops, restaurants and extensive recreational facilities, are being built by a number of developers who sell through local and foreign real estate agents.

Developers often rent and manage apartments for absentee owners through a director who lives on the premises. Often, Martin said, developers have two, three-or five-year contracts with airlines or other tour wholesalers who provide rented apartments as part of a package plan.

He stressed, however, "prospective buyers should be aware that the term 'guaranteed rental' may have considerable ambiguity in practice."

See property first

The Little study found promotion of these developments has become considerably more sophisticated than the initial efforts which generally were aimed at vacationers already on the scene. Several developers, Martin said, have established relationships with American and other foreign real estate firms who conduct extensive advertising campaigns.

Although it is possible to buy property sign unseen, it is unwise to do so. The buyer should beware in any real estate transaction, and particularly one where he may be unfamiliar with the area, the customs and where he may not plan to be on the scene himself all the time but have to rely on others.

Many developers and real estate agents offer all-expense tours for prospective buyers to inspect properties, these aimed at prospects in the middle income brackets. Martin said, "One firm estimates about 70 per cent of its clientele earns between $15,000 and $18,000 a year."

Borrow at Home

Until recently, Martin said, it was difficult for an American to get a mortgage for foreign property. Now many of the new condominium and villa developers do their own financing and, in some countries, qualifications have been eased for financing a conventional residence purchase.

"While mortgage terms vary from country to country," he explained, "most European mortgages are written for only 50 to 70 per cent of the selling price. Interest rates often are as high as 14 per cent, and terms only from three to 10 years."

It may, he said, be wise for Americans to finance their purchase with a personal loan from a bank at home, where terms and rates fay be more reasonable.

Martin said some countries encourage foreign investment in real estate. "Spain's tremendous popularity is partly attributable to its low property tax and uncomplicated legal arrangements. Under the present government, foreign property owners have the same rights as Spanish citizens.

"On the other hand, some countries actively discourage all foreign property buyers. France is known for its legal complexities and high transfer and property taxes that discourage less affluent buyers.

At La Linda homes:

Can apply rent toward down payment

FONTANA — Eight homes remain to be sold at the La Linda residential development here which offers a "rent free living" program.

Under the program, a potential buyer can move into a home on a rental basis then after six months the money paid in rent will be applied to satisfy the down payment requirements, said Richard Hall, builder.

"It's like being able to live in your home free for six months while you save money for the down payment," he explained.

The 14 homes in the entire project are located in an established neighborhood. Prices start at $24,500.

The purchase price includes central air conditioning, fireplaces, dishwashers, shag carpeting, fencing and landscaping.

Buyers have their choice of two, three or four bedroom homes. These have one or two bathrooms.

The La Linda sales office is located in a model home at 8712 Blanchard Ave. Eight homes are on Blanchard and six on Fairview Road.

Visitors may reach the site from the San Bernardino Freeway by going north on Sierra Avenue, east on Foothill Boulevard, north on Palmetto Avenue, west on Reed Street and north on Blanchard.

Refreshments will be served today from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Alan Shepard will retire

HOUSTON (UPI— — Space pioneer Alan B. Shepard plans to retire from the space agency and the Navy in June after 30 years in the armed forces. Shepard, the first American to fly in space, has been chief of the flight operations astronaut office since making the Apollo 14 flight.

He made America's first space journey on May 5, 1961.

Despite fuel shortage:

Programs to clean water still needed

SACRAMENTO — The current energy shortage shouldn't slow down California programs to clean up its water.

"The ensuing increase in energy use is relatively insignificant and does not justify the abandonment, deferment, curtailment or slowdown in present programs or adjustment of present policies," notes a report of an energy task force written for the State Water Resources Control Board.

Energy use for all purposes was reported as the equivalent of 1,850 gallons of fuel oil per year per person in California in 1971 by the Department of Interior

Increased energy usage due to higher levels of treatment will be equivalent to 1.5 gallons of fuel oil per person per year. The increase in energy needs will be spread over the next five years, said officials.

The report spells out specific impacts of the energy shortage on wastewater treatment. It recommends actions and policies to insure adequate fuel for wastewater treatment plant construction and operation and preventive measures to insure against failure of industrial waste-water control system.

"Our next step is to circulate the report for review and comment among the concerned agencies such as the Public Utilties Commission, local utilities and federal energy officials.

"They can help implement the recommendations and help refine the solutions," said W. Don Maughan, control board chairman.

The report detailed four main areas of concern where fuel shortages or curtailment of electrical service might handicap the water quality control efforts:

— Adequate supplies of fuel are needed for the construction equipment used to build sewage treatment plants required under state and federal clean water laws and regulations. These plants are funded by joint federal and state grants of 87½ per cent of eligible costs.

— Energy is needed for operation of existing and planned wastewater treatment plants. The report noted that larger plants can recover up to 70 per cent of energy needs by using the methane gas generated by the sludge removed from wastewater. Many plants in California are already equipped to do this.

— Industrial wastewater treatment facilities may be adversely affected by brownouts or rolling blackouts.

— Chlorine, used for disinfection, may continue to be in short supply. This chemical requires a relatively high use of elecctricity for production.

Specific actions to be discussed with appropriate agencies include:

— Priority be given for fuel allocation by state and federal fuel allocation agencies for equipment used at construction sites for new wastewater treatment plants.

— Exemption of sewage treatment plants from rolling brownouts and other mandatory curtailment of electric power by local utilities.

— A list of industrial wastewater treatment facilities that require uninterrupted service to be created and that steps be taken to assure such plants a continuation of service or adequate advance notice of energy curtailment. This would be done in cooperation with the Public Utilities Commission.

— New sewage treatment plants be placed in an equal high priority with existing sewage treatment plants for energy allocation by local utilities and fuel allocation officials.

— Encouragement of use of methane gas generated by sewage treatment processes to provide energy for operating treatment facilities. This will be done through the Clean Water Grant program, administered jointly by the federal Environmental Protection Agency and the State Board, which finances new sewage treatment plants.

Real estate firm turns on cameras for its customers

TAKING A PICTURE — Bill Kunkle, a San Dimas Realtor, films a house listed for sale for later showing to prospective clients. Audio narratives may also be recorded.

SAN DIMAS — When an associate at Canyon Realtors asks you to sit down in front of a television set, he's not going to show a re-run of "Gunsmoke."

He will show you a house listed for sale — inside and out.

Bill Kunkle, broker and owner of Canyon Realtors, 185 N. San Dimas Road, recently began using Video Homes Selectra TV to assist in home sales.

"This is the best thing that has happened to real estate since the 'for sale' signs," he noted.

Video Homes Slectra TV is a coast-to-coast network that uses modern technology to save time for its clients. The television systems are being used more by real estate offices as a time, energy and gasoline saving sales tool in presenting property to clients.

Listings are filmed from interesting angles both inside and outside the property Tapes may include a neighborhood "sweep" or a detached presentation of area schools, recreation facilities, libraries, cultural attractions, shopping centers, transportation facilities, and other local points of interest.

The filming apparatus is a completely portable, battery operated unit which can be carried and operated by one person. It consists of a hand-held video camera connected to a shoulder-carried video recorder.

Audio narratives may be recorded on site or added later.

Desired sounds such as a bubbling stream, or sound of birds are retained for special atmosphere.

The camera is virtually "foolproof" and not erratic as in home movies, said Kunkle.

The viewing system consists of a portable monitor television set which allows buyers to scan property within their price range in the comfort of an air-conditioned sales viewing room. With the aid of a special adaptor, tapes can be shown on the buyer's own television set in his living room.

The new video process also saves wear and tear on the seller, who ordinarily has to rush around cleaning house before a salesman drops over with a prospect.

With the Video Homes nationwide referral service, Canyon Realtors can arrange to show long-distance movers what their new community is like and provide a tour of homes that best suit their needs.

Tapes of area homes can also be sent to buyers in other parts of the nation.

"All these extra services are available to buyers and sellers without it costing them an extra cent," said Kunkle.

Demand is for existing homes

DETROIT — It may not show up in new-home activity for a few months, but the recent easing in the mortgage market is already bolstering the existing home market.

There's been a significant pickup in Los Angeles's "under $30,000" existing home market since Jan. 1.

The energy crisis is starting to rewrite the local sales and property value map.

And there's been a strong shift to FHA and VA financing in the existing-home market.

These are findings of the Advance Mortgage Corp.'s economic research bureau which surveyed existing home trends in major markets.

"The mood of the market is up even more than sales," said J. Christopher Avren, Los Angeles area manager.

"Listings are growing scarce in relation to demand," she noted. "The long gas lines are starting to have an effect on people's buying decisions.

"Within the past few weeks, existing-home sales have slowed in areas like Orange County, Simi Valley, Thousand Oaks and Santa Paula."

But home sales are good in close-in neighborhoods in Burbank, Glendale, Canoga Park and Woodland Hills.

"Homes in these areas have appreciated as much as $5,000 in the past half year," said Avren. "In the beach area, prices are increasing up to 15 per cent a year. And in East Los Angeles, homes under $25,000 are up 10 per cent over last year."

There is also a strong demand for condominium conversions in all these areas, he reported.

"In general, homes that are FHA-able have the strongest market. Our FHA and VA business has doubled in the past three months."

Homes in the higher price ranges are selling more slowly in nearly all locations, said Avren. In Beverly Hills and Hollywood, there is now an inventory of higher priced condominium conversions.

Nationally, every section of the country has reported a rebound in existing-home sales since the first of the year. It's paralleled a general increase in the availability of mortgage money and a decline in interest rates.

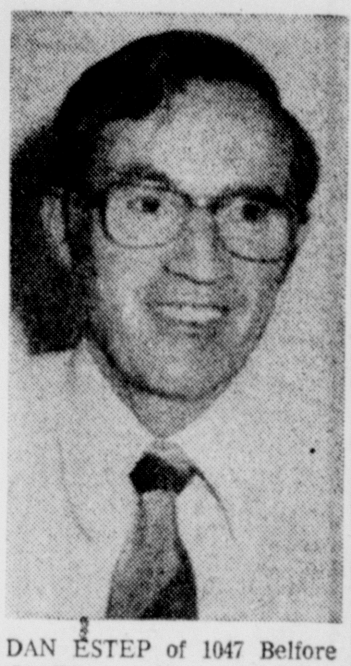
In the second half of 1973, under the influence of the credit crunch, the number of homes sold in the U.S. fell some 12 per cent from the year before, according to the National Association of Realtors index. It was the smallest number of homes sold since 1969. The national market was softest in September, when the credit crunch was first taking hold, and in December, posting 16 per cent declines in both months.

Price increases continued right through the depressed months and even accelerated slightly. The average U.S. increase in the second half was 9 per cent, compared to an average 8 per cent increase in the first half, according to the NAR index.

The nation's most expensive homes and the biggest price increase were in the Northeast, where the average home sold in December went for $34,350, up 18 per cent over a year ago.

The biggest home bargains were in the Midwest, where December existing home prices increased less than 5 per cent over the year before, and averaged only $24,750.

More than 65 per cent of Midwest existing homes still sold for less than $30,000 at the end of last year, compared with less than 40 per cent in the Northeast and a national average of 50 per cent. The over-$40,000 bracket made up only 15 per cent of Midwest sales but 35 per cent of the Northeast's and 28 per cent in the West and South. But the Northeast solo nearly twice as many four-bedroom homes and half as many two-bedroom homes as the Midwest, which helps account for a good part of the price difference.



DAN ESTEP of 1047 Belfore St., Pomona, has received his California real estate license and joined the Jim Odom Realty firm as an associate salesman. He is also employed with the General Telphone Co. as a methods engineer at the firm's supply facility in south Pomona. He and his wife, Betty, have three children.

An early capital

New Castle was the capital of Delaware from 1704 to 1777.

Builders seek laws to aid home loans

WASHINGTON — New legislation is needed to increase the lending powers of federal savings and loan associations as a means of checking housing declines.

J. S. Norman, vice president of the National Association of Home Builders, gave that message to Congress in warning that housing starts for 1974 could drop to a four year low of 1.6 million units.

"Viewing the current low level of housing starts, the high mortgage interest rate situations, and the general depressed condition of the housing industry, you can understand why our association views the present picure with such deep concern."

Norman testified at hearings on the proposed Consumer Home Mortgage Assistance Act being considered by the Housing Banking subcommittee.

He endorsed the measure's provisions, stating "it can have a real and immediate effect toward alleviating many of the problems facing housing."

Among other things, the legislation would recognize the increased cost of home buildings by raising the ceiling on savings and loan single family loans from $45,000 to $55,000.

It would also allow the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. to increase the maximum amount on conventional mortgages it may purchase and the loan-to-value ratio on the mortgages from 75 to 80 per cent.

In urging Congress to take prompt action on the proposed legislation, Norman also said Congress must act quickly on other pending mortgage credit legislation which would increase the insurance on savings and loan deposits to $50,000 from $20,000, and provide 100 per cent insurance for public fund deposits.

He also called for a liberalizing of the Federal Housing Administration's maximum mortgage and down payment requirements and the Federal National Mortgage Association's and Government National Mortgage Association's maximum loan limits, to help "all Americans, particularly those families of modest incomes to obtain decent housing either through home ownership or rental at prices they can afford."

SOLAR HEATING SYSTEM — Paul Davis, an English professor at the University of New Mexico, explains how a solar heating system works on his neighbor's house. He stands in front of a solar water heater that works in conjunction with a wall. It is composed of 55 gallon drums. Water in the drums is heated in the wall and heater to warm the house. The home is heated for the most part by the sun. This is supplemented by a fireplace. (UPI telephoto)

HUD asked to head solar research

WASHINGTON — Two spokesmen for the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) have asked Congress to put a proposed research project for solar energy heating and cooling under the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) rather than under the National Aeronautics and Space Agency.

Lewis Cenker, president of the 75,000 member association, recently testified before Seante Aeronattical and Space Sciences Committee on a bill to establish a demonstration program on residential and commercial structures.

"HUD is the more logical agency to develop and coordinate such activities since it has the responsibility for carrying out the nation's housing programs and has the most expertise in the field of housing," said Cenker.

He was supported by Ralph J. Johnson, staff vice president and director of NAHB's research foundation.

Cenker also discussed the in-place cost of the solar units in houses. "A demonstration program which produces a housing unit with a solar heating and cooling capacity equivalent to that contained in a conventional unit but at a substantial cost increase must contain a sufficient marketability incentive for the purchase of that unit," he said.

"There is no assurance that the buyer, even with a government insurance mortgage, is going to be willing to pay the additional cost of the solar device, nor does it offer any assistance to a conventionally financed unit not covered by any government program.

"Thus is becomes obvious that the additional cost of the solar device (for prototype installations during the research period) must be underwritten by the federal government," said Cenker.

Regarding the research project's time table, Johnson said that four years for solar heating and six years for solar heating and cooling is a more reasonable schedule than the three and five years called for by the pending bill.

Housing agreement:

Open access sought for minorities

CHICAGO — The National Association of Realtors is working with the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to establish an industry-wide affirmative marketing agreement to assure minorities of free and open access in housing.

Negotiations were announced by William D. North, general counsel for the association. "The development of a marketing agreement is a proper responsibility of HUD and can be beneficial to boards and Realtors in reducing their exposure to harrassing investigations and litigation," he said.

"Open housing is the law of the land, proclaimed by Congres in the Fair Housing Act of 1968 and the United States Supreme Court in Jones vs. Mayer. It is and should be the objective of the national association and every Realtor."

Until that objective is achieved and open housing is not merely policy but reality, the real estate industry and the activities of every Realtor and real estate broker will be under severe scrutiny and challenge, warned North.

"If we are to expect and demand that government conform its conduct to requirements of the law, so must every Realtor and every board of Realtors," he added. "Every board and every Realtor must be prepared to prove its compliance and to document such proof if necessary.

"This means that every Realtor and his salesmen must truly be racially neutral," he said.

North told Realtors that they must not restrict access to listing information to minority buyers; discriminate in the financial arrangements they offer; downgrade integrated schools and neighborhoods, or observe a double standard in the services they render to clients.

"Every Realtor," he said, "must constantly emphasize to all members of his organization and those associated with him the requirements of the civil rights laws; must assure that his advertising affords a representative and nondiscriminatory view of listing information, and must screen all prospects on the basis of a nondiscriminatory criterion."

North cautioned Realtors that "it is not enough to give lip service to the policy of fair and open housing." He cautioned Realtors they would be "well-advised" to minitor performance of sales personnel making sure their activities are not violations of the law.

"It is no answer and no defense that a violattion of the policy involved the conduct of an independent contractor salesman. The Realtors will be held responsible for such misconduct," North said. "This means that any salesman, no matter how productive, who steers or otherwise violates the law, is too expensive for any Realtors to have around."

Edison Co. reports:

Power requirements met but at increased costs

ROSEMEAD — The Edison Co. expects to meet all its 1974 power requirements but the cost of fuel and purchased power will be more than double that of 1973.

In the past two years, Edison's electric rates have increased about 62 per cent.

This year's total fuel and purchased power bill is expected to soar to more than $750 million and account for nearly 50 cents of every customer revenue dollar.

This compares with $345 million, or about 32 cents, in 1973,' officials said. And the 1973 expenditure was 44 per cent more than in 1972.

Unless present inflationary trends and other costs beyond the control of utilities are stemmed, the decade of the 1970s will be marked by continuing increases in electric rates, they added.

Officials had forecast several months ago that rolling blackouts might be necessary later this year. The company now expects to meet all its power demands because of expanded fuel oil storage facilities, positive customer response to conversation of electricity and above-average rainfall in the Pacific Northwest.

''Some uncertainties are created, however, by the mandatory fuel oil allocation system established by the Federal Energy Office last January," said Jack Horton, chief executive officer. The Federal Energy Office determines the amount of oil that any utility may receive on a month-to-month basis.

"Edison's present suppy of oil is storage is believed to be sufficient to avoid near-term operating problems," he added.

As previously reported, Edison's recorded earnings for the year increased to $2.07 per share, regaining the level reached in 1970 and up 5.9 per cent from the $2.55 recorded in 1972.

Operating revenues last year totaled nearly $1.1 billion, up 16 per cent from the $931 million reported in 1972. Fuel cost adjustments and the effect of general rate increases contributed substantially to the higher revenues.

Net income for the year was $148 million, up 7.6 per cent over the previous year's figure of $137 million.

Total kilowatt hours transmitted for the first four weeks of 1974 were eight per cent below the same period last year.

"This would indicate preliminarily that conservation measures adopted by Edison customers are working effectively, although it must be recognized that changes in temperature and weather can distort comparisons between time periods," said Horton.

Check ownership in buying home

WASHINGTON — Consumers planning to buy subdivision homes should avoid developing a false sense of security regarding possible challenges to their ownership, advises the president of the American Land Title Association.

"Those shopping for subdivision residences too often sign a purchase contract with an apparent feeling that action already has been taken to protect their interests," said Robert C. Dawson of Richmond, Va.

"Frequently, this is not the case as recent examples in three states will illustrate."

In New Jersey, the owner of an adjacent tract filed a court claim against a number of homes in a subdivision. Through extensive research of public records going back to the early 1800's, a title company insuring several of the home owners was able to successfully defend against the challenge and spare the insured financial loss.

In Florida, a subdivision home buyer found himself being denied access to his property by the local community association—which claimed the subdivision plat and deed interpretations allowed this. The title company insuring the buyer retained an attorney, who was able to obtain a permanent court injunction that gave the insured access to his real estate.

And, in Michigan, the buyer of a subdivision lot had begun excavation for a basement when the local property owners association threatened court action to prevent construction.

It was alleged by the association that the buyer's lot had been dedicated as an athletic field on the subdivision plat. After an investigation proved the association claim to be correct, the title company insuring the buyer paid the insured the full amount of his owner's title insurance policy to cover the loss.

Buyer precautions are equally important whether acquiring a subdivision home, townhouse, condominium unit, or any other type of residence, according to Dawson, who is also president of Lawrence Title Insurance Corp. In each instance, the buyer has an investment to protect—and safeguarding usually is up to him.

An important initial precaution frequently overlooked by the buyer is having his real estate purchase contract reviewed by an attorney before signing, Dawson said. Failing to do so deprives the buyer of an opportunity to negotiate for contractural amendments in his favor.

Another safeguard suggested by Dawson is making sure the home buyer transaction is covered by owner's as well as lender's title insurance. In some locales, the ALTA president said, owner's title insurance is not likely to be obtained unless the buyer asks for it. Lender's title insurance protects only the mortgage lender—even where the real estate purchaser is required to pay for it. When acquired at the same time lender's title insurance is ordered, owner's coverage normally is available at a modest additional one-time charge.

Realty firm sends four to meeting

CLAREMONT — Four officials of the Wheeler-Steffen Realtors firm will attend the ninth annual convention of the Homes for Living Network March 20-24 in San Diego.

They are Roger Wheeler and Art Steffen, brokers, Jane Sliva, sales manager for the Claremont office, and Cal Reed, sales manager for the Upland office.

More than 1,200 Realtors from 50 states and Puerto Rico are expected to attend.

The network, with headquarters in St. Louis, Mo., is a national marketing network of over 900 cooperating Realtor offices providing services and programs to the home buying and selling public.

The more than 9,000 borkers and sales associates serving 6,000 communities accounted for more than $3 billion in residential sales last year.

Wheeler-Steffen Realtors is the exclusive member representative for the Pomona Valley.

The convention will feature sessions and workshops where major areas affecting real estate and the American public will be discussed. One session will concentrate on the energy crisis and how it has affected changes and trends in real estate in serving the relocation needs of families and businesses.

Kitchens sell homes for Lewis

LA VERNE — The adage that "most home sales are made in the kitchen" is found true in a survey of buyers at the recently opened Lewis Homes-La Verne development.

"We hardly had to ask buyers what particular feature most influenced the purchase,'' said Richard A. Lewis, president of Lewis Homes. "One can tell the kitchen is the big attraction from the way model home visitors are causing traffic jams in that part of the house."

Lewis reported nearly half of the 37 homes in the project have been sold. The houses are located on 6th Street between Aldon Avenue and Fulton Road.

"What we've done," he explained, "is to take two currently popular kitchen motifs—garden kitchen styling and the so-called country kitchen design—and combined them to create a spacious indoor-outdoor effect."

The unique kitchen arrangement provides room for large pantries, cupboards, and wide counter areas.

The three and four bedroom houses, are priced from $27,700 to $29,550. They feature wood burning fireplaces, cathedral ceilings and cultured marble bath counters.

Apartment group to hear guest speakers

CLAREMONT — Two guest speakers will present a program for the Apartment Association, Mt. Baldy Area, Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan Association building, Foothill and Indian Hill boulevards.

They are Bill Kessler, energy services supervisor for the Southern California Edison Co., in Covina, and Mrs. Betty Fletcher, home economist of the Southern California Gas Co. in Pomona.

Both will give energy saving tips and Mrs. Fletcher will also show slides.

Vic Tessler, association attorney, will conduct the regular "problem clinic." The public is invited.

Columbia gets tape memoirs of Khrushchev

NEW YORK (UPI) — Time Inc. has given tape recordings and a transcript of the oral memoirs of Nikita S. Khrushchev to the Columbia University's oral history collection, Time has announced.

The gift marked the first public disclosure by Time of the tapes' existence and their presence in the country.

About half of the 180 hours of recordings were the basis for four articles in Life magazine beginning November 27, 1970, and the book "Khrushchev Remembers," published by Little, Brown and Company in December, 1970, according to Time. The other half came into Time's possession after Khrushchev's death.

The contents of the newer materials will be included in a second book called "Khrushchev Remembers: The Last Testament," to be published soon by Little, Brown, a Time subsidiary.

In announcing the transfer, Hedley Donovan, editor-in-chief of Time, said, "We believe that the oral memoirs of Nikita Khrushchev will help historians and other concerned scholars to understand better the tumultuous and highly significant period in Russian history through which Mr. Khrushchev lived."

The materials will be made available to scholars and Soviet experts later in the year, a Columbia spokesman said.

ONCE UPON A TIME
High upon a hill there lived a princess. Every eve she would stroll the balcony by the luminous pool and heavenly garden. She would wait for her prince by the day, wandering through the 3 bedroom, 2 bath fortress. Dining alone in the formal dining room, and sitting by the hour as the flames danced endless in the magnificent brick fireplace in the family room. No servants were needed in the jet-age electric kitchen and fans were taboo with the central air conditioning. One day her prince did come, riding his horse into the 2-car garage with automatic door, and carried her away from her hilltop home. Now the castle stands alone, waiting for a happy family to enlighten the royal courtyard, tread upon the marble entry, and frolic merrily thru the halls. $75,000.

SUPERIOR DWELLING
Authentic Spanish architecture thruout this 10 room mansion. Red tile roof, arched windows, vaulted ceiling, stone fireplace, wrought iron staircase, French doors, private balcony. Shady veranda and ivy covered gate. Antiquity and memories of days past lurk thru the halls of this magnificent home.

MANICURED LAWNS
and walled courtyard enrich the exterior of this spacious 4 bedroom home. Large living room, with fireplace and cathedral ceiling, family room, 2 baths, dining room, and central air conditioning. Meticulous housekeeping and exquisite decorating make this home a pleasure to show. $39,950.

SLEEK AS A CAT
and cozy as a kitten. Attractive 3 bedroom, 1¾ bath home. 17x22' family room, dining room, air conditioning, fireplace, alluring backyard with 18x36' pool. Workshop off garage and room for camper or boat. All on a quiet, traffic free residential street. $29,500.

MASS CAMELLIAS
growing abundantly among rare foliage. The Japanese torture tree is amid the many unique plantings flourishing in the 3 backyards, separated by stone walls. Lighted garden emphasizing the ecological fish pond by the guest chamber with natural stone fireplace. Main home is Spanish style with raised deck leading to massive wooden door. Entry with special glass in arched window and tile floor, living room with fireplace and French doors leading to patio. Banquet dining room, shag carpeting thruout, remodeled kitchen, 4 spacious bedrooms, 1½ baths. Blending the old with the new makes this home an experience in modern living. Claremont.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — After washing my bedspread I always had difficulty ironing it on the ironing board. Now I put the clean, wrinkled spread on the bed and iron it right there. The sides that hang over are turned up on the top and ironed. —B.J.

DEAR POLLY — Our Bible class sews for the cancer society. One member prepares all the squares for sewing, so always brings her sharp scissors. She slips the rubber bulb from an old eye dropper over the end of her scissors as protection. — ANNA.

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, c/o this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY — I hung an expanding hat rack (10 knobs) high on the back shower wall for bathing suits and shower caps. It's now a handy catch-all for wet raincoats, washcloths, baby's bath toys (in a bucket) and shampoo brush. How did I ever get along without it? —FRAN

DEAR POLLY — Having sloping shoulders, I was plagued with falling shoulder straps for years. I now sew a narrow piece of elastic from one strap to the other about four inches up from where the straps are sewed to the slip. My one regret: I didn't discover this till I was 78! —OTELLA.

DEAR POLLY — My employer put a new rug down in the reception room the day after the floors were cleaned and waxed. It was very slippery. Not having rubber jar rings to sew on the back as I do at home, I sprinkled loose rubber bands all over the floor under the rug. This proved to be a good emergency aid. —FLORIEE.

DEAR POLLY — Teen-agers who like to have lots of posters on their walls will find that a staple gun is great for fastening them, as only slight marks are left on the wall. —MARCI.

DEAR POLLY — To get more wear and longer use from both top- and bottom-fitted sheets I alternate tops and bottoms. One week I make all beds with labels at the top and the next week all labels are at the bottom. My sheets last much longer. —DORIS

DEAR POLLY — It was very difficult to clean my white iron railing till I happened on a solution quite by accident. After a rain shower, before the railing dries, I wipe it with a soft, absorbent cloth. No detergent is needed. I attribute this to the softness of the water. —LOIS.

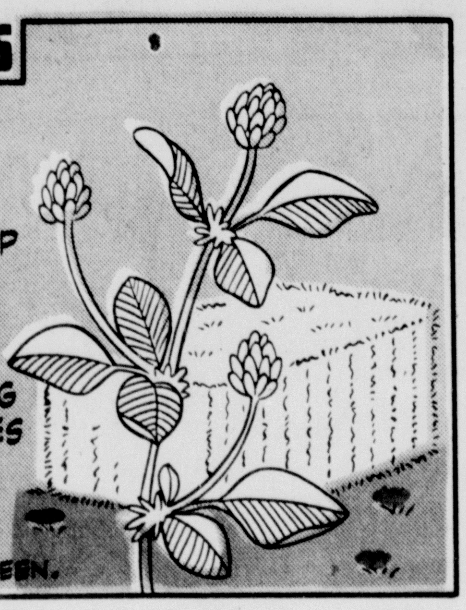
HAY

HAY IS A HORSE AND CATTLE FEED MADE UP OF THE DRIED STEMS AND LEAVES OF SUCH PLANTS AS ALFALFA AND CLOVER. PRESSING HAY INTO BALES MAKES IT EASY TO HANDLE AND STORE.

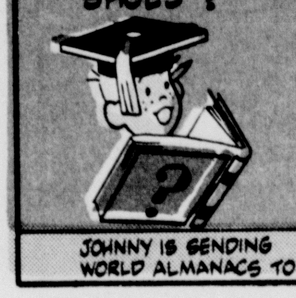


COLOR THE ALFALFA GREEN.

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

HEATHER ROSS OF LOGAN, UT, ASKS:

"WHY DO HORSES WEAR SHOES ?"



A HORSE NEEDS SHOES EVEN THOUGH ITS HOOVES ARE THICK AND TOUGH. A HORSE'S SHOE IS A SPECIAL KIND OF METAL PLATE THAT FITS AROUND THE EDGES OF EACH HOOF. THE IRON SHOES PROTECT THE FEET OF HORSES THAT WORK OR RUN ON ROCKY ROADS OR HARD RACETRACKS. THEY KEEP THE HOOVES FROM SPLITTING AND HELP GIVE THE HORSE BETTER FOOTING. NAILS HOLD EACH HORSESHOE IN PLACE, BUT SINCE THE NAILS GO ONLY INTO THE THICK HOOF THIS DOESN'T HURT THE HORSE AT ALL.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR TRISH VAN DEVERE,
starring in "The Day of the Dolphin"

You and your husband, George C. Scott, are both actors. Do you have any theories about what makes for powerful acting?—J. L., Dubuque, Iowa

● Let me tell you a story about Sophie the dachshund, who got so excited about the fish in our living room aquarium that everyone in the room had to stop and watch her. And all she was doing was looking at fish! There was so much electric energy in her concentration that all the dynamics in the room came down to Sophie, on a stool, staring at the fish. I think George believes completely in the energy of concentration—or, as Sir Laurence Olivier told him, "We know it's all in the eyes, don't we, George?" My own favorite actor is Edward G. Robinson. Just look at his eyes. He never made a mistake.

FOR SEN. HAROLD HUGHES (D–Iowa)

I understand you've decided to retire from the U.S. Senate to become a lay preacher and follow God's calling. Where will you get your income?—A. S. Kravitz, Brooklyn, N.Y.

● I will be financially supported by the Fellowship Foundation of Washington. I do not know now where my work will take me. At the end of my term, I will take some time to think and pray and wait on the Lord for guidance.

FOR MIKE CONNORS of "Mannix"

Why did you change your name when you became an actor? —L. G., Rifle, Colo.

● My name was Krekor Ohanian (that's Armenian). People were forever asking me, "What's that you said?" and "How do you spell that?" I didn't mind it until I became an actor. I had an agent who advised me to change my name on the grounds that a guy whose name was so hard to pronounce would have a tough time becoming a star. I think it was logical advice.

FOR CELESTE HOLM, actress

How do you feel about nudity in films?—F. A. Langdon, Fishkill, N.Y.

● I'm reminded of what a great French actor once told me. "Nakedness," he said, "is what theater is all about. Every good actor stands naked before the audience. But to communicate your nakedness by actually taking off your clothes —that's too much of a costume!"

FOR FLORENCE HENDERSON

I read that you are the mother of four children, yet you look so young! How do you manage?—B. O. C., Yuma, Ariz.

● Actually I think I look younger now than I did when I was young. That's probably because I was brought up in a serious Catholic family, and at 17 I was very serious-minded. I had a lot of adjustments to make. I had to learn who I was. I don't have fewer worries or responsibilities now—but I do like myself better, and I'm interested in everything.

FOR KEN CURTIS, Festus on "Gunsmoke"

Do you have a Western background?—Mrs. Gladys Greene, Elmira, N.Y.

● Yes, I have a background so close to my role on "Gunsmoke" that some people think I've made it up. I was born in Lamar, Colo., near the Kansas border and Dodge City. My father was a homesteader and sheriff at Las Animas, Colo. We lived in the jail. My mother cooked for the prisoners and I helped out as the jail keeper.

FOR LARRY LITTLE of the Miami Dolphins

Who is the toughest lineman you ever played against?—Richard Dickerman, Mankato, Minn.

● That's hard to say. But Joe Greene of Pittsburgh is certainly one of the toughest.

FOR ROB REINER of "All in the Family"

Do you think that Mike of "All in the Family" is basically right in his political views?—Chuck Goff, Caldwell, Idaho

● Mike has a lot to learn. His knowledge seems restricted to what he learns in college. Many of his ideas are valid, yet many are just as narrow-minded as his conservative father-in-law's. Beyond that, anything I said about his being right or wrong would be unfair to the character.

FOR LIBERACE

Are your hands insured, and if so, for how much?—Gary Cunningham, Jr., Kokomo, Ind.

● I'm often asked this question. The truth is, my whole body is insured. I think it would be foolish to have just my hands insured. Some entertainers have had various parts of their bodies insured and have gotten some good publicity from it. Personally, I don't see what good willing hands would be to a body that was too weak to sit at the piano.

FOR HOWARD COSELL

How did you begin sportscasting? And what is the most thrilling event you've covered?—H.D. Harris, Dickson, Tenn.

● I started broadcasting five-minute weekend radio shows back in 1956, while I was still a practicing attorney in New York City. Probably the most thrilling event I've been associated with was the second Floyd Patterson-Ingemar Johannsson heavyweight-championship fight at New York's Polo Grounds on June 20, 1960. Patterson, by scoring the most compelling knockout I have ever seen, became the first man in history ever to regain the heavyweight title.

America in the "Age of Shortages":

A Britisher Explains Why We're Still Better Off than Europe

Woodcut for Family Weekly by Barbara Bascove

By Geoffrey Bocca,
British Observer of the American Scene

I was walking along the Avenue Foch in Paris with a French friend recently when he put his hand on my arm and indicated some glass domes, like giant space helmets in the street. "Look," he said proudly, "pay telephones!" I had, of course, seen pay telephones before, but my emotion was as great as his, not because of the avant-garde design, but because they were there at all.

The French are just beginning to get around to what they call "taxiphones," and there are still only a handful scattered around the city.

Even today, the general method of making a telephone call in Paris is to go into a bar, chat about the weather with the suspicious lady at the cash register, buy a token (at excessive price) and then locate the telephone, which is usually in a broom closet or the toilet. The Italian and Spanish systems are worse, and in London I make a mental note as to where pay telephones can be found; otherwise one can search indefinitely. For some reason, the telephone box brings out the worst in the normally tidy and law-abiding British, and they use it for newspaper disposal, vandalism and worse. A familiar sight in London, wherever there happens to be a row of boxes, is that of a furious and frustrated citizen going into and out of one box after the other, seeking one that (a) works and (b) is not reeking of some foul odor.

Self-criticism in the U.S. has reached such a pitch that it is perhaps timely for a European visitor to remind Americans that for everyday comfort and convenience in living, America is still the only country that has found the secret. No European who has ever lived in the United States ever passes a single day without missing some aspect or other of American life.

One might think it difficult, for example, to fall in love with an ordinary brown paper bag, but if one has lived for a long time in Europe, it is—very easy. The brown paper bag—like the telephone that works or the garage attendant who checks one's tires (at least he used to; and I presume, after the present gasoline crisis, he will again)—is what makes people sigh with relief when they return to the United States from a sojourn in Europe.

> "Self-criticism in the U.S. has reached such a pitch that it is perhaps timely for a European visitor to remind Americans that for everyday comfort and convenience in living, America is still the only country that has found the secret."

In the U.S., the brown paper shopping bag is still an essential part of service in all shops. Not in Europe. It never has been. A sight familiar to all specialists in American behaviorism, but to no one else, occurs whenever an American housewife in Britain comes face to face with the girl at the cash desk of a supermarket.

Each waits for the other to make the first move. The salesgirl waits for the housewife to put her purchases in her shopping basket or whatever receptacle she has brought along for the purpose. The American housewife, who has not brought along anything at all, waits for the girl to take a brown paper bag from under the counter and pack the purchases for her. Snag; there is no brown paper bag, and, furthermore, if it was suggested to the salesgirl that she pack the customer's purchases, she would go on strike.

The stalemate is eventually broken, usually by the girl, who says vaguely, "Want a bag, or something?" The American, taken aback at such a question, can only nod. The girl looks around, scratching her head, eventually finds a couple of thin bags suitable only for holding jelly beans, and which promptly rip on the cutting edge of a tea bag, and the housewife staggers away, dropping things as she goes.

That is not the end of the story. As everyone knows, in America these bags are not discarded. They are folded, kept, and serve admirably for garbage disposal. Europeans, having no such bags, dump their garbage directly into the trash cans (which the English call "dustbins" and the French poubelles, after a certain Monsieur Poubelle who invented the trash can and has a street named after him in Paris). The European housewife, periodically scouring away the malodorous agglutinations from inside her trash can, is a phenomenon that scarcely exists in the U.S.

Nowhere in Europe is there a satisfactory equivalent of the drugstore lunch counter, where one can sit, have a quick cup of coffee and a doughnut, and go. The coffee served in the bars in France and Italy is not the same thing at all, nor is the atmosphere. And as for coffee in England, forget it. English coffee is often as good as American coffee, and the brands are usually the same, but the British have never established a behavior pattern in drinking coffee in public, and the cafés that serve coffee are usually too squalid in American eyes to make the pause worthwhile. It is better to wait until one gets home.

Americans who complain about their repairmen do not know their luck. Of course they charge the world, but they come when summoned, do the job, and go. In England there is a well-known vaudeville song about the plumber who came to call. He did the plumbing but blew the fuses, so the electrician came to call. The electrician mended the wires, but tripped over the TV set, so the TV man came to call. And so on, and so on.

But even this fantasy is better than the reality is. An American living in London finally cornered his local plumber in a pub. The plumber had been promising to repair the leaking toilet cistern for weeks. The American bought a couple of beers, and the plumber, taking out his appointments diary, said, "You are getting close, guvnor. You are now 26th on my list." In the meantime the toilet continued to leak.

France is even worse. In the village in the south of France where I live, most of the inhabitants are either electricians, plumbers, masons, gardeners, house painters and the like. But a repair job may take six months to get done. The reason is that most of them work on jobs for neighboring factories and have little interest in the local housewife or householder. Being neighbors, however, they are also friends. Being friends, they always say politely, "Demain" ("Tomorrow"). But demain never comes. My longest wait—for the plumber—lasted two years.

Americans may not believe this, but parking a car is generally easier in the big American cities than it is in London, Paris or Rome, and parking restrictions are usually more logical. In East Berlin, Germanic thoroughness has reached a ludicrous level. There, as in most Communist cities, traffic is infinitely lighter than in the West, and cars are far fewer. But the conscientious German authorities have placed "No Parking" signs everywhere, in anticipation of the day—sometime in the distant, golden future—when they may expect to have a parking problem. Wishful thinking could scarcely go further in the wrong direction.

One can continue indefinitely. Admittedly one can also continue indefinitely in the opposite direction. As one lurches in the rusty cattle boxes that New York City calls its subway, one pines for the scarlet-and-cream glories of the London Underground or the silent Paris Metro trains hissing along on rubber tires. Watching American cops swagger about, chewing gum – with their guns, billies and handcuffs swinging from their belts – makes one miss London and its straight-backed, unarmed bobbies, or Paris and its elegant flics with their capes.

The American virtues carry their own backlash. The ease and comforts of American living, for example, have produced the uniquely American phenomenon of the "fat boy." The "fat boy," guzzling ice cream, popcorn and chocolate bars, is such a familiar sight that he has passed into American literature and the movies, unnoticed by Americans in the street. To European visitors, he is a tourist sight in himself. One can travel the length and breadth of Europe without seeing a "fat boy." And for "fat boy," read equally "fat girl."

But that is beside the point. Americans are spared many of the frustrations of everyday life, but because they have enjoyed these amenities all their lives, they do not know what they are. Those who have never traveled to Europe will probably be happy to believe me. Americans who have traveled, no matter how much they loved the great European capitals, will be obliged to agree. They say, "We like Europe in spite of the discomforts." Which is a different subject altogether.

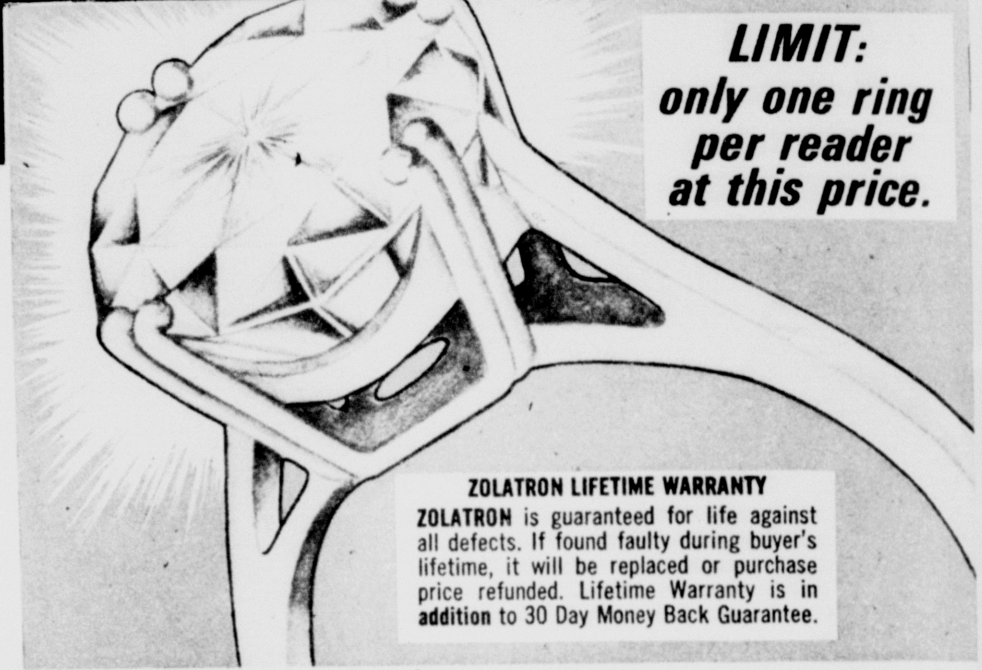
Wear this Zolatron Simulated Diamond Ring 30 Days Free Without Risk

SPECIAL OFFER

to the readers of this magazine

FULL ONE CARAT SIMULATED DIAMOND 10.

SET IN A GENUINE TIFFANY SILVER RING



LIMIT:
only one ring per reader at this price.

ZOLATRON LIFETIME WARRANTY

ZOLATRON is guaranteed for life against all defects. If found faulty during buyer's lifetime, it will be replaced or purchase price refunded. Lifetime Warranty is in addition to 30 Day Money Back Guarantee.

Zolatron must convince everybody that it's a genuine diamond...or you pay nothing!

The 30 Day Free Trial Certificate shown below gives you the right to wear and enjoy — this ZOLATRON simulated diamond ring for an entire month—without risk

You are invited to wear it and judge for yourself

Wear it! Prove it yourself — in the privacy of your own home. Marvel at the pure, dazzling color and fiery sparkle! Show it to your best friends. Watch their eyes pop out with excitement! After all they have no way to suspect it isn't the genuine article — a natural diamond worth a little fortune.

Zolatron is completely different from those phony looking paste or plastic stones glued into cheap costume jewelry. It's distinctly different and you can prove it yourself. The tough, grueling test that follows will convince you: (A) Drop this dense, man-made stone into a cup of acetone nail polish remover. See for yourself how it comes out undamaged! (B) Count each facet. It has a total of 58 genuine facets — the same number found in a natural diamond! (C) Observe how brightly a Zolatron shimmers even in moonlight! (D) Examine it carefully under a high-powered, illuminated magnifier. You won't find a single speck, crack or bubble.

Yes! We dare you to compare its fiery sparkle with costly diamonds! Not even one diamond out of a hundred extracted from the fabulous Kimberly Mines can beat it for color, clarity or flawless perfection. That's why even an expert might confuse it for a regular Kimberly diamond.

Get yours for less than 1% the value of a costly diamond!

Believe it or not — now you can get a ONE CARAT ZOLATRON — set in a fabulous Lady's Solitaire Ring for only $10. This is a Limited Offer subject to the terms and conditions printed below. The average retail price for a one carat diamond gem is $1250.00 or more. Yet the resemblance between a diamond and a Zolatron is so striking that only an expert can really tell them apart!

Don't let the low price confuse you!

Just because Zolatron costs only $10, please don't confuse it for a cheap, dull fake. This man-made stone is not another plastic or paste jewel. Zolatron is one of the world's most dazzling and convincing simulations. Produced by Master Craftsmen, then mounted by hand into a genuine, Sterling Silver Ring. When you see it, you'll agree — it's truly an impressive ring of rare beauty and elegance! And each ring is made to give you a lifetime of wear and enjoyment. Of course, Zolatron is different from natural diamonds, but the most pleasant difference of all is that you can own a Zolatron for only $10—not $1250.00.

Even Millionaires Wear Simulated Diamonds

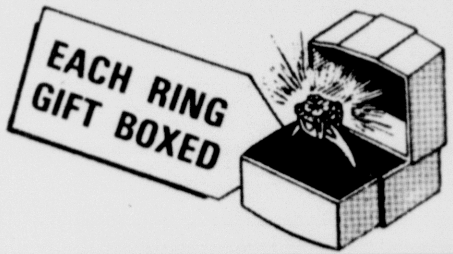
Countless thousands of wealthy persons wear simulated diamonds but they keep the secret to themselves. Those "genuine" diamonds your friends are wearing may not be so genuine after all! Zolatrons are so unbelievably real looking that they may even fool certain experts at times! That's why so many rich persons, movie and TV actors and actresses, wear simulations. They impress their friends and fans — while avoiding the risk of burglary or loss. Of course, wealthy people do own natural diamonds. But they often lock them up in a bank safety box!

IMPORTANT: FOLLOW THESE SPECIAL TERMS AND CONDITIONS

(1) LIMIT — only 1 ring per reader at this low price. (2) Orders accepted for USA and Canada only. (3) Sold only by mail — none thru stores. (4) Guaranteed for life. Refund or replacement if ever defective. (5) No COD's or phone orders. (6) NOTICE: this is a strictly LIMITED OFFER. Orders received after stocks are sold out will be returned to senders promptly.

The Gift of a Lifetime for Someone Special!

Zolatrons last a lifetime and so do precious diamonds. Zolatrons make thrilling, exciting gifts for special occasions: an anniversary . . . an engagement . . . or just a delightful surprise for that someone special! She'll never know this Zolatron isn't a genuine diamond — unless you tell her! Best of all, this Gift of Happiness costs only $10, while supplies are available. By choosing a Zolatron ring you save plenty for a down payment on a car, or even stocks or real estate. So many smart people have switched to simulated diamonds! Now you too can switch at very small cost! You take no risk at all. Our 2 guarantees give you full protection. Please read full details below on how you can obtain this amazing ring for only $10.



30 DAY FREE EXAMINATION AND MONEY BACK GUARANTEE

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

Quiz: Why Some Say "Ouch" and Others Don't

True or False: How much a pain actually hurts is apt to depend on whether you're rich or poor. (See number 2)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. How much pain you can take is likely to depend on your personality type.

2. How much a pain actually hurts is apt to depend on whether you're rich or poor.

3. Pain that is "imagined," or that has no physical cause, can be discomforting, but doesn't hurt nearly as much as real physical pain.

4. Many people have a need to feel pain.

5. A large percentage of aches and pains disappear when a person's mood changes.

6. A person's ability to tolerate pain is related to his capacity to think and reason.

ANSWERS

1. True. In studies at Columbia University, students' tolerance to pain was compared with personality tests. It was found that those who had a low pain tolerance differed markedly in personality from those who were more able to take aches and pains in their stride. Those more tolerant of pain were inclined to lead lives characterized by exciting pursuits, to seek activities that gave promise of thrills, fun or stimulating action. On the other hand, those who scored low on the scale of pain tolerance "generally tended to avoid high-stimulus situations and to seek out low ones."

2. True—as evidenced by the findings of a psychological study which showed that "persons from upper socioeconomic levels manifested significantly less sensitivity to pain than persons of similar ages from lower income levels." It's pointed out that: Adult sensitivity to pain-producing stimuli is influenced by childhood experience. Presumably the less-advantaged child is subject to appreciably more trauma than the more protected child.

3. False. As one leading authority on the dynamics of pain points out: "The supposed differentiations between real and 'psychological' pain are invalid. All pain is real." In other words, a person whose medical examination shows him to be perfectly healthy may be actually suffering as much pain as if he were a candidate for the emergency ward. To illustrate the principle another way: A doorbell makes the same sound whether it's activated by a short circuit or by having someone push it.

4. True. These are the chronic complainers, and their pain may be with or without some physical cause. Says Dr. J. Blair Pace of the University of California at Irvine: "Headache, backache, neck and shoulder pain may be a socially acceptable defense against situations in the patient's life that are far more impossible to bear than the pain."

5. True. One investigation, for example, cites research showing that "approximately 35 percent of more than 1,000 patients in 15 studies reported marked relief from pathological pain after receiving a placebo [a pill without medicine in it]." Conversely, it has been found that concern over the well-being of any part of the body tends to make any pain hurt much worse, and may even produce extreme discomfort in an area that did not hurt before.

6. True—according to the findings of a team of investigators who divided subjects into two groups, based on their ability to tolerate pain. All were then given a standard intelligence test. The group that was the most tolerant of pain made significantly higher scores. fw

CELERY: IT ALWAYS COMES THROUGH IN THE CRUNCH!

Celery, the fresh, crisp green vegetable we take for granted in our markets year-round, has an interesting background. Back in the old days, no one ever ate it for fun—only as a medicine. Its taste was too bitter. Then, early in the 17th century, some unknown gardener in Italy or southern France transplanted some wild celery to a choice garden spot where the soil was deep, rich and moist. To his amazement, the ribs and leaves from these plants had a much more pleasing taste.

Today, of course, celery is flavorful, crisp and green year-round.

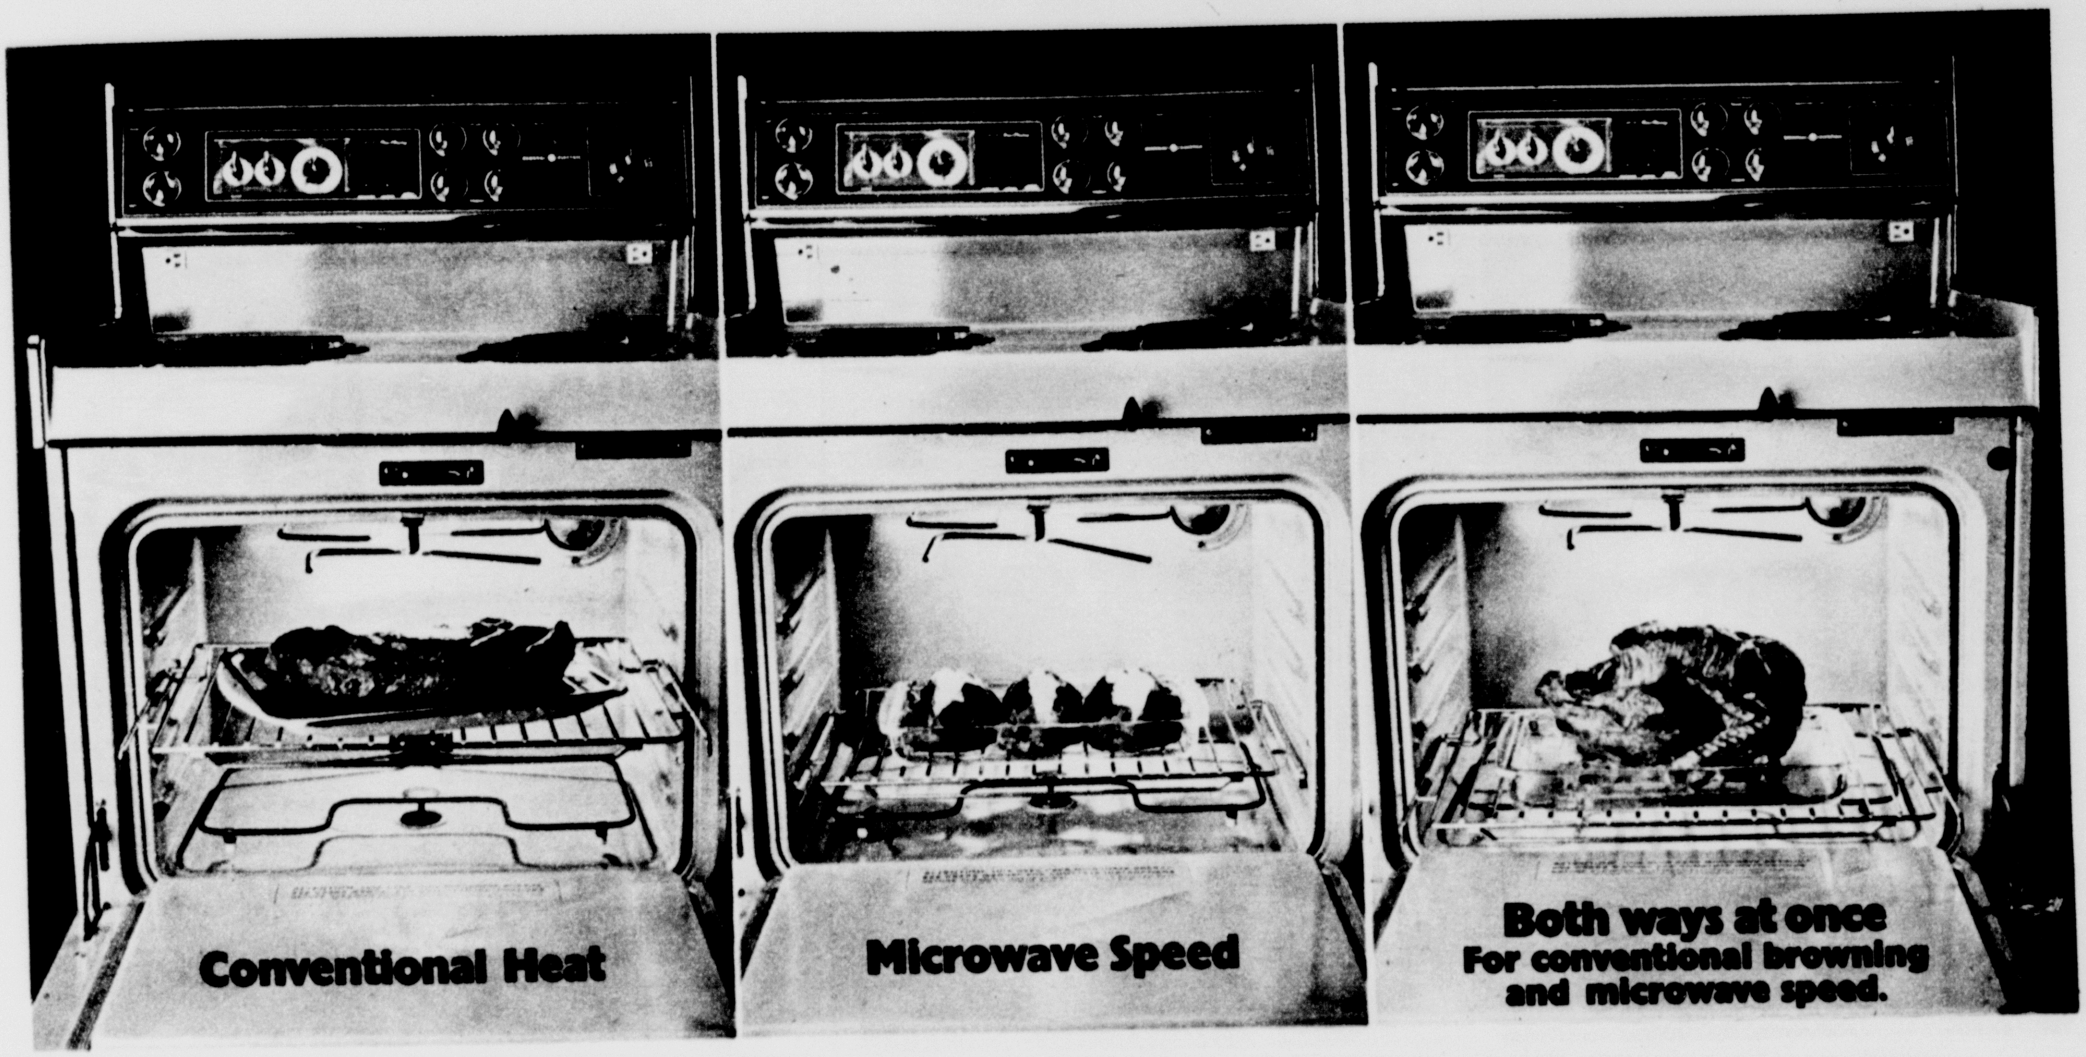
The largest celery-producing area is in central Florida, part of the half-million acres of farmland reclaimed from the Everglades. There, the rich, black soil is abundant and holds the moisture celery needs to grow crisp and sweet. But even here, celery is a slow, tricky grower, requiring 125 days from seed to harvest.

There is still a certain amount of confusion in some cookbooks, which call for "stalks" of celery when they mean "ribs." A "stalk," or "bunch," is the whole plant. The "rib" is only part of the stalk.

The weight watcher can eat celery freely, since a whole cup of diced celery has a mere 18 calories. Celery's at its market peak now through May.

The Superstove™ Range from GE with the oven that cooks three ways.

$599.95*



General Electric presents the 30″ Superstove™ Range with the Versatronic® Oven System, the only system that cooks three ways in the same oven.

It's a conventional oven, so you can cook your favorite recipes just the way you're used to. Like tender, juicy sirloin steak.

It's a microwave oven. So you can thaw frozen foods in minutes and speed-cook up to 4 times faster than you're used to. For instance, 3 baked potatoes in only 15 minutes.

Or it's a microwave oven and a conventional oven both at once. So you can speed-cook and brown at the same time. A 10 lb. turkey, frozen solid, will be roasted and browned in about an hour and a half. Or a frozen apple pie in 17 to 19 minutes.

It's an oven that does so many fabulous things, you'll want to use it more than you've ever used an oven before. For things like warming gravy right in the gravy boat. (The gravy gets hot, the gravy boat doesn't.)

And because it's a P-7® self-cleaning oven, it cleans itself.

Yet all this cooking splendor isn't all that expensive. With the Versatronic Oven System, you get both microwave cooking and conventional cooking plus self-cleaning for $599.95.*

And you get something else only General Electric offers: Customer Care... Service Everywhere.™ This is our pledge: that wherever you are or go in the U.S.A., you'll find a qualified GE serviceman nearby. Should you ever need him.

The Superstove Range... another reason why General Electric is America's #1 major appliance value.

Rath hot dogs. They're really great little kidders.

Kids love the just right, not-too-spicy taste of Rath hot dogs.

And grownups like to serve Rath hot dogs because they're the ones with the good solid nourishment of meat protein.

Not that grownups don't like to eat their share of Rath hot dogs, too. After all, there's a little kid in all of us.

Many have heard of it. Some have eaten it. Few have prepared it. But Chicken Cordon Bleu is a gourmet favorite that is delicious and relatively easy to make.

A "Show-Off" Dish— Chicken Cordon Bleu

CHICKEN CORDON BLEU

4 (2 lbs.) whole chicken breasts, boned
½ cup (¼ lb.) finely chopped cooked ham
1½ cups (¼ lb.) grated Gruyère or Swiss cheese
1 small clove garlic, minced
Few twists freshly ground black pepper
¼ cup plus 2 tablespoons dry white wine or sherry
¼ teaspoon thyme leaves
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup unsifted all-purpose flour
3 eggs
¼ cup plus 1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1½ cups fine dry bread crumbs
6 tablespoons butter or margarine
Parsley or watercress
Chicken-Wine Sauce (recipe below)

1. Cut whole chicken breasts in half. In small bowl combine ham, Gruyère, garlic, a few twists freshly ground pepper, 2 tablespoons wine, thyme and ½ teaspoon salt.

2. Use this ham-cheese mixture to stuff each breast in the pocket made by boning. Refrigerate covered for at least 30 minutes.

3. On sheet of waxed paper, combine flour, remaining salt and a few twists freshly ground black pepper.

4. Beat eggs with 1 tablespoon vegetable oil.

5. Coat each chicken breast in flour mixture, dip in egg mixture, then in bread crumbs, coating well.

6. In large skillet heat butter and ¼ cup vegetable oil until butter foams. Brown chicken breasts slowly on each side. Turn heat down to low and continue cooking uncovered about 20-25 minutes longer, until cooked through.

7. Or if you wish, brown in skillet as in Step 6, but finish cooking uncovered in preheated 375°F. oven for 20 minutes.

8. Add ¼ cup white wine to skillet. Bring to boiling, stirring to loosen all brown particles in pan (deglaze). Continue boiling till liquid is reduced by half. Pour over chicken breasts. Garnish with a bouquet of parsley or watercress.

Makes 8 servings

CHICKEN-WINE SAUCE

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
1½ cups chicken broth
¼ cup heavy cream
1 tablespoon dry white wine
Dash white pepper

1. In small saucepan, heat butter until melted. Stir in flour smoothly.

2. Add chicken broth all at once and cook, stirring with wire whisk until smooth and bubbly.

3. Stir in cream, wine and pepper. Heat; season to taste, adding salt and additional pepper if desired. Makes 2 cups

TIPS FOR SUCCESSFUL CORDON BLEU

1. Timing is important. For tastiest, tenderest results, don't overcook chicken.

2. Do cook until chicken feels firm to the "finger" test—that is, when pressed with your finger.

3. If you must wait to serve, cover loosely with foil and keep warm.

How about using the fresh piquancy of dillseed to add new flavor to your salad?

Tips 'n' Topics

DILL: SEED OR WEED?

We could all use a little lift just about now, so how about a new dressing for your favorite salad?

This recipe calls for whole dillseed, the seed of the herb plant, dill. The maximum flavor of dillseed is developed by "toasting" the seeds lightly in a small skillet for 5-10 minutes before using. A brief stay in a marinade or dressing also helps bring out the flavor.

Dillweed, the crushed leaves of the dill plant, releases flavor more quickly than the seed, but the flavor is milder. Dillweed enhances green salads, vegetables, fish and seafood sauces, egg salad, cottage cheese and, of course, thinly sliced cucumbers.

DILLY DRESSING

¼ cup lemon juice
1 teaspoon dillseed or dillweed
⅓ cup vegetable oil
¼ teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper

1. Combine lemon juice and dillseed in small saucepan. Bring to boiling; reduce heat and simmer 5 minutes. Cool.

2. Combine all remaining ingredients in a jar; add lemon juice and dillseed mixture. Serve over sliced cucumbers, tomatoes, mixed salad greens, etc., shaking thoroughly before adding. Makes ⅔ cup

SYNTHETIC MILK?!

A team of professors at the University of Illinois has developed a pleasant-tasting nutritious drink that they say offers the protein "benefits of milk without the cost of the cow." It remains to be seen if the product can be developed as a milk substitute; at the moment, it is deficient in calcium. However, the product, made from soybeans, is still in the developmental stage, and will be used to make imitation "cheese," "yogurt," "ice cream," table spreads and frosted shakes.

Saffola® will help lower his cholesterol.

Following the doctor's orders isn't always easy. So when he recommends a low saturated fat diet, it's nice to get some help.

Unlike the high-priced spread, Saffola (and, in fact, most margarines) contains no cholesterol.

But that's only the beginning. Saffola Margarine is made from safflower oil—lower in saturated fats, higher in polyunsaturates than corn oil. In conjunction with a low saturated fat diet, Saffola actually helps reduce the level of blood cholesterol.

It's reassuring to know that if your doctor recommends cutting down on saturated fats, you don't have to cut down on flavor.

Saffola tastes so much like the high-priced spread, chances are your family won't even notice the difference.

Burt Bacharach Talks About Music, Racehorses and (First, Last and Always) Angie

"I like to play my music for Angie after it's done. She has a very good ear for it."

By Peer. J. Oppenheimer

The interview didn't start out too well. The night before, seemingly tired and nervous, Burt Bacharach had opened at Harrah's Club in Tahoe.

FAMILY WEEKLY: You seem awfully tired. What's wrong?

BURT: I had a tough day yesterday. A six-and-a-half-hour rehearsal, and two shows. That can get anybody down. Besides, I've worked hard the last couple of years. It took me a year and a half on "Lost Horizon," and when I did my TV show in London, I came down with the flu.

FW: Were you disappointed with the critics' reaction to "Lost Horizon"?

BURT: I think it was the worst assassination job ever done on a picture.

FW: Do you think they were wrong?

BURT: I think the picture was better than they said it was. But it seems that once you get a bad critique, each critic tries to outdo the guy before. Nobody gave credit to the attempt to make a picture completely in Hollywood and put people back to work.

FW: Don't you think any of the criticism was justified?

BURT: I didn't say that. I think it happened partly because the picture was ballyhooed so much. The whole attitude went something like "See here, public, this is THE picture you've been waiting for! You should be happy to see it!" I don't think that was right.

FW: What about your own score? Were you satisfied with it?

BURT: I think the score didn't work as well as it should.

FW: Is it true that you turned down "Love Story"?

When your child can't sit still, is it nervousness or is it Pin-Worms?

Fidgeting, distraction, fitful scratching of rectal itch—many people don't know these "nervous habits" can be caused by Pin-Worms. These almost invisible parasites are so common, medical authorities have said 1 out of 3 children examined, and many parents, may have Pin-Worms.

They can infect anyone—young or old, rich or poor. Worst of all, Pin-Worms are highly contagious, so they can spread from person to person, until the whole family is infected.

Fortunately, there is an easy-to-take medication called Jayne's® P-W® tablets that gets rid of Pin-Worms. Your pharmacist will tell you that Jayne's P-W tablets are specially formulated with an effective medical ingredient that drives Pin-Worms out of your system. Ask for Jayne's P-W tablets at your drug store.

BURT: It is. When I met with Bob [Paramount Production chief Robert Evans], he had his mind set on a certain kind of music. It wasn't a matter of whether it was good or bad. I simply never had a chance to think how I would feel about it. So I turned it down. But he was right. The music he chose worked, and I respect him for his opinion.

FW: Has Angie been able to help you with your work?

BURT: A great deal, particularly in the beginning. I like to play my music for her after it's done. She has a very good ear for it.

FW: Do you need time totally alone—even away from Angie?

BURT: I do. I go to Del Mar seven or eight weeks a year, though not always by myself. We own a house there that we bought two years ago. It's a great place to work, and a marvelous place to relax. Until we bought it, we used to go to Palm Springs for three or four days, and it was like a major move. Del Mar is a second home. I simply get into the car, drive there, and start another life.

FW: And Angie doesn't mind when you go by yourself?

BURT: At least she hasn't told me she does. Besides, when Nikki is in school [Burt's and Angie's six-year-old daughter Lea Nikki], Angie doesn't like to leave her on her own too long.

FW: Del Mar is famous for its racetrack. Do you race your own horses as well?

BURT: I do. I've liked racing since I was 11, when my father took me to a horse race for the first time. Ever since, I thought that if I ever made it, I wanted horses of my own.

FW: How are you doing?

BURT: I won my first race and I figured it was easy. Then I lost the next 43! I'm doing better than that now, but there is no way you can make money on racehorses. At least I can't.

FW: How does Angie feel about your racehorses?

BURT: She likes horses, but not as much as I do, and I figure that if it's an effort to see them run, it isn't worth her time.

FW: How much effort does it take to to write music?

BURT: A great deal.

FW: Do you set certain hours to do your composing?

BURT: No. I don't start at nine and work until six in the afternoon. Sometimes I work 32 hours in a row. Sometimes I get up at four and work until noon and then go play tennis. But then I have to tell myself not to have a drink with the guys, but go home and go back to work.

FW: How do you feel about Angie still working as an actress?

BURT: I think it's absolutely essential, and I'm all for it—and not just for her to keep busy. If Angie weren't such a good actress, I would prefer that she quit. But she's too good to stay away from the screen. Unfortunately, she doesn't seem to get parts that do her justice.

FW: What do you think is the best thing she's ever done?

"If Angie weren't such a good actress, I would prefer that she quit."

BURT: "Point Blank."

FW: She did a nude scene in the film. Did you mind?

BURT: Not at all. I thought she looked gorgeous!

FW: Is your daughter musically inclined?

BURT: She seemed to be a couple of years ago, and she tried the guitar and the violin. She has a pretty good ear. But now she's more interested in horses. Incidentally, she doesn't want to be called Nikki anymore. She's Lorne Greene now.

FW: What do you mean—she's Lorne Greene now?

BURT: Well, she's told us that from now on she's not a she but a he, and her name is Lorne Greene. Unless we call her that, she won't answer.

FW: So?

BURT: So we call her Lorne Greene.

FW: When you wrote the music for "Promises, Promises," producer David Merrick referred to you as "a new sex symbol." How did you feel about it?

BURT: I laughed. David's a card.

FW: How did Angie feel about it? And not just that, but when your fans fall all over you at concerts and personal appearances?

BURT: It doesn't bother her. At least, I don't think it does.

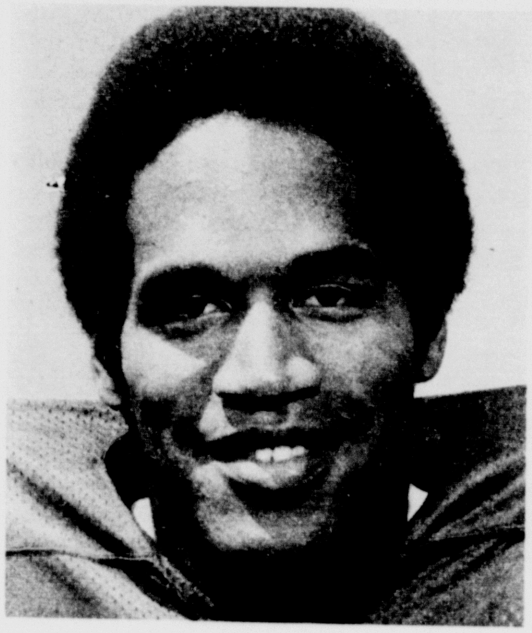
O. J. SIMPSON:

The Boy with Rickets Who Became "Athlete of the Year"



When O. J. Simpson was a child, he suffered from rickets and his mother had him wear homemade braces because she couldn't afford professional treatment. As a result, O. J.'s legs remained bowed and skinny from the knees down. But that didn't stop him from becoming the No. 1 college running back when he was at the University of Southern California; or from becoming No. 1 running back in professional football; or from smashing Jim Brown's rushing record by gaining 2,003 yards last season; or from winning the Hickok Award as "Athlete of 1973" by a record-breaking landslide. . . . O. J. (his real name is Orenthal James) doesn't like to meet tacklers head on. Instead, he uses tremendous natural speed and an uncanny ability to slip out of tacklers' hands. "A running back lasts a lot longer when he's not colliding with people or trying to run over them with brute force," he tells you. "I'm hoping to last a long time." . . . A native of California, Heisman Trophy winner Simpson was disappointed when he was drafted by Buffalo five years ago. He was even more disappointed when the coach gave him only limited opportunities to run. He was becoming known as "the college star who failed in the pros." But a new coach, Lou Saban, arrived in Buffalo last year and decided to build his offense around O. J., just as USC had done. . . . O. J. is a hero to his young teammates at Buffalo, is recognized as a team leader and official needler at practice. They describe him as "a guy who's always smiling and never angry." His wife Marguerite compares his disposition with that of his mother's cousin, baseball's happy-go-lucky veteran star, Ernie Banks.

BASKETBALL
PRIORITIES

Some adults may be surprised to hear this, but when a nationwide group of high school senior boys was polled recently on 14 different things a high school should emphasize, the students ranked athletics last. What did the students feel was more important? They wanted to see more vocational skills taught to boys and girls who aren't interested in college. They wanted more programs to prepare them for family life as a spouse and parent. They asked for courses to improve students' social and psychological adjustment. They were even eager for more encouragement in traditional academic achievement! School, most of them felt, was more boring than it needed to be. Only six percent of the students found their schoolwork "exciting and stimulating." Even worse, only 30 percent thought the things they're learning in high school will be "very important" in their lives.

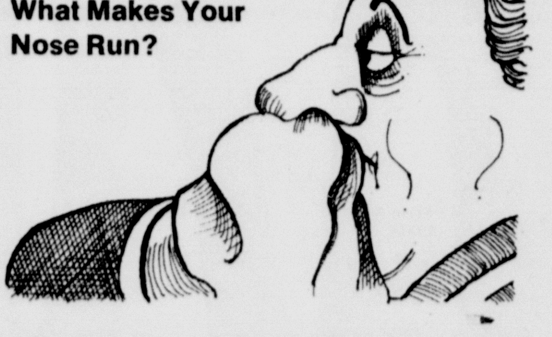
The Doctor Lets You In

What Makes Your Nose Run?



"Oh, this darn nose—what's making it run so much?" Ever said that while suffering from a cold? Well, it's a good question—what does make your nose run? Here's the answer: A cold is an infection. And when you have an infection or inflammation, all your tissues are "running"—i.e., secreting fluids. The fluid running from your nose is called mucus, a secretion containing, among other things, mucin (an "animal glue") and dead white cells that have been killed while fighting infection. When inflammation strikes, many tissues discharge fluids. But you are most aware of the problem in your nose because the mucous membrane in your nasal passage is exposed and unprotected (that's also why it's the most vulnerable to attack from germs). The point to remember is this: A runny nose is not bad in itself. It is an attempt by your body to throw off an infecting agent. This is why many doctors are cautious about overusing products that block or dry up the nose of a cold sufferer.—By Erwin Di Cyan, Ph.D.

"Did You Kill Your Baby?"

The Double Suffering of "Sudden Infant Death"

By Elizabeth McGough

The funeral for six-month-old John Jerry Price, Jr., took place on a July afternoon in North Carolina with only a few people gathered around the tiny blue-trimmed coffin. The baby's father was not there. John Jerry Price, Sr., 20, sat in the County Jail charged with assault and battery in the death of his son. An autopsy had shown that the infant had not been beaten or struck. He had died of Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (sometimes called crib death), but the father was being held anyway.

In Chicago, a distraught father raced into the hospital. His infant son had been found dead in his crib. The father was asked repeatedly, "How many times did you hit him?"

These cases are extreme. But nearly all Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS) families have been asked, "Did you give the baby any medicine before you put him to bed? Did another child hit him? Did you love this baby?" You can imagine the trauma this brings into parents' lives.

The death of any child is heartbreaking. Yet no other disease leaves in its wake the self-doubt, guilt, psychosis and charges of criminal neglect that accompany deaths from SIDS. The leading cause of death in infants under one year old, SIDS has been with us at least since Biblical times. The disease cannot be predicted, even by a doctor, nor can it be prevented. While we do not know the cause of these 10,000 to 15,000 deaths a year, we do know that the surviving families are not criminals.

To define SIDS, let's look at a typical case. An apparently healthy infant between three weeks and eight months old is put to bed. He may have signs of a slight cold. Sometime later the baby is found dead. Most babies show not the slightest trace of any disturbance. No one has heard the baby struggle or cry out. Sometimes the infant has obviously moved at the time of death, and he may have a blanket near or around the face, or may be wedged over in the corner of his crib.

Here are some basic facts about SIDS:

- SIDS is a definite disease.
- The causes are not suffocation, regurgitation or pneumonia, although sometimes death certificates list such causes in error.
- There is no suffering; death occurs during sleep.
- It is not hereditary; there is no greater chance for it to occur in one family than in another. But it is unlikely to happen a second time in one family.
- It is not contagious. Although a viral infection may be involved, it is not a "killer virus" that threatens other family members.
- SIDS rarely occurs after seven months of age.
- New environmental agents, such

This lovely lady—Rachel Carr, author of "Yoga For All Ages"—IS REPLACING DEADLY TENSION WITH SOARING NEW STRENGTH AND ENERGY! Yet, to an outside observer, it looks as though she is doing nothing at all! This is the great marvel of Healing Yoga— that it produces such phenomenal returns in beauty, strength, appearance and vitality for such a tiny investment in time or energy! No wonder it can be enjoyed by 80-year-olds, or arthritics, as well as robust teenagers! No wonder its simple postures (like this one) seem to "smooth away" both years and pounds from the very beginning! Why not try these incredibly-easy "body-reshapers" and "revitalizers" today—without risking a penny!

IS THIS THE World's Easiest Yoga?

So incredibly easy that anyone can master it! And yet so powerful that it may cut years off your appearance...recharge your body with youthful energy... turn back on sleeping "Health Glands" inside your body! And do it all—in just a few glowing minutes each day!

Call It, If You Will, "Healing Yoga!" Made Up Of SIMPLE HEALING POSTURES THAT REDIRECT THE ENERGY FLOW WITHIN YOUR BODY To Help You To:

1) Gently stretch "weak muscles" strong again! So that they gain new strength, new power, new slimming control—not by agonizing effort—but by the super-nourishing blood-flow that these stretches pour into those muscles!

2) Flood with the same super-nourishment the tragically-neglected upperbody tissues of your face, neck and hair—and thus retard the drying and collapsing process that is aging your appearance faster and faster every year!

3) Revitalizes dormant "Youth Glands" inside your body! Put gentle, soothing pressure on them for a few blissful moments each day, so they automatically burn more of the food-fuel you put into your body! So you use the fat stored on your waist, hips and thighs as a brand-new supply of energy, to ward off fatigue and sluggishness at the same exact time that you look slimmer and feel younger than you have in years!

And—perhaps most important of all—

4) Attack directly—with Nature's own health powers—unnecessary sicknesses and breakdowns that may be torturing you today! So that you feel for yourself the effect of these simple postures on such agonizing cripplers as arthritis . . . rheumatism . . . respiratory illnesses . . . high blood pressure . . . back troubles . . . insomnia . . . shattered nerves . . . and a dozen more!

Such startling relief, in fact—so quickly—that the author must share it with you, in these joy-filled words:

"At first I found the sudden intake of oxygen a little startling. I experienced a surge of vitality as though I had opened the window for a breath of fresh air; yet the quieting effect it had in my mind was hypnotic. . . . My step took on bounce, and a wonderful sensation of well-being stayed with me. The pain in my joints and back, which had plagued me for years, subsided. With relief I discarded the traction device I had used nightly . . ."

And All These Benefits Come From Simple Postures That May Seem, At First, Too Easy For You! In Fact, You May Actually Laugh At Them—UNTIL YOU FEEL THE SURGE OF NEW ENERGY COURSING THROUGH YOUR BODY!

Once again, this new, simplified, streamlined Yoga works on the proven scientific principle that you cannot force . . . you cannot strain . . . you cannot torture your body into releasing again the buried reserves of strength and vitality that are now trapped within it!

For example, you know perfectly well how exhausted you feel after ordinary strenuous exercises . . . how they become progressively more and more difficult to practice . . . how your body finally forces you to give them up, and sink right back again into ever-increasing flabbiness, sagging facial and body tissues, an ever-growing sense of feeling "old and beaten" by life!

But—right now—do you have the energy to simply lie on the floor, and breathe in and out five times in a brand-new way? It takes only minutes to learn the method! You may chuckle at it at first! Until you feel the surge of super-charged oxygen revitalizing every tired tissue of your body!

And then, do you have the energy to simply raise your arms over your head—in the special way we show you while you are lying on the floor—and stretch your body gently and luxuriously from head to toe! And feel so much trapped tension drain out of that body that you may actually want to dance around the floor in sheer delighted joy!

Yes, and do you have the energy to play a simple trick on those flabby stomach muscles, that sucks them gently in close to your spine for a few strength-producing seconds . . . and that can make you look inches thinner in just a few blissful days!

And would you like to tighten up the vital muscles in your face, chin and neck—at the same exact time you flood them with fresh nourishing blood—all with one or two simple stretching exercises! Or start slimming over-heavy calves and thighs . . . tone up sagging breasts and hips . . . the hanging flesh on the undersides of your arms—all with the same easy gentle stretching movements!

Once Again, They Produce Results That You Can Gain In No Other Way! For Example:

Cleansing Breaths! Sort of Super-Sighs, that let you breathe weariness right out of your body!

Why the best tranquilizer in the world doesn't cost you a penny! It's yours on page 10.

Blood-Stream Purification. Forces your body to burn up potentially damaging inner secretions that may have been clogging your cells for years. You may feel the difference—thrilling new freedom from indigestion alone—immediately!

Yoga Sex Exercises specifically designed to stimulate lagging sex glands!

What is perhaps the single most powerful pose to delay aging in the human body (page 38). And why it may release a virtual torrent of self-healing processes!

How to re-distribute weight the Yoga way! How you can look like a young person if you have an old person's bulges distorting your figure. Yoga works on those bulges to painlessly redistribute that weight over your entire body . . . and help eliminate ugly bulges that have plagued you for years!

Yoga Revitalizers For Your Face, Your Hair, Your Spine, Your Teeth!

How to flood your face with blood at least once a day—the effortless way—and not only use the power of gravity to help build up instead of tear down delicate facial tissues that are now collapsing into lines and wrinkles, but also: stimulate mental processes . . . irrigate the gums and roots of your teeth to help increase their strength and longevity . . . and flood your scalp and hair follicles with the same rich nourishing blood!

Plus:

A simple way to avoid incomplete elimination!

How to stretch lower back pains away! Make those stiff joints mobile again! That stiff spine as supple as a kitten's!

Deep internal massage! To tone up the liver, kidneys and pancreas . . . firm the stomach . . . increase the gastric fire and therefore the powers of digestion . . . lead to true inner cleanliness!

What Yoga can do for you to improve varicose veins, swollen ankles and feet!

How to restore elasticity to stiff joints—without pain—especially knees, ankles, shoulders, hips, wrists, and finger-joints!

Folds in the neck—they are not inevitable if you know this simple posture on page 30.

How to cleanse nasal passages . . . calm the mind . . . help relieve sinus and other headaches . . . reduce eye strain and fatigue . . . strengthen optic nerves and muscles—all in the same posture!

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

The crippling pain of arthritis sent Rachel Carr to the study of yoga. Following the system of exercises she outlines in Yoga for All Ages, she managed to loosen her rigid spine and knee joints and to dispense with the traction equipment she had used at night to stretch her spinal column. From that beginning, she went on to study yoga in depth and to become one of America's most noted teachers of the subject.

Health-Power postures that anyone, of any age, can do in a chair!

The great Yoga cure for over-strained nerves! Starts to work immediately, in minutes! May be worth a hundred trips to a psychologist! Its fantastic ability to induce sound sleep, even in confirmed insomniacs, may alone be worth the low price of this book!

Prove It Yourself— Entirely At Our Risk!

But there is so very much more! You really must try these great Health-Power Postures yourself to believe them! Therefore we offer this Complete Streamlined Course to you, to read and use from cover to cover, entirely at our risk!

Look again at the unretouched photograph of the author above. Realize again that, only a few years ago, this woman was in literal agony from the pains of arthritis . . . in such poor health that she could not sleep at night without traction!

Is it worth a few minutes of your time to learn the Path Back to youthfulness and health that she discovered! That now makes her feel young, strong, supple!

If it is, then send in the No-Risk Coupon . . . TODAY!

"Did You Kill Your Baby?"

Continued

as fluoride in water, smoking or birth-control pills, do not cause SIDS. These deaths happened as often in the 18th and 19th centuries as they do now.

For parents of the tiny victims, there is at least one friend. It's called the Washington State Foundation for Sudden Infant Death Study. Through this group, parents learn that their baby was not the victim of some freakish happening, that 35 families a day in the U.S. lose a baby this way.

In a recent interview with the Seattle research-study team on SIDS, I asked Dr. C. George Ray, virologist and project director, what signs indicate a true SIDS death. He explained, "A key thing to settle right away is that we don't find any obvious cause. We rule out heart disease, meningitis, pneumonia, or any prior lesion, in autopsy. Five pathological signs recognized in SIDS death are: tiny hemorrhages (called petechiae) on membranes surrounding the lungs; fluid blood in the heart rather than clotted blood; mild inflammation of the respiratory tract, but not enough to cause death; congested lungs; and the bladder is empty." All signs are not necessarily present in all SIDS cases.

Dr. Ray further explained that two of these signs, the hemorrhages and fluid blood in the heart, are not usually evident in other causes of death.

I asked, "Would either of these appear if child abuse had been involved in the death?"

"Almost certainly not," he answered.

"Can you definitely rule out child brutality by autopsy?"

"Yes, really, we never see this in child abuse."

When a child dies of leukemia, no one dreams of accusing the family of any wrongdoing. But many people have never heard of Sudden Infant Death or do not accept it as a true disease. Many families are never told why their babies died or given any information about SIDS. Friends, grandparents and neighbors often wonder and say devastating things like: "That baby was sick. If only you had taken him to a doctor."

One community that has an organized, humane system of handling SIDS is the aforementioned Seattle-King County in Washington. Here, the victim of any suspected case is immediately brought to Children's Orthopedic Hospital for autopsy. Within 24 hours, Dr. A. B. Bergman or another pathologist of his research team telephones the family to discuss the findings. He gives them his home and office phone, should they need to call. He tells the family that brochures will be mailed immediately, and that a public-health nurse will call on them within a week. These nurses, specially trained for their role, go into the home to explain the disease to the parents and to counsel them in their grief. Mrs. Margaret Pomeroy, R.N., who has visited more than 200 families as research-project nurse, explains:

It's bad enough to lose your child. It's worse when people think it's your fault!

"Even here in Seattle, where we feel SIDS is rather well understood, we still find incidents in which families have been unfairly treated. One mother was questioned by a police officer after her baby's death. He asked, 'Where did you say you were?' She had told him she was ironing in another room. 'Were you across the street at a neighbor's?' he repeated. 'Did you go to the store?' She told him a dozen times that she was ironing. He kept going back to that question: 'Where did you say you were?' Fortunately, my visit was shortly after that. We tracked down this officer immediately to explain SIDS to him so that it wouldn't happen again."

Another volunteer role includes clipping articles on misinformation about the causes of Sudden Infant Death. These discounted theories include the widely publicized whiplash, or spinal-cord, injury; milk allergy; gamma globulin deficiency; parathyroid inadequacy. Some mothers, having lost a child to SIDS, think, "If only I had breast-fed him!" This makes no difference. Many victims have been totally breast-fed.

As Dr. Bergman, president of the National Foundation for SID commented, "It's bad enough to lose a child without a parent having to go through life fearing that he killed it."

He's right. I know. I lost my own son this way. fw

VERY SPECIAL PEOPLE

The Tocci brothers were two boys down to the sixth rib, but only one below.

Many heads turned when Charles Tripp, "Armless Wonder," and his friend Eli Bowen, "Legless Wonder," rode their bicycle built for two.

The Struggles, Loves, and Triumphs of Human Oddities

As a youngster, Francesco Lentini was so shocked at what he saw in an institution for the severely handicapped that he never complained about his third leg again.

These are just a few of the many "mistakes of Nature" included in Frederick Drimmer's fascinating new book, VERY SPECIAL PEOPLE. What makes them very special is that they were all born "curiosities" and they all lived unusual lives. Like Chang and Eng, the original Siamese twins, who were joined at the chest for life. They married sisters, set up separate homes, and fathered 22 children between them!

Then there was Grace McDaniels, billed as the ugliest woman who ever lived (and her photo proves it). Believe it or not, Grace received several proposals of marriage before she accepted one from a handsome young man. They had a perfectly normal son, who grew up to be his mother's manager!

John Merrick, the grossly deformed "Elephant Man," was deserted by his heartless manager. Befriended by a kindly doctor, Merrick became quite famous and was frequently visited by Royalty.

The stories in this book are true, and we have over 65 rare photos to prove it. Never has one book been so complete. There are chapters on giants, dwarfs, fat people, armless and legless wonders, hermaphrodites (half man, half woman), bearded ladies, and numerous other human oddities.

This is not just a picture book of "freaks." The author treats these people with insight, compassion and the dignity one earns by being born different from everyone else.

VERY SPECIAL PEOPLE will also teach you one of the most important lessons that life has to offer: the incredible ability of man's mind, soul, and spirit to overcome any physical imperfection...no matter how hopeless it may appear. Read this book and you'll never indulge in self-pity again.

He asked, ‘Where did you say you were?’ She had told him she was ironing in another room. ‘Were you across the street at a neighbor’s?’ he repeated. ‘Did you go to the store?’ She told him a dozen times that she was ironing. He kept going back to that question: ‘Where did you say you were?’ Fortunately, my visit was shortly after that. We tracked down this officer immediately to explain SIDS to him so that it wouldn’t happen again.”

Another volunteer role includes clipping articles on misinformation about the causes of Sudden Infant Death. These discounted theories include the widely publicized whiplash, or spinal-cord, injury; milk allergy; gamma globulin deficiency; parathyroid inadequacy. Some mothers, having lost a child to SIDS, think, “If only I had breast-fed him!” This makes no difference. Many victims have been totally breast-fed.

As Dr. Bergman, president of the National Foundation for SID commented, “It’s bad enough to lose a child without a parent having to go through life fearing that he killed it.”

He’s right. I know. I lost my own son this way.

It’s bad enough to lose your child. It’s worse when people think it’s your fault!

VERY SPECIAL PEOPLE

Many heads turned when Charles Tripp, “Armless Wonder,” and his friend Eli Bowen, “Legless Wonder,” rode their bicycle built for two.

Daughter of a Ringling Brothers fat lady, Baby Ruth Pontico weighed 815 pounds.

The Struggles, Loves, and Triumphs of Human Oddities

As a youngster, Francesco Lentini was so shocked at what he saw in an institution for the severely handicapped that he never complained about his third leg again.

These are just a few of the many “mistakes of Nature” included in Frederick Drimmer’s fascinating new book, VERY SPECIAL PEOPLE. What makes them very special is that they were all born “curiosities” and they all lived unusual lives. Like Chang and Eng, the original Siamese twins, who were joined at the chest for life. They married sisters, set up separate homes, and fathered 22 children between them!

Then there was Grace McDaniels, billed as the ugliest woman who ever lived (and her photo proves it). Believe it or not, Grace received several proposals of marriage before she accepted one from a handsome young man. They had a perfectly normal son, who grew up to be his mother’s manager!

John Merrick, the grossly deformed “Elephant Man,” was deserted by his heartless manager. Befriended by a kindly doctor, Merrick became quite famous and was frequently visited by Royalty.

The stories in this book are true, and we have over 65 rare photos to prove it. Never has one book been so complete. There are chapters on giants, dwarfs, fat people, armless and legless wonders, hermaphrodites (half man, half woman), bearded ladies, and numerous other human oddities.

This is not just a picture book of “freaks.” The author treats these people with insight, compassion and the dignity one earns by being born different from everyone else.

VERY SPECIAL PEOPLE will also teach you one of the most important lessons that life has to offer: the incredible ability of man’s mind, soul, and spirit to overcome any physical imperfection...no matter how hopeless it may appear. Read this book and you’ll never indulge in self-pity again.

Only $5.95, hard covered, 412 pages, 67 photographs.

NIXON AND STEVENSON
Candidates' cookout test

In his new book, columnist Stewart Alsop recollects a day in 1956 when he was polling voters. He went up to a man raking leaves in the backyard of his suburban Chicago home and asked him if he was going to vote for Eisenhower or Adlai Stevenson. The man replied that he was voting for Eisenhower because "he's the kind of guy I'd like to invite over for a cookout." Ever since then, Alsop has applied this "cookout test" to presidential aspirants. "Nothing is more obvious," he notes, "than that Richard Nixon fails it even more abysmally than Adlai Stevenson did. His inability to arouse the kind of personal affection lots of voters felt for Dwight Eisenhower or John Kennedy has been . . . his greatest source of political weakness." From "Stay of Execution: A Sort of Memoir" (J. B. Lippincott, $8.95).

HIPPO-BACK RIDE
Almost as fun as a daddy?

"Play horse, Daddy!" Millions of weary fathers hear this, or a rough equivalent, when they come home each day. And, when they obey, it's barrump, barrump around the floor or yard while little Suzie or Johnny pounds the living daylights out of their trapezius muscles. So daddies know how Esmi the hippo feels. The 200-pound Esmi, who is said to be the world's only "hand-reared" hippopotamus, has just returned from a hard day's wallow and, presumably, wants nothing more than to curl up with the sports page. Little Suzanne Crawley will have none of that. Suzanne's father is general manager of the Longleat Wildlife Park in Wiltshire, England.

Sam Waterston

The engaging movie newcomer, Sam Waterston, comes from an Ivy League background that's strikingly similar to that of Nick Carraway, the F. Scott Fitzgerald character he plays in the movie, "The Great Gatsby." "The difference," says Sam, "is that I've never been rich." Both Waterston and Carraway attended private boarding schools and graduated from Yale University. Both came from middle-class New England families. About his own background, Sam says: "My father was a teacher at a private boarding school in New England and a great believer in good education. It's nice that my own background was so useful in getting the part. But in the sense that people think it was a privileged existence, it is a bane. Speaking selfishly, I'm grateful it was so pleasant, but I was never into the social thing."

ANNIVERSARIES: James Earl Ray pleaded guilty in Memphis, Tenn., to the murder of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., five years ago Sunday. Woodrow Wilson held the first presidential press conference 61 years ago Friday. The U.S. defeated Japan at the battle of Iwo Jima 29 years ago Saturday.

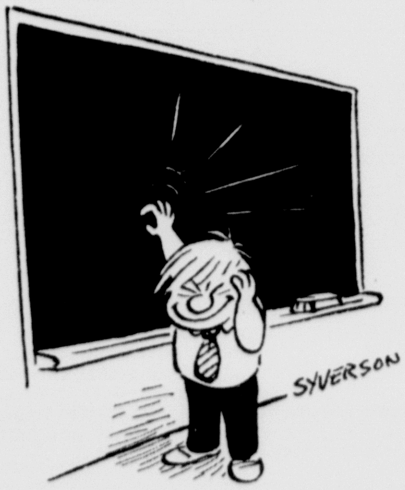
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour



ON THE NAIL

Among the things this writer hails,
Long overdue, are fingernails.
They finish off our fingertips
And help us when we come to grips.
They have their uses, quite a few:
To scratch an itch, to turn a screw,
To open letters, scrape a spot,
To peel an orange, like as not.
Although they must be clipped and cleaned,
Their worth should never be demeaned.
They're somewhat fragile, far from thick,
And just below them is the quick.
But when they sometimes break or crack,
It's none too quick when they grow back.

One of the most exciting ways to travel is by wet soap. —B. Fairweather

In England, a busful of American tourists pulled to a stop at Runnymede and one of them demanded of the guide: "What happened here?" "This is where they signed the Magna Carta," replied the guide. "When did they do that?" asked the tourist. "1215," replied the guide. Looking at his watch, the man turned to his wife and said: "My gosh, Irene, we just missed it by 40 minutes!" —Dan Bennett

Conscience gets a lot of credit that should go to cold feet. —Gene Yasanek

My daughter, who lives in London, took her three-year-old son to watch the wedding procession of Princess Anne and Capt. Mark Phillips. That evening his father asked him what he had seen. His reply was, "I saw the horses' legs." —Mrs. C. M. Styan
Clearwater Beach, Fla.

My young son recently came home from school and told me that his teacher had said he was the second quietest student in the room. I suggested he should try to be the quietest. After a moment's thought, he said, "I can't be. The quietest is a girl."

'JOHN DENVER AND THE EAGLE'

The television audience held its breath as singer John Denver donned a heavily padded gauntlet and prepared to allow a full-grown golden eagle perch on his arm. The magnificent six-year-old bird, with its flashing amber eyes, knife-like beak and six-foot wing spread was an awesome sight . . . not many men would willingly handle such a fierce animal. But John Denver is no stranger to wild life; his hands were steady, his movements calm.

John Denver stars in his first TV special when he welcomes David Carradine, Lily Tomlin, and James Whitmore to "The John Denver Show."

The setting was the ABC television studio in Hollywood, where Denver was taping his first television special, The John Denver Show, airing Monday at 9PM on ABC. At Denver's insistence, a special segment of the show is dedicated to the eagle. Denver's concern for the fate of this rapidly vanishing species is well founded. In all of North America there are less than 8,000 golden eagles left alive. Over the past 20 years, over 20,000 of these great birds have been killed in the Southwest alone. Ranchers, under the disputed conviction that eagles kill livestock, destroy them at random—the recent use of helicopters to hunt eagles resulted in the slaughter of 600 eagles in Colorado and Wyoming in a two-year period.

The fate of the bald eagle is even more alarming. In the entire United States, there are less than 500 pairs of bald eagles left alive; and of these less than 40 per cent are capable of reproduction. Not enough young are surviving to replace older birds; thus, this great symbol of our country is doomed to extinction.

Only recently protected from wanton killing by legislation, the eagle is still losing its battle for survival. The unlawful slaughter of eagles goes on. This is John Denver's great concern. And in an effort to demonstrate the great beauty of these animals, Denver hopes to arouse public sympathy for their fate. Denver sings his composition, "The Eagle & the Hawk," and illustrating the text of the songs are film clips of golden eagles in flight, breathtakingly soaring powerfully through the air, their great wings propelling them towards the sun. With these words and images, John Denver celebrates the beauty of nature; a hymn to the freedom, power and magnificence of this doomed creature—a symbol of freedom in every civilization since history began. A hymn and a plea, a plea for the freedom to survive, not only for the eagle but the civilization it has so boldly represented.

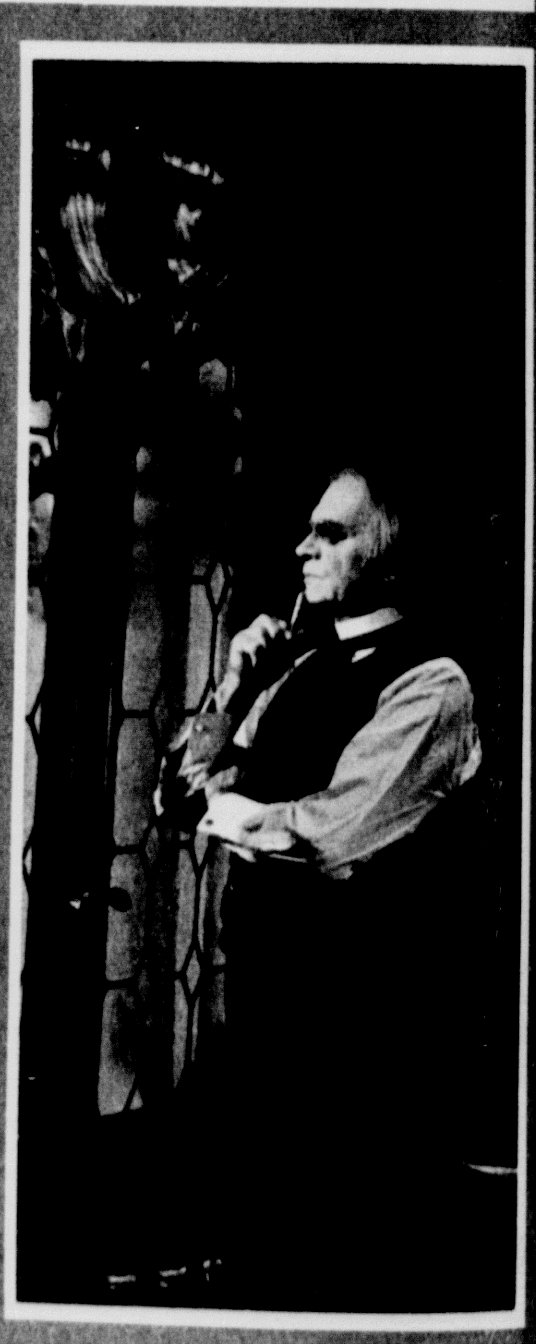
'TRUE STORY'

"The Execution of Private Slovik," a film drama starring Martin Sheen in the title role, airs on NBC, Wednesday from 8:30 to 11PM. The film is the true story of Eddie Slovik, who during World War II was the only American serviceman to be executed for desertion since the Civil War. Mariclare Costello co-stars as Slovik's wife and Ned Beatty portrays the Catholic chaplain who comforts Slovik just before the execution. The script is based on William Bradford Huie's book and traces Slovik's life from when he served time in a Michigan reformatory for a minor offense until his execution in 1945 by a firing squad in a small mountain town in Eastern Europe.

'A CLASSIC'

Lord Laurence Olivier stars in the British National Theatre production of Shakespeare's classic, "The Merchant of Venice," on ABC, Saturday (Mar. 16) at 8:30PM. Olivier portrays Shylock, one of Shakespeare's most memorable characters, who attempts to exact retribution from a society that unmercifully persecutes him. The interrelated stories of Shylock, his victims, the daughter who betrays him, and the woman who ultimately defeats him are the components of a well told classic that's even more meaningful today than the Elizabethan era in which it was written. Action is set in Venice of the 1890s.



'MICRO-WORLD'

Some of the marvels of nature not normally seen with the naked eye are brought to TV via microphotography in "The World You Never See," an NBC Special airing Thursday at 8PM. Hugh Downs is the off-camera narrator. Seven British specialists who make up the Oxford Scientific Film Unit overcame the limitations of the human eye by using specially designed equipment and employing such aids as time-lapse photography and "cold" lighting (a system devised to film delicate insects under artificial lighting without causing them harm). There are 13 different sequences, including a view of a mole feeding its young, and organisms which thrive in a drop of water on the head of a pin.

TV WEEK'S COVER CLOSE-UP

MARLO & FRIENDS

Marlo Thomas and her friends—top stars from every corner of show business—join together in an hour long special of comedy and song on ABC's "Marlo Thomas and Friends in Free To Be . . . You and Me." airing Monday at 8PM. Marlo's friends are (in alphabetical order) Alan Alda, Harry Belafonte, Mel Brooks, Dick Cavett, Rita Coolidge, Billy DeWolfe, Roberta Flack, Rosie Grier, Dustin Hoffman, Michael Jackson, Kris Kristofferson, Bobby Morse, The New Seekers, Tommy Smothers, Cicely Tyson, The Voices of East Harlem and Dionne Warwicke.

Marlo calls her new special "the happiest special in the world. 'Free to Be . . . You and Me' is for everyone. It shows through comedy and song and dance that it's a joy to be free—it's terrific to be your own person." Some of the segments in "Free to Be . . . You and Me" were adapted from Bell Record's Grammy-nominated album of the same name. Many more were created especially for the television show.

In one segment, Dustin Hoffman makes his first appearance on a television special in "How I Crossed the Street for the First Time All By Myself." It tells the story of a young boy's battle to become himself. Filmed on location in Brooklyn, the segment was written by humorist Herb Gardner, who wrote "A Thousand Clowns." Of another segment, Marlo says, "I make my singing debut with

Kris Kristofferson

"MASH" star Alan Alda and we play all the parts in a funny, touching song called 'William's Doll.' It was written by Broadway's Mary Rodgers, who wrote 'Once Upon a Mattress,' and Sheldon Harnick, Pulitzer Prize winner for 'Fiddler on the Roof.'"

Running throughout the special are the comic adventures of two "newborn babies." Marlo and the irreverent Mel Brooks provide the voices for Wayland Flowers' original puppets. Television's Carl Reiner, Norman Steinberg and Alan Uger joined with Broadway's Peter Stone to put some of their funniest observations into the mouths of these remarkably sophisticated infants.

Marlo and Harry Belafonte take over New York City performing in a vast variety of "roles" to demonstrate the not-always-obvious point that "Parents are People." Changing costumes with each new location, Marlo and Harry become (among other things) policemen, taxi drivers, executives, hot dog vendors, construction workers, and even bums. Kris Kristofferson and Rita Coolidge join Marlo to sing "Circle of Friends," a song written for the special by Stephen Lawrence and Bruce Hart, writers of the score of "Bang the Drum Slowly."

Marlo Thomas and Emmy-winning writer Carole Hart produced "Free to Be . . . You and Me" with the help of 18 writers and composers. Oscar and Tony Award winner Tony Walton did the sets for the show. Broadway's Donald McKayle did the choreography and Emmy-winner Bill Davis directed. Sam Antiput was the designer; animation was by Oscar-winners Murakami-Wolfe. The special is, in Marlo Thomas' words, "really the result of a great deal of love and effort by a bunch of people who believe the world can be a happy place if we are free to be . . . you and me."

'ROBERT VAUGHN'S UNUSUAL HOMEWORK'

It's not unusual to hear of a television actor who loses ten pounds, lets his hair grow to a fashionable length, and has his face lifted in preparation for a certain character. But what in the world could induce Robert Vaughn, the original "Man From U.N.C.L.E.," to gain ten pounds, alter the aristocratic shape of his nose and submit to having his hair cut in a style that's forty years out of date?

Well, this unusual transformation began when Vaughn was signed to play the role of Harry S Truman, circa 1929, for the latest in The Du Pont Cavalcade of Television's "Portrait" series, "The Man From Independence," airing Monday, at 10PM on ABC. The program focuses on an early period of Truman's life when he was a Missouri Circuit Court Judge, refusing to knuckle under to the graft-dealing policies of "Boss" Pendergast's political machine, even in the face of direct threats to himself and his family.

"Truman's face and body were rounder and heavier than mine," Vaughn points out. "In between big meals of bread and potatoes, I spent hours watching old newsreels to capture his walk, his gestures. I think it's important to master those little details, because that's the sort of thing that makes up a man's style. And I think that 'personal style' is what this story is all about."

Vaughn even enlisted the services of his barber; together they studied photos of Truman taken in 1929. The result was a close shave from the earline down. A little nose putty completed the astonishing transition from a dapper counter-espionage agent to a mid-Western politician of forty years ago—a man on the threshold of destiny.

"I've got a busy schedule ahead of me," says the energetic actor. "I won't have any trouble losing the extra weight, but for the time being I guess everyone will just have to put up with the haircut."

Robert Vaughn stars as the young Harry Truman, just beginning his political career.

JOE SIROLA'S SCRAPBOOK

Joe Sirola adds another chapter to an abundant scrapbook of professional achievement with his current co-starring assignment as Dominick on NBC's The Magician, Mondays at 8PM. Considered to be the top voice-over talent in the national and international English speaking market, Joseph Sirola maintains permanent membership in one of the most exclusive fraternities in the entertainment industry. His verbal signature is heard tolling the merits of such products as: Excedrin, Gillette, Scope, American Express, Shell Oil, Chevrolet, Vanquish, Gleam, Ralston Purina, and other nationally recognized items.

Joe has been thus applauded for his unique abilities with the honored receipt of no less than twelve "Clio" Awards: the International Television Commercial Awards, and likewise honored by the New York Advertising Club with many of its "Andy" Awards.

The prologue event in his successful television career was an appearance in the CBS Camera Three production of Dostoevsky's "Notes From Underground." This production was to receive the John Lardner Awards for Best Television Dramatic Show of 1958. Similar critical praise was accorded Joe for his co-starring role in the Broadway hit, "Golden Rainbow" with Steve Lawrence and Edye Gorme.

With the phenomenal wealth and success of his voice-over commercial career, it is acting that secures his motivation. For the gentleman whose lapel rose is a personal trademark, there seems to be little hiatus to his talent. Major film roles have included the Clint Eastwood picture, "Hang 'Em High," George Stevens' "The Greatest Story Ever Told," and "Strange Bedfellows" with Gina Lollobrigida and Rock Hudson. He is currently starring in the MGM release, "Super Cops," and "Hail to the Chief." His television credits include guest shots on Mission Impossible, Get Smart and Hawaii Five-O.

Denver Show Guests David Carradine, Lily Tomlin, George Gobel, and James Whitmore as Will Rogers, join John Denver in this musical special filmed in Hollywood and on location in the Rocky Mountains.

DISCOVERIES BY A PACHYDERM PUNDIT

There's an old hunter's tale about the graveyard where elephants go to die and their valuable tusks of ivory can be found.

Actor David Niven narrates "We Live With Elephants," a special program woven around the five-year study of Scottish scientist Ian Douglas-Hamilton and his family, who have been living among 500 elephants dwelling in the Manyara Preserve in the Rift Valley, Tanzania. The filmed account airs Wednesday at 8PM on CBS.

Although in his study Douglas-Hamilton never discovered any such fabled graveyard, he did witness elephant behavior as strange as in any hunter's story. "Obviously, all elephants living on a preserve know each other frightfully well," he says. "They mix together, and when two separate family units come near each other, the youngsters often intermingle. There is no territoriality or aggression between family units. They seem really just to love each other.

"One day, I came across the bones of several elephants, shot by poachers. A group of elephants approached this boneyard and showed unusual curiosity. They sniffed and touched the bones, almost as if trying to identify to whom they had belonged. Elephants totally ignore the bones of other species.

"Next, they carried the bones short distances, sometimes even putting the bones in their mouths. The tusks excited the most interest. Eventually, they all picked up bones and carried them away, sometimes a hundred yards or more, before dropping them in the bush. I don't know the explanation, but there is no doubt that the bones of dead elephants have a special significance for the living animals."

Douglas-Hamilton made other discoveries on elephant existence. One major find was the difference in the life of male and female calves. At first they are equally protected, and, as in many human families, the indiscretions of the very young are usually tolerated. However, the young bull's story is quite different from the cow's. From the earliest age, he is far more aggressive, trying out charges and baby squeals at almost everything. "As the bulls grow older," says the scientist, "they firmly have to be put in place. Inevitably, they become prematurely interested in the female calves, and become a thorough nuisance in the family. When a bull turns about 13, the age of puberty, the matriarches decide he must leave the family unit. They drive out the young bull with a series of attacks, until he is persuaded that he is not wanted. From now on, he mingles with the other males, and sometimes lives quite alone.

"Only when he has fully grown will he have sufficient standing to mix with the cow groups again, usually for the purpose of mating."

Ian Douglas-Hamilton points out curious wild elephants to his daughter Saba.

TEAMWORK IN PARADISE

Renee Taylor and Joe Bologna are definitely not the couple next door. They are actress and actor; Broadway, television and film-writing team; and mommy and daddy—all rolled into two.

"If we didn't work together, we'd never see each other," Miss Taylor points out, with mock consternation.

For their latest effort, Miss Taylor and Bologna wrote and starred in "Paradise," a one-hour comedy special airing Tuesday at 8:30PM on CBS. The happy partnership of Taylor and Bologna began eight years ago, when Miss Taylor, an actress, and Bologna, a writer and director, met through the manager they shared.

Husband-and-wife team Renee Taylor and Joe Bologna escape from the dreary city winter as the stars of "Paradise."

"We were engaged in three months and married in six," Bologna remembers. "Oh, and we decided to write something together." What they wrote was the play "Lovers and Other Strangers," a smash comedy hit on Broadway. Since then, the couple has become a top comedy writing team, credited with the film "Made for Each Other," in which they also starred, the television special "Acts of Love—And Other Comedies," that won them an Emmy Award, and the creation of the critically acclaimed Calucci's Dept. comedy series on the Network.

The marriage also produced a son, Gabriel, almost five years ago. "We haven't won any awards for that—yet," Bologna deadpans. Gabriel, incidentally, will play a role, too, in "Paradise."

"It's both fun and difficult working together," Miss Taylor admits. "We sometimes disagree, but we make trades and concessions. Whoever cries the most—in a very mature way, of course—gets to do it his, or her, way." "I'm better at dialogue, and Joe is better at structure," the blonde-writer-actress says, with a questioning glance at Bologna. Getting an acquiescent nod and smile in reply, she continues: "Joe can write a beginning, a middle and an end, while I like to go where the characters take me. So Joe has all the pressure, and I have all the fun."

Whatever the division of chores, it's obviously a labor of love for the talented team. "It all works out, even if it's not always paradise in real life," Bologna says, "because we like each other."

BY BILL MAHAN

The new Emily McLaughlin (nurse Jessie Brewer in GENERAL HOSPITAL) is quite a shock. At least 20 pounds lighter and with a fancy new hairdo, Emily reminds one more of Susan Hayward or Olivia de Havilland. Her enormous eyes show up more than they ever did before and her sleek new wardrobe is a total reverse for her.

GENERAL HOSPITAL's approximately twelve million viewers did a double take when they saw her new look on television for the first time, too. The switchboard at ABC lit up and the operators couldn't handle the volume of incoming calls from people who wanted to know who the new Jessie Brewer was. They didn't recognize her. The masses of mailbags required the hiring of extra writers to answer all the mail that poured in. But, forgetting the above, Emily McLaughlin is the only daytime actress in the history of the Golden Globes Awards to be nominated for best actress. A well deserved honor for a talented, lovely lady.

GENERAL HOSPITAL will celebrate its eleventh year on the air April 1 of this year. Emily has been with the series since its inception. She arises at 5:30AM every day and is on the set at 7. She rehearses until 8:30, then breaks for lunch until 9:30 in the morning. Then it's back to rehearsing until 1:00PM when the actual taping of the show begins. That lasts until 1:30 and then rehearsing for the following day's shooting begins and continues until 3:30 when she breaks for the day. Normally she is in bed at 9:30 or 10:00 and studies her script for an hour or so to be ready for the next day's work. So being an actress isn't all glamour and play.

One of the more interesting things Emily told me about the series is that it is written entirely by only two writers. "Of course," she said, "things are rewritten and changed on the set sometimes, but still two writers handle the entire show—five days a week a half hour per day." (It takes me a full week to manage to get out two columns, so I was duly impressed with that fact.)

One of the foreign countries that runs GENERAL HOSPITAL is Australia. They are only behind five years in the series, but they're catching up fast because they have doubled up and run the show as an hour series. That means that in seven and a half years they'll be even with production and will be viewing the current episodes now being shot.

Just a very few years ago, when blacks had succeeded in breaking down the barriers that existed in motion pictures and television, it was relatively easy for a Negro to get roles.

"It helped if you were a super-star athlete type of cat," Felton Perry recalls. "It seemed that black actors were everywhere all of a sudden and seemed to be getting a lot of work." Felton feels this came about because of the "black is beautiful" crusade that swept the country as the result of court decisions to remove racial barriers against his brothers and sisters. "I think a lot of people—producers and directors—felt they had to have a token black in one of their productions," Felton adds. "It wasn't a bad idea, and it brought a lot of struggling actors to the attention of the viewing public who might never have seen their work otherwise."

But Felton, who is currently co-starring with Joe Don Baker and Elizabeth Hartman in the box office hit, WALKING TALL, feels those days are over, and he for one is happy about it. "Being a big man on the playing field doesn't count that much any more," he states. "You've got to have talent because there are a lot of good black actors around now, and the competition is stiff." Felton has nothing to worry about on this score. A former Marine and resident of Chicago, he has worked long and hard to master the acting craft and made his professional debut in MacBIRD when it played the Windy City. After that he appeared in MY SWEET CHARLIE, THE AMEN CORNER, TIGER, TIGER, BURNING BRIGHT, and later co-starred with Vince Edwards in the television series, MATT LINCOLN.

"I look at a television commercial today, and I see one black face usually surrounded by white faces," Felton states. "It's a form of tokenism, I guess, to reach the black audience. But at least it's giving a performer a job he or she otherwise might not have had. So I guess it's okay because it means gradually more and more doors will open for black entertainers." Felton said he almost turned down the role of the deputy sheriff in WALKING TALL when producer Mort Briskin offered it to him. The movie depicts the real life story of former Tennessee lawman, Buford Pusser, and his crusade against organized crime in his native county several years ago.

"Now I'm hardly in the position to reject roles," the actor states, "but I somehow got the idea that someone decided at the last minute that they should have a black in the picture. I couldn't see a black being a deputy sheriff in Tennessee, but Mr. Briskin had the proof—shortly after he was elected, Sheriff Pusser did appoint a black deputy. That's the role I play in the picture, and it's a true one."

'THE BIG CATS'

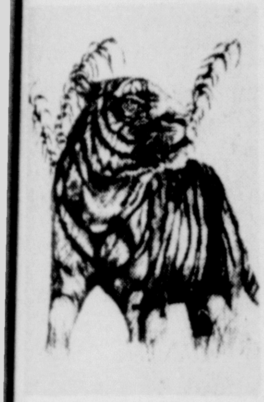
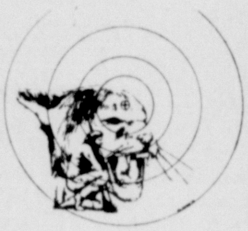
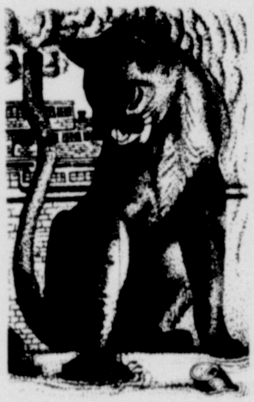
In a contest sponsored jointly by the National Geographic Society and the non-profit organization Prime Time School TV, the contestants endeavored to depict the subjects of the telecast, which are the world's big cats and to illustrate this plight in a world largely indiifferent to their ultimate extinction.



2nd Place
Julie Mattingly, a sophomore also at Harrisburg High, who plans to be a pediatrician. Also an A student, Julie has had little training in art and enjoys gymnastics.



1st Place
Phil Edwards, a senior at Harrisburg High School in Harrisburg, Ill., who plans to take premed courses after graduating. He is an A student and enjoys drawing.



3rd Place
Thomas Bowler, a senior at St. Patrick High School in West Belmont, Chicago, is an art major and plans to continue his art education at the Art Institute in Chicago.

The art contests were started in 1973 in order to stimulate the students' interests in educational programs on prime time television. Prime Time submits materials about these worthwhile programs (free of charge) to the schools along with suggestions on classroom usage.

The art contest for "The Big Cats" drew 705 entries from 38 states, increasing by 10 fold the number of entries ever received for the contests. The contestants were only supplied with a synopsis of the program, thus making it necessary for them to research the project.

The entries, which consist of free hand drawings or photographs, will go on display for three weeks beginning March 1 at the Lincoln Park Zoo in Chicago.

The Zoo, whose director, Dr. Lester Fisher, helped to judge the contest—is the only one in the United States that has all four species—Asiatic Lion, Jaguar, Siberian Tiger, Mountain Lion—examined in the telecast.

The three top finishers were judged on their artistic ability and mastery of the program's theme.

Phil Edward's winning efforts won him a $50 savings bond, a special globe from the National Geographic Society, and a copy of "The Big Cats" to be awarded to his school in his name.

Julie Mattingly and Thomas Bowler each received $25 savings bonds and National Geographics books.

This third of four National Geographic Society programs is produced by the National Geographic Society in association with Wolper Productions. Nick Clapp is the Executive Producer of Wolper Productions. "The Big Cats" was written and produced by Paul Boorstin and directed by Boorstin and Jeri Sopanen.

The National Geographic Society series is produced in association with ABC News.

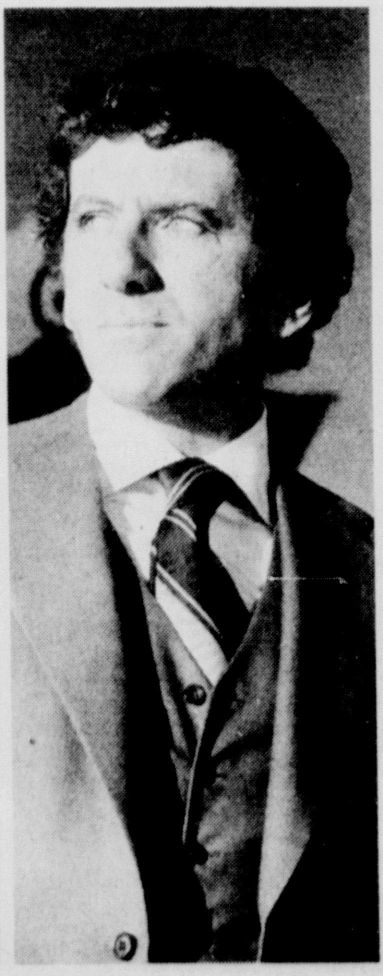
'DOUBLE FEATURE NIGHT'

Ernest Borgnine, Della Reese and Vito Scotti star in "Twice in a Lifetime," a 60-minute comedy about the world of tugboats, and Barry Newman, Susan Howard and Albert Salmi star in "Night Games" a 90-minute mystery-drama about an unconventional lawyer who attempts to clear a young socialite in a controversial homicide case. The two program development projects will be colorcast on the NBC Double Feature Night at the Movies," Saturday (March 16) at 8PM.

In "Twice In a Lifetime," which begins at 8PM, Vince Boselli (Borgnine), a retired Navy cook, satisfies his longing for his former seagoing life with the purchase of a salvage tug from "used boat salesman" Ron Talley (guest star Arte Johnson). Boselli tries to break in to the closed world of salvage men, held in thrall by brutal Pete Lazich (guest star Slim Pickens) and his henchman Kipp (guest star Warren Vanders). Talley and his fiancee Denise Dupont (Sheilah Wells) trigger a rousing fight in the Snug Harbor saloon and Boselli winds up owing for damages to the owner, Flo (Miss Reese). Vito Scotti stars as Carlos the bartender; Eric Laneuville is Flo's teen-age son Lewis and Herb Jeffries guest stars as a musician from Flo's past.

ERNEST BORGNINE

BARRY NEWMAN



"Night Games," which starts at 9:30PM, stars Barry Newman as Tony Petrocelli, a Harvard-educated lawyer who decides to escape urban living for a law practice in a Southwestern cattle town. Susan Howard stars as his wife Patsy and Albert Salmi stars as Petrocelli's investigator Pete Toley. Shortly after his arrival in San Remo, Petrocelli is approached by corporate attorney Clayton Nikell (guest star William Prince) to defend socialite Pauline Hannigan (guest star Stefanie Powers) in a controversial homicide case in which she's accused of killing her husband Dale (guest star Jon Cypher). Petrocelli, conservatively dressed in the western milieu, overcomes—in his unconventional style—obstacles set by Sheriff Dutch Arnbrecht (guest star Ralph Meeker), who resents the arrival of the big-city lawyer, and District Attorney Jaimie Martinez (guest star Henry Darrow), a politically ambitious prosecutor hoping to win fame with a conviction.

The guest cast also includes Anjanette Comer as Jenny Kenadices; Joanna Cameron as Thelma Latimer; and Luke Askew as D.D. Franklin. Co-starring are William Hansen as the coroner; Dennis Patrick as Judge Medford and Robert Emhardt as Judge Ambrose.

'A SIX PART SPECIAL'

Two of British television's best known fictional sleuths will attempt to unravel, perhaps, the most complex and bizzare mystery in the history of crime, as KTTV presents a six part Special, "Jack the Ripper!" The six, consecutive 60 minute Specials will make their debut beginning Monday at 11PM on Metromedia Television's Channel 11, and continue nightly at that time through the following Saturday. They will be hosted by Sabastian Cabot.

Elwyn Jones, Britain's famous detective story writer, teamed with documentary writer John Lloyd to compile the data—combing archives and private collections to present factual evidence, some of which has never before been made public. The BBC Production, then, combining documentary style and dramatic re-enactment, features Alan Stratford-Johns and Frank Windsor as Barlow and Watt, latter-day Holmes and Watson.

Londoners on London is the tenor of "Jack the Ripper." It was ironic that the London Police would turn women loose, from the drunk tanks at midnight, into the foggy alleyways and the embrace of the notorious killer whose victims' deaths defy description. It was sardonic of the world to forget, for an instant, some of the inconsistencies in the case.

'CONTEMPORARY DRAMA'

"Tell Me Where It Hurts," a 90-minute original teleplay by screenwriter Fay Kanin starring Maureen Stapleton and Paul Sorvino, will be seen on GE Theater, Tuesday at 9:30 to 11PM on CBS. Although the film was shot entirely on location in Los Angeles and Santa Monica, California, the settings and background are such that the locale of "Tell Me Where It Hurts" could be set in any city in the United States. The story tackles the subject of mature women needing a change in their daily pattern of living.

"It is not a story," according to Fay Kanin, "about a women's consciousness or movements or activism, or any of the words we have come to recognize in the language of the last four years. It is about women, and the men who are inextricably part of them—lovers, providers, adversaries, friends. The characters are neither symbols nor stereotypes. They are, I hope, only human, hungering for ways to change their lives for the better and inevitably discovering that change is never accomplished without pain."

Maureen Stapleton plays Connie, a middle-aged housewife married to Joe, a taxi driver played by Sorvino. Both are facing the first major decision since their wedding. Others in the cast are Doris Dowling, Rose Gregorio, Louis Latham, Scottie MacGregor, Ayn Ruyman, Pearl Shear and Patricia Smith. All of the performers have at one time appeared on the New York stage, one of the principal reasons they were cast in their parts by Tomorrow Entertainment, Inc. producer Herbert Hirschman.

"I find New York actors less theatrical than Hollywood film players. They don't stress perfect speech when playing ordinary characters. This is a story about ordinary lower middle-class people who aren't too sophisticated. I needed the type of actors who could interpret the characters in the Fay Kanin teleplay as she wrote them. I feel we accomplished this," said Hirschman. Miss Kanin, who two years ago won critical acclaim for her TV film, "Heat of Anger" starring Susan Hayward, believes that "Tell Me Where It Hurts" will be looked upon as one of the most relevant shows about mature married people ever presented on television. The GE Theater production, directed by Paul Bogart, is a story about six married, middle-aged women, all of whom are friends, each sensing something different is needed in her life.

" 'Tell Me Where It Hurts' is in the tradition of 'Marty' or 'Brand New Life,' " says Hirschman, "with its affectionate and meticulous attention to real people and real life. But it is more pertinent in that it deals with an important contemporary movement and is far more relevant to the television audience."

"TELE-TALK"

Like the mythological Icarus, actor Larry Linville is building wings to fly. Unlike the Greek character whose wax wings melted in the heat of the sun, however, Linville's chances of success are considerable. His wings, built of spruce and plywood and covered with fabric, will extend 32.8 feet when attached to the 9.5-foot pod of the glider now taking form in his Van Nuys, Calif. backyard.

Linville, in person, is the antithesis of stuffed-shirt surgeon Maj. Frank Burns, the character he plays on "M*A*S*H" (Saturdays, 8:30PM) on CBS. He has been an acknowledged gliding "freak" from the age of 12. Once he saw a Baby Bowlus sailplane on exhibition at the state fair in his hometown of Sacramento, he was permanently hooked on the sport.

"I carried a lot of newspapers in those days, to earn money for flight lessons with a glider club," he recalls. Taking time out from his hobby, he pursued an engineering course at the University of Colorado, but later resumed soaring while enrolled at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts in London. On weekends, Linville flew a British-built Slingsby from a field in Lasham, Hampshire County.

His current building project was conceived three years ago, in collaboration with Texas Al Backstrom, an F.A.A. engineer. It is a "flying wing" craft with a vertical, but no horizontal, stabilizer.

"Our glider, the 'Super Plane,' will be the smallest, lightest, cheapest and easiest to build sailplane ever assembled," claims Linville. Overall weight of the craft, including aluminum and steel fittings, is expected to be 220 pounds. Its cost is estimated at $500. Linville's wife, Kate Geer, a former actress whose father is Will Geer of "The Waltons" on CBS, is her husband's principal cheerleader. She is so enthusiastic that she intends to take flying lessons. Optimistically, the "Super Plank" should take wing sometime this spring. If successful, the LB-1A, which was originally conceived as a pleasure project by its designers, could prove a moneymaker, with revenues from the sale of plans to would-be builders.

How does an actor approach a role about a real person? Martin Sheen, for one, does it with caution and a sense of tremendous responsibility. "This is the most difficult role I've ever had," he says flatly. "I've never played a real person before and there's a big obligation to do it honestly."

He was referring to his role as Eddie D. Slovik, in "The Execution of Private Slovik," a two-and-a-half-hour World Premiere drama airing on The NBC Wednesday Night Movie at 8:30PM. Sheen said he had no preconceived ideas about whether Slovik—the only American serviceman executed for desertion during World War II—was right or wrong.

"I just played the character as honestly and fully as I could," he said. "I couldn't be too free with my interpretation because I had nothing but the script to use as a guideline as to Eddie's character. Not only was I locked in by the script but by an actual fact. What happened to Eddie is a historic fact.

"I couldn't imitate Slovik. I never met him. I don't know him. I could only play things that relate to him. I interpreted his actions through the words he supposedly spoke and the things he did. I was committed to playing out what happened historically."

Sheen does not judge Slovik but he admits he was moved by him.

"When I first read the script," he said, "I wept at the end."
